A WESTMEATH ESTATE

CONSTRUCTION OF A WILL

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN.)

Mrs. Mary Anne Reilly, of Martinstown, Athboy, Co. Meath, and Denis Clinton, of Rugby road, Dublin, the plaintiffs in a summons against James Reilly, of Lower Mount pleasant avenue, Dublin; Vincent Joseph Reilly, Grove Bungalow, Athlone; Miss Mary Reilly, c/o Mrs Grundy, Cornwall road, Ladbrooke Grove, London, and Mrs. Catherine McEnroe, Lower George's street, Dun Laoghaire, appealed from an order of the High Court on the construction of part of the will of the late Owen Reilly, of Rosmead, Co. Westmeath.

It appeared that Owen Reilly left a farm of a freehold tenure to his son, Thomas, for life, and he provided that, in the event of the death of Thomas "unmarried and without issue," the farm should go to his son Joseph. The will contained a residuary clause, in which the testator appointed his sons Thomas, Joseph and James his residuary legatees. Thomas married, but had no issue, and his wife survived him. The lands had been sold, and the plaintiff, Mrs. Reilly, claimed as universal legatee and devisee under the will of Thomas Reilly, late of St. Paul's street, Dublin, a devisee of the lands of Rosmead and Carestown under Owen Reilly's will; and the plaintiff, Denis Clinton, as personal representative of Thomas Reilly, to have construed the questions whether, on the death of Thomas Reilly, married, but without issue, the capital moneys representing the proceeds of the sale of the lands passed to Thomas Reilly as heir-at-law of Owen Reilly; whether they passed under the gift in the will to the defendant, James Reilly; or whether they passed to the residuary legatees appointed by the will.

The defendants were sued as persons who claimed to be beneficially interested in the lands and the purchase moneys of the lands under the limitations in the will.

The High Court declared that the capital moneys passed on the death of Thomas Reilly, unmarried and without issue, under the gift over in the will to the defendant, James Reilly, and did not pass to the residuary legatees, and against this determination the plaintiffs appealed.

The Chief Justice, giving judgment, said that the one question debated before that Court had been the true construction of the words "unmarried and without issue"; and the sole question for determination on that appeal, as he saw it, was the construction of those words. They had decisions on the meaning of "unmarried," and it had been repeatedly pointed out that the word had two significations: its primary significance, "without ever having been married"; and its secondary significance, "without having spouse living at the time to which the term applies." He took it that in this clause, "unmarried" should be read in its secondary sense, and that "unmarried and without issue" in the ordinary sense, and in the ordinary interpretation meant "without spouse or child surviving."

Therefore, if that was the ordinary sense of these words, it was the interpretation which must be placed upon the clause, unless it led to some absurdity or incongruity, and he saw no reason why the testator should be supposed not to have intended these words to be used in their ordinary sense. In his opinion, therefore, the events did not arise on which the gift over took effect.

Mr. Justice FitzGibbon and Mr. Justice Murnaghan agreed.

The Court accordingly declared that the gift over on the death of Thomas O'Reilly unmarried and without issue did not take effect; and the parties, having appealed only against part of the entire order of the High Court, now agreed and applied that the whole order of the High Court should be discharged.

Mr. Price, K.C., and Mr. Maurice Walker (instructed by Mr. W. L. B. Cochrane) appeared for the appellants; Mr. Overend, K.C., and Mr. J. H. S. Russell (instructed by Messrs. J. L. Scallan and Co.) for the respondents, James Reilly and Vincent Joseph Reilly; and Mr. Marnan (instructed by Miss Kathleen Ryan) for the respondents, Mrs. McEnroe and Miss Mary Reilly.

COLLISION WITH LORRY

(BEFORE MR JUSTICE HANNA.)

Bridget Sweetman, Coldwinters, Donabate, on her own behalf and on behalf of her daughter, Catherine Sweetman, claimed damages from John Howell, Carrickaglin, Carrickmacross, arising out of the death of her husband, who succumbed to injuries alleged to have been inflicted when a bicycle that he was riding came into collision with a motor lorry the property of the defendant at Turvey avenue Cross, Co. Dublin, on the 22nd November last.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., and Mr. Murnane (instructed by Mr. Gerard L. McGowan) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Dockrell, K.C.; Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C., and Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. J. L. Scallan and Co.) appeared for the defendant.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court rose.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE AND A JURY.)

The hearing was resumed of the action in which Isaac Steen, master tailor, with business premises in Capel street, Dublin, and residing at "Minksaasi," Seapark, Clontarf, and his wife, Kathleen Steen, sought to recover damages for personal injuries from the Longford Arms Motor Works, Ltd., Longford, arising out of a motor accident on October 22nd last at Joanstown, on the main Longford-Mullingar road.

The plaintiffs' case was that, while Mrs. Steen was driving their car, conveying her husband and two friends from Sligo to Dublin, a motor car, the property of the defendants, and driven by a man named Richard Cheevers, emerged from a side road and obliged Mrs. Steen to apply her brakes suddenly and strongly to avoid a collision, with the result that plaintiffs' car skidded and overturned.

The defence was a denial of negligence and a plea of contributory negligence.

Mr. McGuckin, K.C., and Mr. J. J. Devlin (instructed by Mr. V. Elyan) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr Costello, K.C., and Mr. Odell (instructed by Mr. T. W. Delaney) for the defendant company.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court rose.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN.)

A consent to settlement was made a rule of Court in an action in which Kathleen Hart, an infant, suing by her father, Thomas Hart, dock labourer, 5 Fountain street, Ferrybank, Waterford, was plaintiff, and Frank Berni and Bert Berni, 54 Lower O'Connell street, Dublin, and Tramore, amusement caterers, were defendants.

The claim was for £5,000 damages for personal injuries sustained by the minor plaintiff when she fell out of a swing boat the property of the defendants at the Amusement Park, Tramore, on the 5th August last. The consent provided for the payment by the defendants of £1,510 and costs.

Mr. Lavery, K.C.; Mr. Birchy, K.C., and Mr. J. I. McGuire (instructed by Mr. D. R. Counihan) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. P. J. Roe, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs Kerr and Hickey) for the defendants

£1,500 FOR INJURED CYCLIST

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN AND A JURY)

The hearing was concluded of the action in which Peter C. Mulvey, 2 Geoffrey Keating road, claimed damages from William Walsh, Durrow, Leix, alleging that as he was motor cycling along St. Thomas's road, Dublin, on August 27th last a motor car owned by the defendant was so negligently driven that it collided with him, knocking him down and causing him serious personal injuries.

Mr. Costello, K.C.; Mr. Roe, K.C., and Mr. Casey (instructed by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. A. E Wood, K.C.; Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. A. Corbett (instructed by Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Son) for the defendant.

The jury found for the plaintiff, and assessed damages at £1,500. Judgment was entered accordingly for the plaintiff, with costs.

STORE CATTLE SALES

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

The largest numbers forward this season were on offer at Messrs. Ganly and Sons' store cattle auction, held in their sale paddocks, Prussia street, Dublin, yesterday. Entries totalled over 1,000 head, and included many grand consignments of forward conditioned Aberdeen-Angus, Hereford cross, horned and polly bullocks and heifers. The sale continued for six hours, during which all good quality forward conditioned cattle met keen competition, and, with last week's improvement in prices fully maintained, over two hundred lots were sold, and a complete clearance was effected. Consignments carrying store licences for export met particularly brisk competition, and many more licensed lots could have been sold at satisfactory prices. Quotations:—Super quality Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford cross heifers sold freely at from 24/- to 26/- per cwt., with some extra fancy lots carrying store licences making up to 27/6 and 28/-. Best lots of Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford cross bullocks in forward condition made from 23/- to 25/- per cwt., with one or two exceptionally good lots 26/- to 27/-. Many useful lots of Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford cross bullocks and heifers in forward condition made from 20/6 to 22/- per cwt. Coloured polly bullocks 18/- to 22/- per cwt.; best lots horned bullocks up to 21/6 and 22/-, with thin and secondary sorts back to 15/- per cwt. Horned heifers 18/- to 21/- per cwt.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

The number of cattle entered for yesterday's sale was the largest this season. There was a representative attendance of both home and cross-Channel buyers, and all good cattle in forward condition met a better trade, and for these more money was obtained. Good well-bred young cattle also met a better demand, and, although there was little or no change in values of thin and secondary sorts virtually a complete clearance was made. Quotations:—Aberdeen-Angus and shorthorn pollies made from 19/- to 27/- per cwt., horned bullocks and heifers from 16/- to 24/- per cwt.

DUBLIN FRAUD CHARGES

INVESTORS GIVE EVIDENCE

"£25,000 A YEAR IN PROFITS"

THE trial of a former Lord Mayor of Dublin, and two other men, on charges of fraudulent conversion, conspiracy, falsification of a company's books, was continued yesterday in the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court, before Judge Davitt and a jury Ex-Alderman John J. Farrell, Vincent C. McDonnell and William J. Lyons, have been indicted on 31 counts (to which they have pleaded "not guilty") for alleged fraudulent conversion to the use of Associated Engineering Industries, Limited, (registered on 23rd February, 1933, with a nominal capital of £10,000), of £972 entrusted to them by thirteen persons, on condition that permanent employment would be given; for conspiracy to defraud by representing that the company was a sound investment, and had Government support; and for falsifying the company's books Farrell has been further accused of obtaining £1,000 worth of shares by pretending to sell to the company a quantity of oil.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. K. Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted for the Attorney-General; and the defending counsel are:—For Farrell, Mr. T. P. McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by Mr. M. Kiernan) for McDonnell, Mr. F. Duffy (instructed by Mr. P. Duffy); for Lyons, Mr. M. Nunan (instructed by Mr. R. P. Humphries.)

Thomas Gaffney, the first witness yesterday, said that he had been unemployed in February, 1933. He was now a clerk in the Department of Industry and Commerce. Following an advertisement in the Irish Press, which said that a manufacturing company about to start had vacancies for a secretary, director and some premium apprentices to engineering, he agreed to invest £100 in the Associated Engineering Co. The accused Lyons told him: "If we cannot employ you we will not accept your money." The witness and his brother invested £200.

"Lyons asked me if I knew any T.D.'s or senators," said the witness, "I said I did, and that I also knew some of the Ministers, but could not approach any of them. Lyons told me they wanted to keep the whole concern the right colour."

INVESTED £200

The witness said that none of the £200 invested had been repaid.

To the Judge, he said that for his own £100 he got one week's work. He had been influenced to make his investment by, among other things, the fact that McDonnell had a brother who was a priest; the fact that he relied to a certain extent on Farrell's reputation—"that he would not be in anything shady," and the fact that industries were being formed all over the country.

Cross-examined, the witness said he believed that three experts had come from Belgium; he could not say if the directors refused to have anything to do with them, and if McDonnell (who was not a director, but a technical expert) had had to pay their expenses. He heard Farrell say that he had interviewed Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, Vice President of the Executive Council, and that Mr. O'Kelly told him to go ahead with the project.

"I had been sitting on the fence with regard to the company's prospects until then," said the witness. He agreed that he had begun the present criminal proceedings by issuing a writ against the directors in the High Court. The writ was against other directors besides the accused men.

William J. Hans, national school teacher, Ballinasloe, said that he was told that the new company would have capital of £10,000 and that profits would be about £25,000 per annum. An investment of £250 or £300 would qualify one for a directorship.

"Finally," said the witness, "when I saw the prospects were so rosy I said I would endeavour to put up £250 capital. I was told that if I did my son would be guaranteed a good position in the company, as understudy for a Belgian expert."

He later received a letter saying that he had been unanimously elected a director on the understanding that he took a share allotment of at least £350. This (he was told) "is the smallest amount held by any one of the directors."

On the 15th April, 1933, the witness sent £100 for shares in the company and £10 for commission for Lyons. He had been dissatisfied about the amount of capital held by the company's principals, but thought the company would be able to function and would get the capital later.

The witness said he had been told that the Vice-President of the Executive Council had, at an interview, "inspired us with confidence as to the success of the company." He had not got his money back and his son had not been employed.

To the judge, Hans said McDonnell told him there would be a tariff of 85 per cent. on the goods that the company was to manufacture, and the company would have a monopoly in Ireland.

£10 OR MONEY?

David O'Connor, the next witness, said he resided now in London. Until November, 1932, he had been engineer and manager of the Portlaoighise Gas Co., which closed down at that date. He described an interview with Lyons, at which he said he was prepared to invest £10 in the company. Lyons said: "That is no good to me. I want money." (Laughter.) In telling Lyons who he was the witness said: "I was on all the public boards in Lei and have fairly good influence."

The witness invested £10 on the understanding that his son David would get good employment. He was told that among the articles to be manufactured would be "vacuum cleaners, concrete-mixer and dynamos," and that the company had a guarantee of £20,000 worth of orders arising out of the Shannon scheme for electrical accessories not manufactured in this country. His son got no employment. The witness did not try to get the £10 back; he did not want it.

Cross-examined, the witness said that after the first interview with Lyons the witness took a proposed share-agreement to a friend who was "very skilled in stocks and shares." He made his investment afterwards, and still believed his friend was "very able—no man more so—infallible." (Laughter.)

The witness referred to the company (in reply to other questions) as "this swindle."

THE BANK OF IRELAND BILL

EVIDENCE BEFORE JOINT COMMITTEE

COPORATION PROFITS TAX

A SITTING of the Joint Committee on the Bank of Ireland Bill, 1935, was held in Leinster House yesterday morning. Senator Michael Comyn presided, and the other members present were:—Deputies G. Bennett, B. Maguire, A. Haslett, and Senators Sir E. Coey Bigger, T. Johnson and T. Dowdall.

Mr. T. G. Marnan, barrister-at-law, and Mr. Rutherford, solicitor and Parliamentary agent, appeared for the promoters, the Bank of Ireland.

Mr. Marnan said that the Bank of Ireland was established by Royal Charter in May, 1783. That was before the days of limited liability, and at that time the entire capital of the bank was advanced. It was paid over into the Treasury and the Treasury were then responsible for the debts of the bank. It was actually provided that any individual who got a judgment for a debt against the bank could apply direct to the Treasury and get paid.

At that time the capital of the bank was £600,000. The bank was supposed to be a national bank and no other banking institution could carry on banking business or issue notes, for instance, in Dublin or within fifty miles of Dublin. That state of affairs continued until 1845, when all the other banks were allowed to carry on business within a radius of fifty miles of Dublin and in Dublin.

CAPITAL INCREASES

In 1791 the capital was increased to one million, in 1797 it was increased to one and a half millions. It was increased in 1808 to £2,500,000, and the final increase was in 1821, when the capital was increased to £3,000,000 of old Irish currency, which was equivalent to the present capital of the bank—£2,769,230 15s. 5d. This was the exact amount, and since 1821 the capital had remained constant.

As to the success of the bank of Ireland, its stability and security and the value of the shares spoke for themselves.

The Currency Act, passed in 1927, altered the position of the Bank of Ireland, which had been competing on fairly even terms with all the other banks up to the present. Formerly the Bank of Ireland was entitled to issue unsecured notes to the extent of £3,738,428. The effect of the Currency Act was to establish those consolidated notes which were not secured and to allocate to the shareholding banks a certain quantity of notes. The result was that, whereas the Bank of Ireland was entitled to issue unsecured notes to the extent of £3,738,428, their share of the consolidated notes under the Irish Free State was £1,760,000.

Not only were these consolidated notes cut down, but they were all secured by investments or securities lodged with the Currency Commission, so that, although they were carefully providing in the bill that any possible liability in respect of notes issued by the Bank of Ireland must be met by the shareholders or stockholders to the last penny of their own private resources if necessary, that probability was extremely slight, having regard to the fact that they must have security lodged with the Currency Commission to meet the consolidated note issue.

Under the Currency Commission the Bank of Ireland was really put in the same position as all the other banks. Having been put in that position, the Bank of Ireland found that, unlike the other banks, which were joint stock banks, it had no memorandum of association and was not incorporated under the Companies Acts.

POWERS BY CHARTER

It was purely a creature of statute and had only the powers given by charter and by Acts of Parliament, which were passed expressly dealing with it. To bring themselves into a position to carry on business properly, and in the ordinary way, they brought before Parliament a bill which subsequently became the Bank of Ireland Act of 1929. That was designed to give the directors powers which would have been given if they had been an ordinary bank. If they looked at the Act they would see that the principal section incorporated practically all the clauses that would be found in the ordinary memorandum of association of a limited company. At that time the bank was unlimited theoretically as regard all debt of every kind whatever.

If that had not been so there would have been a section in the Act of 1929 corresponding to the section with which they had to deal in this bill. In 1929, by reason of the fact that the Bank of Ireland was unlimited, it escaped the corporation profits tax imposed by the Act of 1920. This tax did not apply to companies where the liability of the members was unlimited. In 1925 the High Court decided that the Bank of Ireland, by reason of its unlimited liability, was not responsible for corporation profits tax. That was to the advantage of the bank when the 1929 bill came before the House. It was to the bank's interest to put up with the stigma of being unlimited where they were getting the advantage of about £60,000 a year.

Since then, unfortunately, the Bank of Ireland had not merely been made liable for corporation profits tax, but the rate of tax had been considerably increased. About £60,000 was the amount they were responsible for last year. Also, when they had their original note issue, they paid only a duty of 7s. per £100 outstanding. Now they paid, not merely on outstanding notes, but on the full amount of their authorised issue, whether outstanding or not. It was merely a matter of expediency when the 1929 Act came on, but conditions have altered since they became liable to corporation profits tax.

PURPOSE OF BILL

The present bill was intended to insert a section which would have been put into the 1929 bill had conditions been as they are now The bill was drafted following more or less the lines of the Companies Act, which provides for the practically unlimited liability of the shareholders in limited companies, so far as their note issue is concerned; but the Government draughtsmen thought it should be made clear that there could be no question of limitation. An amendment to that effect would be submitted.

The preamble of the bill having been formally proved,

Mr. Thomas F. Hennessy, Assistant General Manager, Bank of Ireland, gave evidence. He produced the charter, dated May 10th, 1783, and bore out counsel's statements as to the capital of the bank. The bank was not liable to corporation profits tax until after the passing of the Finance Act, 1932. This tax was founded on the Finance Act of 1930, and the High Court decided that the bank was not liable because the liability was unlimited. The immediate result of the Finance Act, 1932, was that the bank became liable for corporation profits tax, and it also became liable in respect of the previous year's profits.

Chairman—That is for both years?—Yes; we paid the two years in one. It is approximately about £60,000 a year.

He went on to say that the Bank of Ireland's authorised note issue in the Free State was £1,760,000, while in Northern Ireland its authorised note issue was £410,000. This was a fiduciary issue in Northern Ireland, and did not need to be covered by gold or silver coins. In the Irish Free State their issue of consolidated notes was secured by investments deposited with the Currency Commission. That note issue was secured with a margin.

NOTE ISSUE

Formerly the bank had an unsecured note issue of £3,738,428. On this they paid a stamp duty at the rate of 7s. per cent. on the amount of notes outstanding in the hands of the public. For their present authorised note issue of £1,760,000 the bank paid 3 per cent. on the full quota, whether they were able to use them or not.

They were now in exactly the same position as the individual joint stock banks. They had to go into the market and compete for business. It was the opinion of the directors that, so far as liability was concerned, apart from the question of bank notes, it would be to the advantage of the Bank of Ireland that they should have this limitation. That was why the bill had been introduced. But for the corporation profits tax the Bank of Ireland would have asked to have the liability limited in 1929.

A large amount of the Bank Stock was held by trustees, and it was the opinion of the directors that this trustee security should be made as attractive as possible. There was a dearth of trustee securities in Ireland now. With the exception of Great Southern Railway Debenture Stock, which was a trustee security by law until the end of this year, the railway stocks, which were formerly trustee securities had now gone.

It was general knowledge that the Ordinary stock must have paid a dividend for ten years in order that the Preference stock should be taken as trustee stock.

In reply to Sir E. Coey Bigger, the witness said that he could not give the amount of Bank of Ireland stock held in England by trustees

OUTSIDE STOCKHOLDERS

Replying to Senator Dowdall, the witness said that Bank of Ireland stock was still trustee stock in England. A quarter of the stockholders of the bank were outside the Free State.

Sir E. Coey Bigger—They are most likely trustees.

In reply to Senator Dowdall, the witness said that the other banks supported the Bank of Ireland in its desire to have the liability limited. The Currency Commission and the Department of Finance had no objection either.

In reply to Mr. Haslett, the witness said that this bill, when it became an Act, would make the stock more attractive to trustees. It was well known since November last that this bill was contemplated, and the bank had not received any objection from anyone, creditor or otherwise It would have no bearing on the ultimate security of the creditors, because the bank was in a sound position.

In reply to Mr. Johnson, witness said that the bill would bring the bank into line with the other banks. It was not done with the object of making the shareholders' holdings more valuable, but to relieve the anomaly of unlimited liability. Trustees were nervous about having the unlimited liability. For that reason trustees were disinclined to buy Bank of Ireland stock. Nervous holders asked the bank a question about unlimited liability, and if this were settled it would be good for the bank and good for the country. There was no apprehension as to the safety of the bank.

THE PUBLIC'S INTEREST

Mr. Maguire said he was not convinced of the necessity for the bill. Might not the abolition of the unlimited liability cause nervousness to trustees of limited means who were seeking safe investments, for young people under their care

Witness said he did not think so.

Mr. Maguire—Will it be any advantage whatever to the general public?

Witness said that he did not think they would be concerned

Mr. Johnson asked if there was any reason for proceeding with the bill before the report of the Banking Commission was published.

Witness said that the bank wanted the bill at once, and they did not think it was a matter for the Banking Commission.

Mr. Bennett asked if there was any danger that the removal of the unlimited liability would make timid depositors feel less secure.

Witness—I don't think there would be any grounds for timidity The bank is in such a strong position that no depositor need fear that his position is being altered from a practical point of view, though it is being altered theoretically.

This concluded the evidence of the witness and the Committee went into private session.

MAKING 'BAD FEET' SOUND AND STRONG AGAIN
SWOLLEN ANKLES AND LEGS AND VARICOSE VEINS
are fairly common among those who have suffered with Bad Feet for any length of time. Some wear elastic stockings, and are surprised when they are told that when their Feet are put right the swelling of their ankles, legs, and veins will disappear. This, of course, takes little time for Nature to repair the weak tissues and blood vessels. It is obvious however, why this further benefit follows the remedying of the Foot Troubles that are their causes.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

MOTORING CONVICTION AFFIRMED

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Charles Parkinson appealed from an order of the District Justice, who had sentenced him to one month's imprisonment and the suspension of his driving licence on the charge of Inspector Beggs, that, on the 23rd March last, he was under the influence of drink, and unfit to drive a car in South Great George's street.

The judge held that the decision of the District Justice was right, and said that he would affirm the conviction.

On the application of Mr. Nolan Whelan (instructed by Mr. Porter Taylor), who appeared for the appellant, the sentence of a month's imprisonment was altered to a fine of £20, the licence disqualification to stand.

Mr. T. Clarke appeared for the prosecution.

SUPPORT OF A CHILD

In the case of Sheila Sharkey against Charles Mulvaney, motor driver, Dean's Grange, the defendant appealed from an order of District Judge Cussen fining him £20, or, in the alternative, three months' imprisonment, for wilfully neglecting an illegitimate child of the complainant, of which the District Justice held Mulvaney was the putative father.

It appeared from the evidence that the complainant's child was born on the 25th of May, 1932, and that an order under the Illegitimate Children's (Affiliation Orders) Act, 1930, was made that the defendant should pay 7s. 6d. per week, with two guineas costs, to the plaintiff. The defendant did not pay any sum under that order, and a summons for wilful neglect, under the Children's Act, 1908, was served upon him.

Mr Gavan Duffy, S.C. (instructed by Messrs Larkin and Co), for the complainant, submitted that the putative father of the child was the parent within the meaning of the Children's Act, 1908, and that he was "legally liable" for the maintenance of the child

Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Mr. Herman Good), for the defendant, submitted that the putative father was not a parent within the meaning of the Act of 1908, and that the order made by the District Justice was simply a direction to pay towards the support of the child, and that the liability to maintain the child was entirely upon the mother.

ECHOES OF THE TOWN

Sporting Week : Opening of Hall of Industries : Famous Artist Back in London : The Dowager Lady Hemphill : A Popular Priest

BY KITTY CLIVE.

THIS week Dublin seems to be given over to smart women in neat tailor-mades, who arrived from the different counties to enjoy the thrill of Punchestown. The Kildare Hunt was a gathering place not alone for all the members of the Hunts in Ireland, but for the man-in-the-street, who loves his flutter on this big occasion, to say nothing of the women, who went in their thousands. Glorious Punchestown is as dear to the Irish heart as the Derby. As the Dáil was sitting on Wednesday, only three Senators represented the political world. Senator Quirke, a splendid rider, whose exploits are known all over Tipperary, was there with his wife, and Senators McEllin and D. I. Robinson.

At Ballsbridge

The Minister for Industry and Commerce, Mr. Sean Lemass, will open the Hall of Industries at the R.D.S. on Tuesday next. It will be an important social function, for which invitations have been issued. This elaborate structure is a fine achievement of the Society, and I believe will strike the visitors by the effort made to bring artistry and imagination into industrial life. After the opening ceremony the guests will be conducted to the Members' Hall, where the first of the series of mannequin parades under the auspices of the Women's Industrial Development Association will be held. Senator Wyse Power, Mrs. Austin Stack, Mrs. P. J. Ruttledge, Mrs. James Ryan and a committee of the organisation, have been working on this feature of the Spring Show for many months, and thirteen of the largest city firms are co-operating. The first display will be the Irish evening gowns, which will be shown under artificial light by a group of professionally trained mannequins.

MR. S. LEMASS.

Sir John Lavery

Mr. Jack McEnery and his wife, who is the late Lady Lavery's daughter, came up from Kilkenny with their horse, La Politesse, which ran well in the Maiden Plate over the Conyngham Course. Sir John Lavery, who had been staying with Mrs. McEnery for a rest after his illness, returned suddenly to London. The sturdy artist refused to remain in the country as soon as he felt better, and left for London to finish his pictures commissioned for the Jubilee. The other morning a telegram was received at Baldonnel to have an aeroplane in readiness, and he arrived as briskly as ever at the aerodrome, and set off for his London studio. His energy is a surprise to all his friends.

Dowager Lady Hemphill

Lady Hemphill is another visitor to Dublin this week. She is leaving to-night to attend the celebrations for the King's Jubilee. She tells me she has a fine seat on the House of Lords' stand, which is placed quite close to Buckingham Palace, and will have a splendid view of the pageant. She will also be present at the ceremony in Westminster Hall, which will be one of the most colourful functions of the celebrations. Lord and Lady Hemphill are going later, but the Dowager Lady Hemphill will be absent for about three weeks.

LADY HEMPHILL.

Sir Thomas Molony

One of the visitors to Dublin this week was Sir Thomas Molony. He tells me he crosses several times in the year to attend the meetings of the National Bank, to which he is legal adviser. His position as Vice-Chancellor of Dublin University also brings him to the city, and he enjoys these trips when he meets all his old friends. Sir Thomas and Lady Molony now live at Wimbledon, but he sometimes takes a summer house in Ireland. A few years ago the family came to Shankill for the season, but this year they are going on a cruise abroad.

SIR T. MOLONY.

The Rock Road

Among the pleasant parties of last week were those given by Mrs. Henry Moore and Lady Trimlestown. I was reminded the other day at Newtown House of what a gay place old Blackrock was in the eighteenth century. Just close to Newtown is Maritimo, the former residence of Lord Cloncurry. It was here that Emily Lawless wrote her most famous book on the Wild Geese. Lord Cloncurry, writing from Maritimo, tells of his gardens, and that here were to be seen some of the most beautiful flowers, not to be compared with the Riviera. Another old red brick house close by was the summer home of the Viceroy in Grattan's Parliament, where magnificent functions were held.

Versailles

When Mr. Desmond MacCarthy, whose delightful book, "Experiences," I have just finished, went to visit Versailles, he took intense pleasure in seeing the people of Paris enjoy their Sunday afternoon in the once famous gardens, exclusively the right of Louis IV.'s Court. Unlike most people who resent the absence of solitude in these historic mansions, Mr. MacCarthy watched the crowds moving about the domain of the Grand Monarch, the happy families squatting on the grass, the listless processions of quite drab people loitering along the alleys and past the statues of the Royal garden.

Mr. Little at Lourdes

Mr. P. J. Little, the Parliamentary Secretary to Mr. de Valera returned last night from Lourdes, where he went for the great Peace Triduum. Mr. Little is a brancardier of the Lourdes Society, and is one of the members ever ready to give valuable assistance when the sick and helpless make their pilgrimages to the famous Grotto. Mr. Little is one of the most quiet and modest people in the Dail.

MR. P. J. LITTLE.

Barrister's Son

Pat Marrinan, the boxer, was an engineering student at Belfast before he joined the Palestine Police, and was discovered by the Australian, George Cook, who has great hopes for his future. His father, Mr. P. A. Marrinan, B.L., was formerly a Divisional Commander in the R.I.C. until the Treaty, when he resigned, and has now a large practice in Belfast. Perhaps the best-known member of this interesting family is Father Pat Boyle, the Parish Priest of Anderstown and the young boxer's uncle. His presbytery is an art gallery of horses, and he is one of the best judges. But he minds his flock well, and built a magnificent church, free of debt, to his parishioners, through a large sum of money given to him by the Misses Hamill. He also built Trench House, now occupied by the Most Rev. Dr. Mageean, the Bishop of Down and Connor.

BIRD'S JELLIES

AIR GIRL FOR IRELAND

Miss Naomi Heron-Maxwell, who will be seen at Sir Alan Cobham's air displays at various centres throughout Ireland in the next few weeks, is 21 years of age, and has taken up parachuting as an amateur. She speaks four languages, and was engaged as a secretary, till she learned to fly.

Her accomplishments include flying, gliding, riding, ski-ing, skating, swimming, tennis and motor cycling.

"I have joined Sir Alan Cobham's display," she says, "because I love flying, and I am glad to have this opportunity of demonstrating parachutes in a useful way. I regard the parachute as a well-tried invention that adds to the safety of flying, and I want to show that no one should hesitate to use it if the emergency arises."

Daughter of Lady Heron-Maxwell, Naomi is the sister of Sir Patrick Heron-Maxwell, ninth baronet. Her family comes from Springkell, in Scotland. Her first parachute jump ended in a severe bump. She fell awkwardly and was badly shaken. Most people would have had enough, and never tried the experience again. Not Miss Heron-Maxwell. She immediately called for another parachute and made another jump—this time perfectly.

When the Wardrobe is Tidied

TACKLING THE JOB IN A THOROUGH MANNER

IT is a real thrill to open wide the wardrobe doors and be greeted by the orderliness of "each thing in its place!" There actually exist women who can do this kind of thing, without effort, any time of the year.

Others, like the writer, content themselves with an upheaval once a year, preferably in the month of May, when every single thing is taken out of the wardrobe and only the "wearable" put back again.

The amount of clothing and "treasure" to be disposed of or destroyed on these occasions is amazingly greater than the replacements.

A DAY'S WORK

Forcing winter out of the wardrobe is a big job, and should be tackled early on an otherwise free day. No delays should be countenanced, and the definite object kept in view from the moment the first garment is removed until the key is turned on the finished job.

The floor is a roomy hold-all, but its use entails much tiresome bending; it is preferable to commandeer small tables. As the contents of the wardrobe are removed they can be classified at once as wearable, for discard, to be burned, and for renovation.

Method of this description halves the work.

When empty, the wardrobe shelves, drawers and walls should be dusted vigorously with a soft chamois, which has been wrung out of water, containing a good odourless disinfectant. While the chemist can be relied on to supply moth destroyer, it should not be forgotten that newspaper is moth proof.

This is particularly useful knowledge when putting away furs. Indeed, any clothes which are good enough to put away for use in a subsequent season should, after a strong brushing, be carefully parcelled out of sight. Such treatment imparts an extraordinary air of freshness quite out of proportion to the small bother of tying up the parcel.

FITTINGS

Modern wardrobes are well fitted with rods to take coat hangers, bars to support shoes, and rails to hold ties. Such additions add greatly to the ease with which the wardrobe can be kept tidy, and are space-saving.

These ideas can be introduced quite inexpensively in an old-fashioned or unfitted wardrobe. Great care should be taken when measuring for rods, as any inaccuracy may render the rod useless.

Tape measures, beloved of the dressmaker, cannot be relied upon for carpentry measurements. If a reliable measure is not available and a tape measure is used, then it should be brought with the order for the rods and the order given for so many feet or inches as measured by accompanying tape.

Every wardrobe should contain more hangers than dresses or coats. No well-groomed woman will allow her frocks or coats to hang by loops. Hangers may be of the cheapest variety and still suit their purpose, but if their wood is coarse there is a danger of it rubbing delicate fabric.

Cheap hangers should, therefore, be covered in silk before they are used, they will then look nicer and give better service. When following a definite colour scheme in a room it is effective to enamel the coat hangers in the predominant shade.

HOARDING

Treasure hoarding in wardrobes should be rigorously avoided. Clothes no longer useful to their owner should be sent to a jumble sale or the equivalent. Evening frocks and shoes are sometimes a problem when they get tired-looking; actually they are best sellers at a jumble sale.

The wardrobe of an up-to-date woman is incomplete without a receipt file. In addition to the fact that it is business-like to keep receipts for a certain time, these receipts are often useful if an identical article is required. They usually carry all kinds of technical information besides just the £ s. d.

A wardrobe diary and pencil should hang inside the door to record the names, addresses and recommendation of dressmakers, milliners, sewing women, upholsterers, decorators, carpenters, plumbers, gardeners, etc., people so frequently required in the service of a home.

So then stands the wardrobe, full of garments, fresh and summery, thrillingly tidy and serviceable.

How To Make Jubilee Cake

IN view of the Jubilee of next week, the following recipe for Jubilee cake may interest many Irish housewives:—

Ingredients—11 ozs. self-raising flour, 12 ozs. castor sugar, 8 eggs, 12 ozs. margarine, ½ lb. stoned raisins, ½ lb. currants, ½ lb. sultanas, 4 ozs. chopped mixed peel, 6 ozs. glace cherries, 4 ozs. sweet almonds, 1 teaspoonful grated nutmeg, grated rind of 1 lemon, and pinch of salt.

Line a large cake tin with greased paper. Chop the peel and cut the cherries in quarters. Blanch and chop the almonds. Mix all the fruit with the nutmeg and lemon rind. Sift the flour and salt together. Cream the margarine and sugar together and beat well. Add the eggs, one at a time, and beat them in. Add a quarter of the fruit. Continue until all the flour and all the fruit have been added, and beat until the fruit is evenly distributed. Pour the mixture into a cake tin. Smooth the surface, leaving the sides slightly higher than the middle. Bake for 4½ hours at Regulo Mark 2.

This cake should be made at least a week before it is to be cut, and kept in a tin, wrapped in grease-proof paper.

ALMOND PASTE.

Ingredients—8 ozs. ground almonds, 6 ozs. castor sugar, 6 ozs. icing sugar, beaten egg, ½ teaspoonful almond essence and 1 teaspoonful orange flower water.

Sieve the ground almonds and the icing sugar. Mix with the castor sugar. Add the almond essence to the beaten egg and mix to a soft paste. Dust a pastry board with a little icing sugar. Knead the paste well and roll out to a round, the size of the cake. Brush the surface of the cake lightly with white of egg and press the almond paste on. Smooth the surface and the sides to a neat shape. Cover the top with white icing, and pipe with the same icing, coloured red and blue with vegetable colouring, in an appropriate design. Tie a red, white and blue cake frill round the cake.

WHITE ICING.

Ingredients—4 ozs. loaf sugar, 1 tablespoonful water, icing sugar, vanilla, orange flower water and almond essence.

Dissolve the loaf sugar in the water and boil it for a few minutes, then strain the syrup into a cup. Sieve about 8 ozs. of icing sugar into a bowl, add the hot syrup and mix the sugar to a perfectly smooth paste. Beat with a wooden spoon for five minutes, when the icing should be white and smooth. Add the flavourings and beat them well in. A few drops of vanilla and almond essence will be enough, and about a dessertspoonful of orange flower water.

If the icing is too stiff, add a little more warm water. If it is not stiff enough, add a little sieved icing sugar.

GIANT FRESCO DISCOVERED

IN FRENCH BASILICA

A colossal and magnificent fresco of Christ the King, dating back to the Middle Ages, has been discovered in the Basilica of the Sacred Heart at Paray-le-Monial, a pilgrimage centre near Dijon and Nevers, in France.

The figure of Christ, clad in royal robes, is twenty feet high, and is pictured blessing the beholder. About the central figure are depicted the symbolic attributes of the four Gospel writers. This fresco was discovered by workmen who were employed making repairs within the basilica. While removing the plaster coating of the cupola great was their astonishment when they came upon this fresco. The Ministry of Fine Arts was immediately informed, and arrangements made for its restoration. It is described as being in "passable" condition.

Miss Jean Batten, the holder of three women's air records—the outward, the homeward, and the double journey between England and Australia—is a slim girl of 25. Her home is in Wellington, New Zealand.

Because Jean Batten relied so largely on Grapenuts between "hops," and as a memento of the historic flight, the makers of this food are offering a picture of Miss Batten, post free, in return for a Grapenuts packet top. The address is 38 Upper Ground, London, S.E.1.

SHRINE OF JAMES II.

ATTRACTS VISITORS TO SAINT GERMAIN

On February 6th, it was exactly 250 years since James II. became King of England, but after a brief reign of three years he was dethroned in 1688. In that year James came to Saint-Germain-en-Laye, an attractive Paris suburb, where he received lavish hospitality from his Royal cousin, Louis XIV. Here also he died in 1701.

His stay in Saint Germain is memorialised in the local church, where his shrine still attracts British pilgrims. "La Chapelle de Jacques II." is in white marble, with a lengthy Latin inscription, and owes its inception to King George IV., but chiefly to Queen Victoria, who had it restored in 1857. A tablet on the exterior of the church recalls the Queen's visit.

The verger of the church states that this chapel, dedicated to James II., attracts more visitors and more attention than anything else within the edifice.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Beau Nash : A Silent Cinema

The Young People

It does not seem so long ago since Miss Bluebell Hope-Johnstone was quite a little girl. Now she is eighteen and about three inches, at least, taller than her mother, Lady Ainsworth, with whom I saw her at Punchestown. Miss Hope-Johnstone has now left school and is coming out. I believe Lady Ainsworth is taking her to London for a month, and they go this week. Next season she will be presented at Court. Another of the younger generation who has already come to the front is Miss Mansfield, who not only won the Kildare Hunt Cup with Congress on Tuesday (Mr. Andrew Moore up), but was also owner of the second horse. She also led in a winner last year. Miss Mansfield, who is a daughter of Colonel Mansfield, is one of the younger followers of the Kildare Hounds, whose riding has always been impressive.

Grock

A correspondent writes:—Did Dublin not get an opportunity of seeing Grock at a "flying matinee" in the former Theatre Royal a few years before the Great War? I was absent from the city at the time, but my inability to see him then was largely compensated during the summer of 1930 in a little cinema theatre on the Boulevard Montmartre. Here he was featured in one of the most entertaining films ever produced. It depicted the return from his retirement of a famous clown to save the fortunes of the music hall that had been the scene of his first appearances. In the course of a long show (the picture ran for eighty minutes) Grock repeated most of the comicalities that had made his reputation. I can still remember the embarrassment of the escort of une jeune Parisienne sitting near me, the lady's hysterics led to the withdrawal of both of them long before the reel was finished. One of Grock's quips may afford your readers some amusement. Struggling with an unmanageable 'cello, he finally, in exasperation, summons his stage assistant, who for some subtle reason, appeared to be an American. At any rate, his French failed him when explaining the 'cello's eccentricities, and, to Grock's increasing bewilderment, he broke into Anglo-Saxon. Seeing Grock scratch his head, he asks: "Parlez-vous anglais, m'sieu?" "Non! non! m'sieu." "Pourquoi pas, m'sieu?" "Catholique!" retorts Grock, laconically. By the way, has his autobiography, published last year, not reached the Dublin book shops yet?

"The Monarch of Bath"

I see that a tablet has recently been unveiled to the memory of Beau Nash at Bath, who did so much to make that city a fashionable resort in the eighteenth century. That period has been described as the "golden age" of Bath. Owing to the properties of its saline and chalybeate waters it became celebrated as a health resort. Nash provided the Assembly Rooms, where wealth and fashion congregated, as described in the pages of Fielding, Smollett and Dickens. Queen Anne visited the town in 1703. Its springs, famous since the time of the Roman occupation, were reputed to be a remedy for most of the ailments to which human flesh is heir. But little was done to provide amusements for, or promote the comfort of, visitors till Nash's arrival from London in 1705. He effected marvellous improvements in the amenities of the place and the tone of society. Under his ceremonial rule Bath enjoyed much prosperity. The son of a Welsh gentleman of decayed fortune, Nash lived in great magnificence. He travelled in a coach and six, with laced lackeys and French horses. Towards the end of his days his fortunes declined, and the Corporation of Bath, in recognition of his public services, gave him a pension of six score guineas per annum.

Arbiter Elegantiarum

Beau Nash's reforms shed a curious light on the state of society of that time. Gentlemen were prohibited from appearing in top boots at dances in those assembly rooms, where he held undisputed sway as master of the ceremonies for fifty years, but were obliged to come in shoes and stockings. Nor were they allowed to smoke in the ballrooms or to carry swords, the latter restriction being aimed at the suppression of quarrelling and consequent duelling. If Beau Nash heard of a challenge being given he had both parties arrested on the spot. Ladies were not permitted to wear white aprons in public, this dress being considered suitable only for their women-in-waiting. The sedan chairmen also, who had become numerous and insolent, came in for attention. There had been quarrels with gentlemen who preferred walking to being carried to their homes at night. But Nash introduced order and civility among the chairmen, too. Late hours also were against the rules. The assembly rooms closed, and all dancing came to an end every night punctually at 11 o'clock, nor was any infringement of this rule permitted to the most exalted personages.

The First Invasion from England

There are some interesting facts to be gleaned occasionally in the by-ways of history, writes a correspondent, which are liable to escape the notice of those not specially interested in the subject. I imagine that most people, if they were asked when the first invasion of this country from England took place, would reply that it was in 1169, when Fitzstephen and his Normans landed at Bannow, near Wexford. But the answer would not be correct, since a previous invasion occurred in the year 684. Without any provocation, and apparently for no reason except plunder, Egfrid, King of Northumbria, sent an army to the east coast of Ireland under his general, Berta. The latter wasted and despoiled the whole coast from Dublin to Drogheda, destroyed and robbed churches and monasteries, and carried many of the inhabitants into captivity. Unfortunately, the Irish King, Finnachta, seems to have been a person of little or no military capacity; for the resistance which he offered to the Saxons was feeble, and the raiders did much as they pleased. The Venerable Bede condemns this invasion by the Northumbrian King, and laments that he should have attacked an inoffensive nation, which had always been friendly to the English. He goes on to add that "the Irish prayed long and fervently for vengeance," which was accomplished during the following year, when Egfrid was defeated and slain by the Picts.

One Silent Cinema

There is still in operation a single silent cinema, either in Great Britain or Ireland, according to the figures recently published by the statistical department of the Western Electric Company. The figures show that there were at the beginning of April 4,994 cinemas, of which 356 were closed, leaving an effective total of 4,281, or about one cinema for every 10,000 of the total population. Of the effective total 3,376 are located in England, 446 in Scotland, 288 in Wales and 171 in Ireland. In view of the widespread lamentations about the spread of the cinema in Ireland, it is of great interest to note that Scotland, with an almost similar number of people, has more than two and a half times the number of cinemas, and that the small population of Wales is catered for by nearly twice as many cinemas as Ireland. With 356 cinemas closed, of which 63 are in Ireland, the prosperity of the cinema business would appear to be less obvious elsewhere than it is here. And during the past five years, since November, 1930, there has been an actual decrease in the number of cinemas in the British Isles of 199.

A Hamlet of Huts

Rambling along the Bohernabreena road the other afternoon I noticed a number of wooden huts built on the banks of the Dodder. These are inhabited by people with families. I congratulate them on selecting such a charming spot, but it is to be hoped that these tiny houses are only a temporary expedient until the County Council is in a position to provide houses for the tenants. It would be a pity if the gorse-covered banks of the river were robbed of their rare beauty by this ugly-looking drab-coloured hamlet of huts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IRISH TOURIST ASSOCIATION

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I congratulate you on your genuinely constructive and helpful leading article on the Tourist Industry.

You rightly say that we hotel-keepers—the hosts of the nation—have made many improvements during the past few years, but let me assure you the inquisition policy of the late Government initiated by Mr. Blythe when Finance Minister, and perpetuated to a lesser degree by the present Government, has done more to retard that progress than anything else.

The hotel-keeper who introduced improvements in his hotel, being immediately suspect by the income tax authorities, his assessment was increased, and had to explain where the money for the improvements came from, and he was lucky if he was not assessed for 60 per cent. excess profits alleged to be withheld from the British Government.

In my opinion, the Irish Tourist Association is not progressing. Since its income has become more or less stabilised by State aid, it has gone rusty, and it does not deserve all the nice things said of it at the annual meeting. Some of its principal officers are devoting most of their time to other services.

Some of the honorary offices are held by men who never spend their holidays in Ireland, and one of them, to my knowledge, never does a stroke of work to help the industry. The railway and carrying companies are doing less for touring than those of any other country.

The Swiss, German, and other railways announce much cheaper travelling for tourists, and the big tourist companies boost Continental resorts and never Ireland. They will book you, as they advertise daily in the English Press, for Lucerne, Nice, etc., etc., at an inclusive and cheap rate; but, except you are prepared to stay at the railway hotels in Ireland, neither Cooks nor the railway companies can offer anything like they offer abroad. A good start has been made in Dublin lately for the training of hotel staffs, but much more should be done in the matter, as it is almost impossible to get good chefs or cooks in Ireland.

Why should not money be available at a cheap rate for hotel improvements. Such work would decrease unemployment and provide, when completed, further employment of a congenial nature.

What efforts are being made to attract foreign tourists, outside of America, to this country, particularly at a time when the rates of exchange favour such visitors?

In my opinion, the Irish Tourist Association is now a mutual admiration society and is going to seed.—Yours, etc.,

JAFFA ORANGES AND IRISH GRASS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It would appear that Jaffa oranges are at present the most popular fruit in Ireland. Judging by the shop windows, not only in our large cities, but in our provincial towns and villages, the quantity imported into Ireland must be enormous. What must be the number imported into London and other great English cities? I do not know the history of the Jaffa orange; but it is a thing which the world values and is willing to pay for. When the people of Jaffa discovered this fact they laid themselves out to supply the popular demand, and they must be reaping a rich harvest. I suppose there is something in the soil and climate of Jaffa and the surrounding country which is peculiarly favourable to the growth of this fruit. If we in Ireland could grow the same fruit we would concentrate on it at once and make our fortunes. But we cannot; our climate is unsuitable. But if we cannot grow Jaffa oranges, we can grow something which leaves Jaffa nowhere; and that is grass. Ireland beats the world in grass, as Jaffa beats the world in oranges.

Now, what should we think of the sanity of the Jaffians if, finding that John Bull was the best customer for their oranges, their politicians and patriots decided that it was inconsistent with their national dignity and independence to occupy the position of a fruit-garden for John Bull, and proceeded to destroy the orange industry and to substitute for it the laying down of the orange groves in grass, and the rearing of cattle and sheep, and the erection of creameries throughout the country? Yet this is, in principle, what the Irish Free State is doing. It is destroying the industry for which our country, of all countries in the world, is best fitted by nature. It has reduced our stock-raisers to the verge of bankruptcy. Many once prosperous farmers and their families are now in want of the bare necessaries of life. They have no money to give their growing boys and girls a decent start in life. Up to a few years ago the birth of a calf was a joy and a thing that had money in it. The smaller the farmer, the more the calf was valued. To-day the calf is fed at a loss from the moment of its birth. I have calves myself, and recently I have asked butchers what I am to do with them. They can give me no help. Our Government says: "Kill them and skin them." Am I to do this myself or to ask my man to do it, or am I to pay a butcher to do it? He would charge more for the job than I would get for the skin—if he would do it at all. It is the same as if the Jaffians were told to skin their oranges, and that, perhaps, somebody would start a factory to make commercial alcohol out of their skins. By exporting cattle we bring money into the country, but we make sugar at the expense of the general taxpayer. The truth is that to-day we are feeding the Free State dog with bits of his own tail. What shall we do when he has no more tail left?—Yours, etc.,

RE IRISH REGIMENTS AND GALLIPOLI

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have read with care the despatches which might concern the activities of Irish troops, and agree with Mr. P. Byrne that sufficient credit was not given to the Irish regiments, either on the Western Front or where they did their greatest work, in Gallipoli. But in Gallipoli all the regiments are treated as one, and no outstanding credit is given to any particular unit; and, after all, the various Irish Fusiliers did no more than the Lancashire or the Border regiments.

I entirely disagree, however, with the statement that the Gallipoli campaign was fatuous. We are inclined to describe most of the engagements in which we were defeated as fatuous undertakings. The attack on the Dardanelles had a very definite purpose behind it, and the only reason why it was unsuccessful was the fact that the Turkish positions were too strong for the attackers. The chief objects in the Dardanelles were, primarily, to open the passage for Russian corn, and also to safeguard India, to prevent the Turks reinforcing the Germans in France, and to bring to a close the war in the Eastern theatre.

I do not think that Mr. Byrne is acquainted with the actual facts concerning Gallipoli or that he has really considered the matter, otherwise he could not fail to be impressed by the objects behind it, and by the organisation which enabled operations to be carried on a thousand miles away.—Yours, etc.,

SEA BIRDS' NESTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I recently visited Capel Island, at the entrance to Youghal Harbour, which is an extensive nesting place for sea birds, and was very much disgusted to see that almost every nest had been robbed at no distant date.

Although assured by the local boatmen who brought me from the mainland that nobody had visited the island this year, I found the tell-tale newspaper, with a date that proved my suspicions were correct.

I also was told by a friend, who last year visited the island at this time, that one of the fisherman's sons accompanied the party and collected a large hamper of eggs, but on being told there was no room for them in the boat, wantonly poured them out on the foreshore.

It is difficult to imagine that in a Christian country, where nature's beauty is so appreciated by the majority of people, that such destruction of useful, interesting and harmless birds should be allowed to pass by without restraint. Why should not the Government, which is thoroughly alive to the beauties of our island, not create sanctuaries, as has been done with such excellent effect in other countries, or prohibit the destruction or capture of birds or eggs which are not used in the edible sense by a civilised community?—Yours, etc.,

HOUSE PURCHASE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I read with interest in a Dublin paper last week a letter on above subject. The writer complains that, although prepared to put down a deposit of £150 on a £700 house, he was unable to borrow the balance required at a less rate than 21s. 9d. per week, which works out at 10 per cent. on £550.

This seems an absurdly high rate when houses of the £500 to £700 type in the areas near London (where rents are very much higher than in Dublin) can be purchased on a deposit of as little as £20, with weekly payments of from 16s. to 20s.

Is it possible that we have not in this country a building or other society through which loans could be obtained for the purchase of small houses at anywhere near the scale operating in England?

A company, or society, to finance purchasers of small houses at reasonable rates would also be of great help in the matter of unemployment, as it would enable various building schemes to go forward at once.—Yours, etc.,

DIOCESAN BAZAAR

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—We have received some inquiries from willing helpers who would like to assist with their cars in bringing people to the Diocesan Hall, Upper Baggot street, should the tram strike unfortunately continue over next week. May we say that printed cards, bearing the words "Diocesan Bazaar," which owners might display on their cars when going in the direction of Upper Baggot street or returning therefrom, will be available at this address?

Their kind co-operation will be very much appreciated and most helpful, particularly to those who usually hesitate to ask for a lift. We shall also be glad to hear from any kind friends who are in a position to place their cars at the disposal of the committee for conveying visitors to and from the bazaar. While we are delighted to know that arrangements in this respect have already been made by some of the parishes taking part in the bazaar, we are anxious that no one should be precluded from attending owing to lack of transport.—Yours, etc.,

ISLE OF MAN FOR HOLIDAYS

The forty-first edition of the Isle of Man official guide, which is newly published, shows this holiday isle as it appears to visitors, most of the illustrations being snaps taken last year by entrants in the Isle of Man annual photographic competition. Older than most resort guides, it is brighter and better than ever. A post-card to the Secretary, Publicity Board, Isle of Man, will bring one a copy.

THE COOMBE HOSPITAL

WORK OF LINEN GUILD

LOOKING TO THE COMMISSION

THE Lord Mayor of Dublin (Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D.) presided at the annual meeting of the Coombe Hospital Linen Guild, which was held in the hospital yesterday.

The annual report, read by the honorary secretary (Mrs. Michael Murphy) stated that the work accomplished during the year was, on the whole, satisfactory, and the best thanks of the committee were due to all the members and their friends who so loyally continued to give support and encouragement.

The annual bridge tournament, organised by the Matron (Miss O'Carroll), again had realised a substantial amount for the funds. The response to the special appeal for the help of young people had been particularly gratifying. Many new workers had been enrolled, and a regular supply of work was assured from the students at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Lower Leeson street.

When it was realised, concluded the report, that 1,254 babies were born in the hospital, 1,494 babies born in the district, and attended by the staff, and 9,733 patients attended at the dispensaries during 1934, the need for new members readily would be appreciated.

The President of the College of Physicians, Dr. Agar Matson, proposing the adoption of the report, said that the hospital was doing great work. He thought that other institutions might with advantage imitate the scheme for training girls of the convent schools to devote some of their time towards doing work for the hospital.

Mrs. Verschoyle seconded the adoption of the report, and the motion was carried with acclamation.

WORTHY OF SUPPORT

"That the Linen Guild is worthy of support," was then proposed by the Very Rev. Canon Hayden, P.P., who said that the hospital was excellent in every way. He was glad, he said, of the opportunity of telling the public of the efficiency and skill of the medical staffs, the nursing staffs and the Matron from the purely medical point of view. There was, however, another aspect: the spiritual point of view, which he would place first.

"We are attached to the hospital to look after the spiritual interests of the people of the district and of the babies," said Canon Hayden; "and I have nothing but praise for the attention the Matron and the staffs pay to the sick when they are in danger of dying."

Without thought of earthly reward, they gave their labour and time towards helping those who could not help themselves.

Alderman Hubbard Clark, seconding the resolution, which was passed, said that he considered the Linen Guild the mouthpiece of the hospital: it held annual meetings, and the public were able to realise the good work which was being done.

The Hospitals Commission which had been appointed by the Government had an enormous amount of work to do, and they, the governors of the hospital, hoped that soon the Commission's inquiries might come to a close, so that they might be able to take improvements in hand.

LACK OF ACCOMMODATION

The Matron and nursing staffs were handicapped by lack of accommodation in the hospital. Plans were ready and had been submitted, and they were only waiting for the final decision of the Commission, which they fervently hoped might come soon.

The Lord Mayor spoke of the wonderful work which was being done at the hospital and paid a tribute to the staffs and the Matron. He was glad to see that in these days of depression people were still mindful of the splendid work that was being done by the Coombe Hospital.

In the Corporation they had been talking and discussing hospitals a good deal, and he was glad of the opportunity of saying that the Coombe Hospital had received special mention as being very satisfactory, indeed.

He recommended the suggestion put before the Guild to encourage members to bring in as many young persons as they could and interest them in the work of the hospital.

SILVER JUBILEE STAMPS

The issue of "Gibbons' Stamp Monthly" for May contains a full record, with illustrations, of the remarkable series of stamps issued by Great Britain and the Colonies to celebrate the Silver Jubilee of King George V. Every Dominion or Crown Colony is represented—except the Irish Free State. Mr. Fred J. Melville contributes the article on "The King as a Philatelist," and Mr. Frederick Wall deals with "The Silver Jubilee Stamps." Needless to say, no more capable experts could have been secured to write most interesting articles on these subjects. The editor (Mr. Stanley Phillips) has a fascinating article on "The Empire Stamps of the Reign," profusely illustrated with the finest types of King's Heads and pictorials. It is safe to say that during the last twenty-five years a glamour has been added to the hobby of collecting British Empire stamps, which will last as long as the pursuit of philately itself.

THE "CHURCH OF IRELAND GAZETTE"

Readers of this week's Church of Ireland Gazette will have the full text of the Archbishop of Dublin's Easter sermon in Christ Church Cathedral. Dr. Kingsmill Moore will delight horticulturists with "Joys of the Garden" for May; Layman writes on "Hitlerism and Christianity." The King's Jubilee and Ireland as a holiday resort inspire other writers. News and views are to be found in the diocesan and parochial sections and in the correspondence.

Daily Programme Review

NORTHERN IRELAND: Drama, "Rose O'Neill," by Guy Wilson, 8.20.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: "My Country," symphonic poem by Smetana, 10.20.

SOTTENS: Orchestral Concert. Contemporary Swiss Composers, 8.

SMETANA, the famous Czech composer, and founder of the National School of Modern Czech Music, showed signs of his genius at a very early age. When only five he took part in a Haydn quartet, and at six he made a public début as a pianist. Among his large list of compositions, which cover a wide field in music, Smetana composed a cycle of symphonic poems under the general title of "Má Vlast" (My Country), which, although they are all founded on national subjects, have served to carry his fame far afield. The work is made up of six parts, the fourth—a pastoral entitled "From the Fields and Groves of Bohemia"—being specially well known in this country. In 1909 Sir Henry Wood played the whole series in London in the course of the Promenade Concerts. The entire cycle is frequently given in Czechoslovakia. This week "My Country" will be broadcast in the B.B.C. programmes, in two parts. Jirak, the eminent Czech conductor and composer, will direct the B.B.C. Orchestra in both performances. The first half will be given to-night and the second half tomorrow in the Regional programme.

Another important broadcast is that of the concert by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, which at present is on a visit to England. Since 1906, when the Philharmonic was brought over for the first time, the famous Viennese orchestra has paid frequent visits under various brilliant conductors. This year it is under the guidance of Bruno Walter.

To-night the concert will be given in Birmingham Town Hall, from whence it will be relayed. The first part consists of Schubert's Symphony No. 7 in C. After the interval the programme is devoted to music by Wagner, when Vera de Villiers (soprano) will sing "Dreams," "Sorrows," and "Be Still" ("Träume," "Schmerzen," and "Stehe Still"), accompanied by the orchestra. Presumably this is the only concert of the tour that will be relayed.

Three-quarters of an hour (the allotted programme time) being too short to review the whole life of Livingstone, Mr. Gough has devised a programme in which he concentrates on "Livingstone the Man." Part of the broadcast will come from the actual room in the tenement in Blantyre where the famous explorer was born, which now is made into a memorial. The remainder will be relayed from Glasgow.

At 8.30, on the Dublin, Athlone and Cork wavelengths, listeners will hear the third talk on the forthcoming Spring Show, by Mr. Edward Bohane, Director of the Royal Dublin Society.

VIVISECTION IN FREE STATE

DUBLIN MEETING'S PROTEST

THE SWEEPSTAKE FUNDS

A MEETING of the Dublin Branch of the National Anti-Vivisection Society, which was held in the Shelbourne Hotel, Dublin, yesterday, protested against the suggested allocation of portion of the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstakes funds to research work, which, speakers at the meeting alleged, would involve the practice of vivisection on animals.

Mrs. M. Blewitt, Finglas, who presided, said that the object of the meeting was to strengthen the hands of those who were organising the protest against the devoting of sweepstake funds to the carrying out of experiments on animals, which experiments would not only involve cruelty to the unfortunate animal subjects, but would also prove useless from a scientific point of view.

Mr. G. H. Bowker, organising secretary of the National Anti-Vivisection Society, who was present on invitation, said that there was a great danger that some of the enormous amount of money which came into the hands of the authorities here through the sweepstakes would be used in a manner which would, in effect, endow vivisection in the Free State. It would be too late to protest when the suggested scheme, under which vivisection could be carried out under the admirable but misleading description of "research," was adopted by the authorities.

IMMUNISATION

Continuing, he said that he wished to warn the people of the Free State against the persistent campaign for the alleged immunisation of children against diphtheria by their inoculation with sera which were obtained only after the infliction of terrible suffering on animals, which operations were objectionable, not only from the humanitarian, but from the scientific standpoint.

Mrs. H. Sheehy-Skeffington, proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Bowker, said that the movement against vivisection had progressed very considerably since their meetings used to be broken up by medical students. It was enlightening to hear the previous speaker's views on immunisation, corroborated as they were by distinguished medical opinion in England and elsewhere.

If the idea of compulsory immunisation spread, particularly seeing that it came from England, she would not be surprised to see some enthusiastic member of the Dail proposing that it should be rushed on the people. If they in the Free State spoke with the authority which they had behind them, which was shown in their refusal to accept vaccination as it had been accepted elsewhere, they would prevent the authorities from devoting any portion of the sweepstakes' funds to experiments in vivisection.

Mrs. Power-O'Donoghue seconded the vote of thanks.

The petition, in support of which the meeting was called, was signed by all present.

MINISTER'S WARNING ON PIGS BILL

CURERS MUST WORK THE ACT

STATE CONTROL THE ALTERNATIVE

THE debate on the Report stage of the Pigs and Bacon Bill, 1934, was resumed in the Dail yesterday.

Mr. P. BELTON (Ind., Dublin, N.) moved a series of amendments which provided that one board with an equal representation of producers and curers should be set up in place of the two boards suggested, and that it be known as the Pigs and Bacon Board. He said that the pig producers were of opinion that the bill was a bacon curers' bill, but he was satisfied that the Minister's one anxiety was to get a measure that would deal fairly with the problem. They must secure that the monopolies which would be created under the bill would not have too much power. The Minister must get the confidence of the producers, but he believed that the bill had not drawn one expression of confidence from the producers.

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) suggested that the power to decide the production Quota Order should be transferred to the Pig Board. It was eminently desirable that the curer and producer should have the opportunity of exchanging views on the Quota Order.

Mr. SMITH (F.F., Cavan) submitted that the Opposition speakers had failed to show by what means the Bacon Marketing Board would be likely to fix a production order that would be unfair to the producers.

PIG PRODUCTION

Dr. RYAN, the Minister for Agriculture, said that in the bill they were not attempting to regulate pig production, but were trying to avoid that, because they thought that it would be better to give the farmer freedom to produce as he did in the past. If the amendment were accepted it would inevitably lead to the control of pig production in the country.

He proceeded to say that the pig producers were represented at the convention that recommended the proposal in the bill, and he did not want it to go to the Dail or the people that they accepted the recommendations of the curers alone and ignored that of the producers. That was not so, he said, and it was the business of the farmers to distribute the pigs. In the very same way the number of pigs available for the factories was a matter for a division by the factories.

A WARNING

Unless the factories worked this system of their own volition and took over the pigs as available they could make them do so. "Unless the factories work the Act to the best of their ability we will have to take over the factories, and I am against State control in a matter of this kind."

Mr. J. M. BURKE (U.I., West Cork)—So the producers are entirely at the mercy of the factories.

Dr. RYAN denied that, and said he wanted to warn the House that the only alternative to working the bill is State control. The section to which Deputy Dillon referred was only a temporary way of dealing with the situation where the factories would not take all the pigs.

Mr. DILLON contended that the Minister had foreseen the possibility of such a situation, and inserted the section to which he had referred in order that, if the curers tried to run amok, the Pig Marketing Board could cure pigs themselves.

Dr. RYAN said there was no use putting the producers against the curers. He was prepared to consider this matter further, but would not like to give any undertaking, as he did not see much hope of acceding to the proposals. He was prepared to consider the matter before the bill reached Committee stage in the Senate—at least, as far as a consultation between the boards was concerned.

Mr. BENNETT (U.I., Limerick) said that there was a strong feeling in the country that the bill was a curers' bill. There was no doubt that both boards were controlled by the curers.

Mr. S. MOORE (F.F., Wicklow) said there was no foundation for describing the Pigs Board as a Curers' Board.

The amendments were withdrawn.

Mr. BELTON (Independent, Dublin, N.) moved an amendment providing that the Minister shall cause two committees of the Board to be set up, to be known as the Bacon Committee and the Pigs Committee, respectively, and constituted of the bacon curers' representatives and the pig producers' representatives, respectively, with the Chairman and Secretary of the Board as chairman and secretary of both committees. The functions of the Bacon Committee should include the making of (a) an allocation (sales quota) order, (b) a purchase order, and (c) an order making regulations fixing the prescribed sum for the purposes of the provisions of that part of the Act relating to levy in respect of carcases used for the production of bacon.

On a division the amendment was defeated by 54 votes to 38.

ASCERTAINED PRICES

Mr. DILLON moved an amendment to secure, he said, that the cost of the production of pigs should be ascertained by the Minister and published from time to time; and also that a standard feeding mixture be published from time to time. With these additions, he remarked, that the bill would be very much better.

Mr. MOORE (F.F., Wicklow) said that Deputy Dillon had given them no idea of how to get over the difficulty of depressed prices. Was an economic price to be paid in all circumstances, and was the producer to get a fair return for his industry?

Mr. DILLON—What about wheat and beet?

Mr. MOORE—Surely you cannot subsidise everything. There was, he proceeded, a big measure of protection in the bill for the producers and the curers, and it would be very dangerous to increase protection to the point where its principles might break.

Mr. McGOVERN (U.I., Cavan) pointed out that the Government had fixed prices for everything but for the producers in the agricultural industry. The Government had been making difficulties for itself by interference with business, and restricting the right of the people to carry on business in their own way.

Mr. BENNETT (U.I., Limerick) said that, if a price was fixed for pigs, it should be an economic one. Unless that was done, the bill was not worth the paper it was written upon.

Mr. SMITH (F.F., Cavan) said that the principle of the bill was ignored by Opposition speakers. There was no attempt to control the production of pigs, except in so far as the Pigs Board might fix an uneconomic price. He characterised the amendments as political amendments.

"PURELY POLITICAL"

Dr. RYAN, Minister for Agriculture, said that he agreed with what both Deputies Moore and Smith had said. The Opposition speeches were purely political, and Deputy Dillon and Deputy McGovern and the others who sat on the special committee to consider the bill knew that that was so. The bill aimed at regulating the industry without restricting the production of pigs. It was sickening to listen to the political speeches of Deputy Bennett and others. The average person in the country could see through the political tactics of the Opposition and could have nothing but contempt for Deputy Bennett. The Government was not cutting down production.

Mr. DILLON—Has the Minister considered whether under existing circumstances he has the power to alter the costs of production from time to time?

A CEREALS BILL

Dr. RYAN said that he would introduce a Cereals Bill next week.

Mr. MacDERMOT (U.I., Roscommon) said the amendments were valuable in that they illustrated Government policy of subsidising those forms of agriculture for which this country was less suited at the expense of those forms of agriculture for which the country was well suited. The forms of agriculture in which they had made their name and built up an export trade were slowly to be bled to death under the present Government policy.

DEPUTY WARNS DEPUTY

Mr. FLYNN (F.F., Kerry) said that the bill was a great boon to the farmers.

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal)—Did not Deputy Smith say that it would provide for an uneconomic price being paid to the farmers?

Mr. SMITH (F.F., Cavan)—If Mr. Dillon made that statement under other circumstances I should answer him quickly.

Mr. DILLON—Didn't you say that?

Mr. SMITH—I put you in your box before and I will do so again. I will knock the baby face off you.

On a division the amendment was defeated by 56 votes to 36 votes.

The report stage of the bill was concluded.

CORK MUNICIPAL WORKERS

STRIKE NOTICES WITHDRAWN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Thursday.

A conference was held to-night, under the chairmanship of Professor O'Rahilly, between the Cork City Manager and representatives of the unions involved in the differences regarding their employment, which arose some weeks ago between a section of the Cork Corporation workers and the City Manager.

As a result of to-night's conference, a friendly arrangement was reached, and the strike notices were withdrawn.

SEIZURE OF 42 COWS

ACTION AGAINST UNDER-SHERIFF

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

TRIM, Thursday.

At Trim Circuit Court to-day, before Judge St. L. Devitt, K.C., and a jury, Miss Julia McCormick, Williamstown, Kells, claimed £300 damages from Mr. G. H. Lowry, Under-Sheriff for Meath, for having seized cows, furniture, and plate, which was, she alleged, of much greater value than was sufficient to satisfy the decree for land annuities and drainage rate. She further claimed damages for negligence in regard to the seized stock, and also for the loss of seventeen silver, or silver plated, spoons.

Plaintiff stated that the total amount of the warrants came to £108 14s. 5d. On the 2nd January last she was unable to meet the debit when the three Sheriff's officers and about thirty Civic Guards called at her residence and took away forty-two milch cows and a large quantity of furniture. When she got the furniture back a fortnight later the silver was missing from the drawer of a sideboard. She had appealed to the Sheriff's officer to take dry stock instead of the milch cows, but they refused to do so.

The cows were taken, and suffered injury through being kept in a small pound at Kells.

In cross-examination, witness said that she admitted she had £750 worth of stock on her lands at the time and that she had made no effort to arrange payment with the Sheriff.

The case was proceeding when the court rose.

THE LATE MR. WILLIAM FIELD

At yesterday's meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board a vote of condolence was conveyed to the relatives of the late Mr. William Field, who, for thirty-three years, was a popular member of the Board.

The chairman (Mr. T. F. Laurie) said that they should be grateful to Mr. Field for the service he had given them. In 1898, when the Dublin Port and Docks Board Act was passed, the Chamber of Commerce unanimously selected Mr. Field to represent the traders. The Dublin Mercantile Association also selected him.

Senator D. Healy also joined in the tribute, and said that Mr. Field was a member of the first Gaelic branch in the city or county of Dublin formed in Blackrock in 1898.

Mr. P. Leonard alluded to the valuable work done by Mr. Field for the live-stock industry.

A Royal decree in Cairo yesterday declares that the gold clause in contracts involving obligations of an international character is "null and void."

PENAL TARIFFS MISAPPREHENSION

MR. DE VALERA'S EXPLANATION

SUGGESTED FILM LEGISLATION

MR. E. O'NEILL (U.I., West Cork) asked President de Valera in the Dail yesterday if he had seen the statement made recently by the Chancellor of the British Exchequer to the effect that up to the time of the introduction of the British Budget the British Treasury had recovered in penal tariffs from the Irish Free State £700,000 over and above the actual amount of the moneys withheld by the Irish Free State; if this sum had been so collected, and, if so, if the President would cease to pursue the policy of collecting further sums in the form of annuities, levies and seizures from the farmers.

President DE VALERA said he presumed that the statement which the Deputy had in mind was that made by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer on the 15th April—namely, that he had received a surplus of nearly £700,000 from the duties on articles coming from the Irish Free State. If so, the deputy had misunderstood the statement. Read in its context it clearly referred to a surplus, not over the sums claimed by the British Government under the secret agreements, and withheld by the Saorstát, but over the estimate of the yield of the duties which Mr. Chamberlain had made at the beginning of the financial year.

"I may add for the deputy's information," said President de Valera, "that the sum withheld amounted in 1934-35 to approximately £4,900,000. The yield of the British duties on Saorstat goods as stated in a British return, was £4,692,000."

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal)—How much of that £4,900,000 is in respect of land annuities?

President DE VALERA—I am afraid that is a separate question.

Mr. DILLON—Is the President able to inform the House, however that by no means all of that sum represents annuities?

President DE VALERA—No. £2,960,000 is in respect of annuities.

Mr. BELTON—How much is made up of Sinking Fund, and have the British deducted any money in tariffs for Sinking Fund?

President DE VALERA—That is a separate question.

The MINISTER FOR INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE informed Mr. O'NEILL (U.I., West Cork) that the quota of coal which might be imported into the Saorstat during the period 1st February, 1935, to 31st July, 1935, had been fixed at 1,100,000 tons. Of that quantity 1,099,000 tons must consist of coal produced in and consigned from Great Britain and Northern Ireland. He was not prepared to consider the removal of quota restrictions, and so long as the Quota Order in respect of coal was in operation, there was no power under which their removal in the case of small ports could be effected.

IRISH AVIATION DAY

In deference to the request of the Minister for Industry and Commerce, and with a view to assisting the Irish Industrial Exhibition at the Spring Show, Ballsbridge, the Irish Aero Club has changed the date of the Irish Aviation Day in the Phœnix Park to Sunday, 12th May, beginning at 2 p.m.

CHILDREN AND CINEMAS

Mr. E. O'NEILL (U.I., West Cork) asked the Minister for Justice if he had taken account of recent authoritative public utterances respecting the evil influence of certain film representations on the minds of school-going children, and if it was the Minister's intention to introduce proposals for legislation to deal with the matter.

The Minister for Justice (Mr. RUTTLEDGE) said that he had given the matter consideration not only in connection with the public utterances to which the Deputy referred, but on several other occasions. He was advised that there would be serious difficulties in framing effective legislation on the subject, and in enforcing such legislation without undue hardship both to the persons employed in the cinema business and to the public. He doubted also whether there was any general acceptance of the view that parents in this country were neglecting their duty as regards the control of their children of school-going age to such an extent as to make State interference essential in a matter of this kind.

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) asked was the Minister of opinion that 99.9 per cent. of the hypocritical rubbish about films in the Irish Press was balderdash, and that the Irish Film Censor was carrying out his work admirably and excluding from films exposed in this country anything that was offensive.

£11,000 FOR TURF SACKS

In reply to Mr. DAVIN (Lab., Leix-Offaly), the MINISTER FOR INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE (Mr. Lemass) said that the total number of sacks purchased for the purpose of the peat scheme in the year ended March 31st, 1935, was 150,256, and the amount expended on such purchase was £11,317 0s. 10d.

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) asked what was to be done with the peat sacks now?

Mr. LEMASS said that some of them were being used.

Mr. DILLON, amidst laughter, suggested that they might be used as bathing suits.

The MINISTER FOR FINANCE (Mr. MacEntee), in reply to Mr. NORTON (Lab., Kildare), said that it was not possible to give any figures showing the effect on the Saorstat Revenue of the agreement in respect of double income tax concluded between this country and Great Britain in 1926, because there were various factors to be taken into account which were incalculable.

"I am satisfied," said the Minister, "that on the whole the conclusion of the agreement was a desirable step, and was advantageous from the point of view of the Saorstat."

STATE INVESTMENTS

The MINISTER FOR FINANCE (Mr. MacEntee), in reply to Mr. NORTON (Lab., Kildare), said that the State had invested in shares of various concerns as follows:—

Industrial Trust Company of Ireland, Ltd.	£50,000
Agricultural Credit Corporation, Ltd.	£292,118
Comhlucht Siucre Eireann, Ltd.	£500,000
Industrial Credit Company, Ltd.	£492,064
Drum Battery, Ltd.	£648

The State had provided by way of advances the whole of the capital of the Electricity Supply Board. The amount which the Board was liable to repay to the State was £16,119,640 to date. The State had also invested in various creameries, the liability outstanding in this connection on 31st December, 1934, being £654,654.

The MINISTER FOR FINANCE (Mr. MacEntee), in reply to Mr. Norton (Labour, Kildare), said that the income of Saorstat residents from foreign investments in 1933—the latest year for which a figure was available—was estimated at about £9,000,000. No estimate of the capital value of these investments was available.

ROAD FUND BORROWINGS

The MINISTER FOR LOCAL GOVERNMENT (Mr. O'Kelly), in reply to Mr. Corish (Labour, Wexford), said that the amounts borrowed under the Road Fund (Advances) Act in respect of the Road Fund on March 31st in each of the last four years were as follow:—

	£
31st March, 1932	650,000
31st March, 1933	1,290,000
31st March, 1934	1,511,419
31st March, 1935	1,788,493

In the 121 county boroughs and great towns of England and Wales the births registered last week numbered 6,442, corresponding to an annual rate of 16.1 per 1,000 living, and deaths numbered 4,971, 178 less than in the preceding week, equivalent to a rate of 12.5.

INCREASING ITS INFLUENCE

THE ROYAL IRISH AUTOMOBILE CLUB

TRIBUTE TO CAPTAIN GREER

THE annual general meeting of the Royal Irish Automobile Club, Ltd., was held yesterday in the club premises, Dawson street, Dublin.

The report, which was taken as read, mentioned that despite a falling off in subscriptions, the club had a surplus of income over expenditure. A number of improvements and extra benefits for members were under review, and would be given effect to as soon as finance permitted. Meanwhile many improvements had been made in the club premises, and at the Southern office in Cork many new facilities were afforded.

The garage was more largely availed of than in any previous year, the number of cars garaged being 34,792—an increase of 1,185 over 1933. In the parcels office the number of parcels handled was 44,512—an increase of 1,465 on the year.

The touring department, the report states, experienced an exceptionally busy year, when the number of members and associates who took their cars abroad, as well as the number of incoming motoring visitors from foreign and Colonial automobile clubs, far exceeded the previous year's figures. The resultant increased demand for touring documents, triptyques, carnets de passage en douane, international driving permits, and vehicles certificates, etc., incurred a corresponding increase in the work of the staff of this department, whose services were recognised by the appreciation of many concerned.

In order to facilitate members and associates taking their cars to the Continent, the Committee decided to reduce the cash deposits on carnets de passage en douane from £50 to £20 in the case of cars, and from £10 to £5 in the case of motor cycles.

The adjustment of improperly discharged Customs papers continues to form an onerous part of the work of this department, and the amount saved to members in this direction represents a considerable sum.

FISCAL PERMITS

The club has been appointed an authority for the issue of International Fiscal Permits, which render the holder exempt from the road taxes in any of the countries which are parties to the International Convention held at Geneva in 1931 for a limited period each year. This will be a great advantage to Free State motorists going to Great Britain or the Continent, and also to tourists coming into the Free State.

In regard to hotels, the report states that applications for the clubs official appointment were received from forty-two hotels, and appointments granted in twenty-four cases. The classification of certain hotels was altered after inspection, and the appointment of two hotels was cancelled. Generally, it is stated, hotel conditions throughout the country have improved, and there is evidence that the hotel proprietors appreciate the importance of maintaining their establishments at a standard comparable with those of other countries. Nevertheless, there is room for improvement in many cases.

Mr. C. H. O'Connor, who presided, in moving the adoption of the report, said that from first to last it was one of continued progress. In spite of the times, which everyone said were depressed, they were able to have a little balance over their expenditure. There was no doubt that the Royal Irish Automobile Club filled an important place in the social life of Dublin. It was used by a great many people, and their membership was increasing. In nearly every way the Royal Irish Automobile Club was increasing its influence. In the matter of legislation the club had been consulted by the authorities, and had made suggestions which, they believed, had been of assistance.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

He was told that the traffic regulations would be published very soon, but he had been hearing that for a long time. Incidentally, he pointed out that the club was not responsible for the traffic regulations at Fairyhouse. It had charge of the traffic arrangements at Punchestown, and they were most satisfactory.

Regarding inconsiderate driving, while there were very few cases on the part of members of that club, he felt, and he knew, that there were many cases of inconsiderate driving. He appealed to motorists generally to consider other users of the road. Motorists had almost a weapon of destruction in their hands, and they ought to remember other people.

He was sorry to say they were about to lose the services of their Secretary, Captain R. D. Greer, who had got an important appointment with the Royal Automobile Club in London. Captain Greer had been with them for about ten years, and had given satisfaction to everybody. He was courteous, considerate and efficient. While they regretted his departure they wished him every success in his new position.

Mr. Edgar Anderson, in seconding the motion, endorsed everything that had been said by the chairman regarding their secretary.

He thought that the motoring public generally should use a little more courtesy on the road. In regard to the club, a word of thanks should be expressed to the Managing Committee for the way in which they had carried out their duties. That club was the only institution of its kind catering for motorists in Ireland, and deserved greater support in the way of membership.

CATERING FOR VISITORS

In endeavouring to develop the motor tourist traffic he would again ask the authorities to provide facilities for visitors. If this were done on both sides of the border it might be possible to induce motorists to cross the border in each direction to the benefit of the country as a whole.

The report was adopted.

The accounts were then received and adopted.

A committee having been elected without a ballot, the following were elected honorary members of the club for the ensuing year:—The President of the Executive Council, the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, the Minister for Industry and Commerce, the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, T.D.; Col. E. Broy, General W. R. E. Murphy, Count O'Kelly, William Peters, C.M.G.; James Cormack, Commander F. P. Armstrong, O.B.E.; R. J. Smith, C.B.E., and representatives of the following Governments—The Holy See, Most Rev. Paschal Robinson; Belgium, M. Maurice Goor; France, M. Pierre Guerlet and M. Abel Bergeron; Germany, Herr W. von Kuhlmann; Czechoslovakia, Major Paul Ruzicka; Italy, Comm. Romano Lodi Fè; Netherlands, I. R. A. W. Weenink; Poland, M. Vencelas Th. Dobryznski; Portugal, Senhor Carlos A. A. Cotell; Spain, Señor Don Placido Alvarez-Buylla y Delozaua; Sweden, H. Eriksson; Mexico, Señor Don Gustavo Luders de Negri; Venezuela, Señor Don J. Engemo Perez; Egypt, Ahmed Zaki Saad.

The retiring Secretary, Capt. Greer, was also elected an honorary member.

HARBOURING CHARGE FAILS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

The hearing was continued in the King's Bench, Belfast, to-day, before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury, of the claim by the Crown against John Jeffers, J.P., farmer, of Glassdrummond, County Armagh, for £325 10s., being treble the value of seven head of cattle which, it was alleged, had been smuggled into Northern Ireland, and which defendant is alleged to have harboured.

The jury found for the defendant, stating that they were unanimously of the opinion that the cattle belonged to Mr. Jeffers.

DRAMA IN LITTON HALL

A talented cast, chosen from the Christ Church, Leeson Park, Literary and Dramatic Society, performed Jerome K. Jerome's popular three-act play, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in the Litton Hall, Leeson Park, last night. The play, acted as it was by an amateur company, was remarkably good entertainment, and was well received by the large audience of parishioners and their friends. The cast were word perfect, though a little stilted in their speech and actions, and the play moved smoothly through to the climax.

TRANSPORT IN THE NORTH

NEW ROAD BOARD TO BE FORMED

BILL TO CO-ORDINATE SERVICES

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

THE text of the bill to co-ordinate road and railway transport in Northern Ireland was issued to the members of the Northern Ireland Parliament this evening.

The bill, which is a comprehensive measure of 56 clauses, establishes a Road Transport Board to acquire, either by agreement or arbitration, all public hire road transport operating passenger and good services.

This Board will then form, with the railway companies, a Joint Committee, which will pool the road transport and railway receipts and co-ordinate transport services. The Joint Committee will be subject to the control of the Ministry of Home Affairs, and there will be also an Appeal Tribunal to prevent the making of unreasonable fares, rates or charges, and to ensure efficient economical and convenient transport services to the public.

NO CHARGE ON FUNDS

The bill, so far as finance is concerned, is self-contained, and does not impose any charge upon public funds.

The Road Transport Board will consist of not less than five, and not more than seven, members appointed by the Minister of Home Affairs. They will be persons of wide experience, who have shown capacity in transport, industrial, commercial, agricultural or financial matters, or in the conduct of public affairs.

A member of either House of Parliament of Northern Ireland is disqualified from being a member of the Board. Members of the Board will not be permitted to hold Transport Stock and will hold office on such conditions and terms as the Minister of Home Affairs may determine.

The road transport undertaking of the Belfast Corporation and of the Londonderry and Lough Swilly Railway are exempt from the bill, and also the local carriers in Belfast and Londonderry.

Merchants and manufacturers will be permitted to carry goods in their own machines.

POOLED RECEIPTS

For the purpose of pooling the net receipts of the Road Transport Board and the railways standard years have been fixed—1932 for road transport, and the mean of the years 1924 and 1932 for railways—and the pool will be divided according to the proportions of the net receipts in these standard years.

The Transport Board will have power to issue stock to acquire road transport undertakings and for raising capital. This stock will be in two classes: "A" Stock will have a fixed prior dividend of 4 per cent., and "B" Stock a cumulative dividend of 4 per cent. for two years, and a maximum dividend of 6 per cent. Any surplus profits will go to the extension of and improvement of transport services of the Board.

After the Board is set up no one will be permitted to use a motor vehicle for the conveyance of passengers or their luggage for hire or reward except with the consent of the Board and the approval of the Ministry of Home Affairs.

COUNTY TYRONE INCIDENT

SCENE AT BRITISH LEGION MEETING

The curfew had just ceased ringing from the tower of Moy Parish Church last Wednesday evening when some excitement was caused in Moy square by the sudden appearance of Brigadier-General Bayley, C.M.G., D.S.O., at the second floor window of the British Legion Rooms, calling for the police. A general meeting of the British Legion was in progress, under the chairmanship of Captain Cowdy, at which thirty-seven members attended, and the Chairman had declined to put a resolution expressing dissatisfaction with some action of the Committee. When he threatened to leave the chair a proposal was made, and carried, that the meeting continue with another chairman.

The Chairman (Captain Bayley) and other members, with the secretary, attempted to leave, taking with them the minute book and official documents.

Two stalwart members closed the door and refused to allow them out with the books. Excitement ran high, and General Bayley, throwing open the window, called for the police. The secretary threw the books and papers out of the window. Over a dozen members then left and the meeting continued under the chairmanship of Mr. R. W. Howard. The police arrived in the club-room, but took no action.

A Reuter's New York telegram says that the Rochester Yacht Club will take part in the annual 14-foot dinghy races, between England, the United States and Canada, to be held in England during July. The races were held at Toronto last year.

NURSERY RESCUE SOCIETY

TRIBUTES TO ITS WORK

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Nursery Rescue and Protestant Children's Society was held, by kind invitation of the Misses Blakeney, yesterday afternoon at the Girls' Friendly Society Lodge, 34 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin.

Mrs. W. A. Ryan (Honorary Secretary) read the report and statement of accounts.

In proposing the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, the Archdeacon of Dublin commented on the number of children (57) in charge of the Society. He also spoke of his experience of the good and useful work done for the girls admitted to the Magdalen Asylum, 8 Lower Leeson street, Dublin. Children leaving the Asylum at six months of age, he said, were boarded out by the Society. Concluding, he referred to the love of Christ for little children, and commended the work done for these little ones in His name.

Mrs. Chatterton, M.B.E., seconding the resolution, which was carried with acclamation, gave her experience of the benefit of the home life and upbringing in cottage homes.

The meeting then concluded.

The Court of Cassation in Paris has rejected the appeal of the Corsican bandit, Andrea Spada, against the death sentence which was pronounced against him at the Bastia Assizes on March 6th. He was sentenced to death for seven murders, and heard the sentence unmoved.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

During the debate on the Report stage of the Pigs and Bacon Bill in the Dail yesterday Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, warned the bacon factories that unless they worked the Act to the best of their ability the Government would have to take over the factories.—(Page 5.)

Four men were returned for trial at Longford yesterday on a charge of murder arising out of the shooting at Lisard on February 9 last. Three others were sent for trial on a charge of conspiracy.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN

In the House of Commons last night, the Prime Minister announced that, in view of the German Chancellor's recent declaration that the German Air Force has attained parity with the British Air Force, the British programme announced some time ago by Mr. Baldwin is being accelerated. Great Britain, he stated, will undertake no new commitments in Central Europe. In regard to naval strength, the German delegates would open preliminary conversations in London in the middle of this month.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD

General Goering declared in Berlin yesterday that Germany demanded an air force "equal to any constellation of Powers which may arise at any given moment for or against peace." Reuter understands that this means that, in the event of any combination of European Powers which does not include Germany, the latter would demand an air force equal to the combined strength of the Allied Powers.—(Page 7.)

Germany's Challenge

We hope sincerely that the British Prime Minister's speech in the House of Commons yesterday will be studied with the utmost care in Berlin, and we wish that its text could be made accessible to every German citizen. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald had intended originally to confine his remarks to the results of the conferences that have taken place during the last few months at Rome, Paris, London, Stresa and Geneva; but developments in Germany caused him to change his plan, and he made a very important statement of Britain's policy. The situation at the moment is undoubtedly serious. For that reason Mr. Macdonald's words were weighed with the greatest care, and it was noticed that he read his speech from manuscript—a practice rarely followed in the House of Commons. His review of European affairs began at the time of the London declaration of last February, when the representatives of Great Britain, France and Italy made certain proposals, involving the offer of a freely negotiated armaments pact with Germany, to replace Section V. of the Treaty of Versailles. Germany accepted this plan as the basis of future negotiations, and showed keen interest in the British idea of an air pact, which would deal effectively with the threat of aerial competition in Europe. Shortly afterwards, however, Herr Hitler decided to speak plainly, and having admitted the existence of a well-equipped Air Force, with a strength at least equal to that of Great Britain, he announced the re-introduction of the Conscription Law, and informed the world quite coolly that the German Army would have a peace time establishment of more than 500,000 men. This move took the whole world by surprise; but, although it clearly was a breach of the Versailles Treaty, against which the British Government immediately protested, the Foreign Secretary made it his business to go to Berlin, where he had important talks with Herr Hitler, acting in the hope, if not in the belief, that even at that late hour it still might be possible to bring about a pact of non-aggression, which would embrace all the European States.

Sir John Simon's trip to Berlin manifestly was not a success. He found the Germans in unyielding mood, and the Prime Minister yesterday declared that their attitude had "profoundly disturbed the peace of mind of the whole of Europe." Words of such gravity are not spoken lightly. Mr. Macdonald was interpreting the minds of the entire British race, at home and abroad, when he used them; for there is no doubt that Germany's recent actions have given rise to deep suspicion. When Sir John Simon and Mr. Anthony Eden were in Berlin the question of naval strengths was discussed. The British Government already had had conversations with representatives of the United States and Japan, and issued an invitation to the Germans to come to a further conference in London. This invitation was accepted by Herr Hitler, and the British were preparing to receive his naval representatives when the Führer decided to take the law into his own hands again. This time he caused it to be known that, with or without Britain's consent, the German Government proposed to rebuild its Navy, and, furthermore, that it already had given orders for the construction of a dozen submarines. This announcement was made, in Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's words, "to our great surprise," and the German decision to build submarines was regarded as "ominous." When one remembers the brutality and the appalling havoc of the U-boat campaign during the World War, one can understand British feelings in the matter. We realise that the U-boat commanders in general were brave men, who took their lives in their hands; but the campaign itself was as savage in its conception as it was effective in practice. The sinking of unarmed merchantmen and passenger ships was a blot on Germany's fair name. The words "spurlos versenkt" brought sorrow and misery into thousands of British—and Irish—homes; and we should have thought that, whatever else the Nazis might, or might not, have done, they would have taken care not to revive those bitter memories which almost were forgotten.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald makes it quite clear that Britain will not be deflected from her main purpose—namely, to create in Europe a peace system in support of the Kellogg Pact, which will eliminate—or, at any rate, minimise—the danger of another war. He has offered the hand of friendship to Germany: will she come forward now, he asks, and help to restore the confidence that has been lost? Furthermore, he invites all the nations to call a halt in their armaments competition, particularly in respect of aircraft. While the head of the British Government, however, appeals in the strongest possible terms for peace, he gives the other Powers clearly to understand that Britain does not intend to be left behind. "We propose," he declares, "to put our power of defence into a state which will enable our people to feel that they are protected." He recalled Mr. Baldwin's statement some time ago that Britain would insist on a "one-Power air standard," and informed the House of Commons that Herr Hitler had told Sir John Simon in Berlin that Germany already had reached "parity" with Britain in the air. In those circumstances, he said, the British Government could not allow itself to be placed in a position of inferiority vis-à-vis Germany, and there would be "further and accelerated expansion of the Royal Air Force." In other words, greatly as the British people would deplore an arma ments race, they certainly will not allow the other Powers to out-strip them. If increased armaments are necessary, they will be secured. It is a dreadful prospect, which all right-thinking men must deplore; but, unhappily, there seems at the moment to be no reasonable alterna tive. Germany, consciously or unwittingly, is challenging the world. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's speech proves conclusively that Great Britain is prepared to go to almost any lengths to ensure peace; but there is a limit beyond which no self-respecting nation can go. If Herr Hitler really desires peace, Europe can be saved; if he desires war, nothing can prevent it.

Transport in the North

Northern Ireland has suffered from transport disorder even longer than the South, but her attempt at a solution goes farther than anything which her neighbour has ventured. The new Road and Rail Transport Bill, whose text appears this morning, is modelled in the main upon the recommendations that Sir Felix Pole, the British expert, made a couple of years ago. When it becomes law no road transport services throughout the North will remain in private hands. All the services—excepting those of the Belfast City Tramways, but including the road services which are operated by the railway companies—will lose their separate existence; they will be taken over and administered by a new Road Transport Board of five to seven members. This Board, representing all the road transport services of Northern Ireland, will proceed to work hand in glove with the railways. It and the railway companies will pool their receipts—the gross traffic receipts, minus working costs—and the total will be divided among them according to a certain ratio. The object of the scheme is to save the railways from extinction. With their enormously heavy burden of costs they have been driven steadily towards bankruptcy by the increasing pressure of road competition. The difficulties which the Free State railways have experienced in the past have been reproduced on a still graver scale in the North; for, small as the Saorstát may be, Northern Ireland is even smaller, and, therefore, the advantages of railway transport over road transport are even less. Under this new system the balance will be readjusted. In point of fact it threatens to be loaded as heavily in favour of the railway companies as it has been hitherto in favour of road traffic; for the result in the long run must be to put the railways in full control of every form of transport throughout the Six Counties. One of the bill's central clauses authorises them to invest in the capital of the new Board, and it is probably but a question of time before they will possess a controlling interest in it. The scheme is drastic, and, we have no doubt, will create much discontent for a while; but the situation is almost desperate and demands a drastic remedy. We trust that the Northern authorities will profit from the example of the Saorstát in one important respect. The creation of a monopoly must not be allowed to interfere with the convenience of the public. If a workers' grievance in Dublin, where a monopoly exists, can disturb the whole life of a city, how much more inconvenience and loss could be caused throughout the entire Six Counties? There is machinery of a sort in the new bill for the settling of grievances; but unless that machinery is rendered foolproof Northern Ireland one day may repent this otherwise excellent reform.

Cæsar Returns

Time makes all clear. When we heard at school of the divine honours which the Romans paid to their emperors in antiquity we were perplexed. How could a sane people regard a living man as a god? How could great scholars, poets, soldiers, statesmen, engineers, philosophers pay tribute to a human being like themselves—but commonly their inferior in character and talents—as divus, putting this creature in the place of the Creator? We thought that the historians must exaggerate. The emperors were flattered extravagantly, and the writers described the flattery as worship. So we reasoned; for it is difficult, if not impossible, for one age to conceive the institutions of another. To-day our bewilderment is resolved. The Cæsars have returned. Divine honours are paid to mortal men as truly now as when Christian martyrs died rather than render to Cæsar that which is God's. In Japan a great scholar and patriot, Dr. Minobe, has been denounced by the rulers on account of a work in which he dared to suggest that the Emperor's authority is not a personal prerogative, born with him and indestructible. Dr. Minobe holds that the State possesses supreme moral and material authority, and that this is vested naturally in the Mikado. The orthodox denounce this doctrine as heresy. The Emperor, they say, can do no wrong. All power is his. No authority on earth or—apparently—in heaven can say nay to his will. Attendance at shrines and homage to the Emperor have been made compulsory. We behold thus the deification of the Roman emperors repeated by one of the world's most progressive peoples. Japan is a pagan land, lacking examples in its own tradition of a freer spirit and a loftier philosophy. Yet the official falsification of history, the wresting of facts to suit the worship of a creature born to the throne, which are practised by the Japanese, are not more absurd than what we behold in Germany, a part of Christendom. Week by week we chronicle more audacious claims to spiritual tyranny by the Nazi leader. The suppression of all newspapers which use Christian emblems in place of the emblem of the Nazi State, and preach any doctrine save that which the leader dictates, puts the Nazi régime in line with Japanese Shinto, or emperor-worship. Herr Hitler now is hailed as "a Messenger from Heaven, a dispensation of Providence, a supreme command." His virtues "are the virtues of divine religion." Cæsar reigns.

Porto Rico

The Portorriqueños are the latest people to claim their independence, and to differ among themselves as to the form which it should take. As Macaulay's schoolboy would hasten to tell us, Porto Rico is an island in the West Indies, about as large as Munster, which was under Spanish sovereignty until it was annexed by the United States of America after the war of 1898. Unlike Haiti and San Domingo, States which divide the neighbouring island, Porto Rico is predominantly white. Its people, numbering something over a million, are proud and prosperous; but the Constitution gives to the United States a permanent majority in the Executive Council, overriding the electors. Under the United States' control the island has thriven. The coffee, sugar and tobacco trades have increased their exports; civil order has been strengthened. Prosperity, however, is not all that men desire. The Porto Ricans now demand control of their own affairs. A delegation has been appointed to go to Washington to ask that the island be erected into a fully self-governing State and then admitted to the Federal Union. To the stars of Old Glory one more will be added if this proposal is put into force, and a Spanish-speaking island will become one of the United States. Seeing that the population of Porto Rico sided with America in the Spanish war thirty-seven years ago—welcomed the troops of the New World in the ousting of the forces of the Old—it might be thought that federation with the United States would be an end that all patriots would welcome. It is not so. A manifesto has been published by what seems to be a powerful body of Porto Rican opinion, declaring that the delegation to Washington speaks only for a minority of the nationalist movement, and that nothing save a completely separate Republic of Porto Rico will satisfy the majority. The remarkable thing in this act is that the Republicans have chosen Spain as the place in which to publish their protest. They appear to be moved in part by Spanish sympathies, and by hostility to the penetration of Spanish America by what is called Yankee Imperialism. After casting off Spanish rule Porto Rico fights for Spanish culture.

QUEEN'S JUBILEE DRESS

THE OFFICIAL DESCRIPTION

The following official description of the Queen's Jubilee ensemble, to be worn by Her Majesty on Monday, was issued in London last night:—

Her Majesty the Queen will wear for the Silver Jubilee Thanksgiving Service at St. Paul's Cathedral on Monday, May 6th, 1935, an exquisite gown—specially designed and executed by Reville, Hanover Square, London—of hydrangea-pink silk, net embroidered lace, mounted on cloth of silver, producing a delicate shimmering effect.

For the drive to St. Paul's Her Majesty will wear over her gown a beautiful cloak of silver woven lamé, collared with white fox. The turban will be of hydrangea-pink and silver, with a plume mount to tone.

Her Majesty will wear the Blue Ribbon of the Garter, and the jewels will be diamonds and pearls.

EMPIRE RULERS AT WESTMINSTER HALL

The biggest assembly of representatives of the Governments of the British Empire since the Coronation will be gathered at Westminster Hall on May 9, when the King and Queen receive loyal addresses from the two Houses of Parliament. The ceremony will be broadcast throughout the Empire.

There will probably be present, in addition to the two Houses of Parliament, all the King's sons, the Princess Royal, the Duke of Connaught and the Princess Alice, His Majesty's judges, all the Indian ruling princes who will be in this country for the Jubilee, the Dominion Prime Ministers and Sir Joseph Bhore, representing the Government of India; the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, the High Commissioners and Agents-General, representatives of Dominion, Indian and Colonial Parliaments, and of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands.

NORTHERN IRELAND MESSAGES

An address has been sent to the King from the Ulster Unionist Council, in which the members offer His Majesty their dutiful congratulations upon his Silver Jubilee. They rejoice, they say, that during the celebrations the King is to be represented amongst them by the Duke of Gloucester, Earl of Ulster.

The Belfast Harbour Board have also drawn up an address offering to the King their warmest congratulations on the attainment of the Silver Jubilee of his auspicious reign over the great British Commonwealth of Nations.

AN OBJECTION

When the Down County Council, at a meeting yesterday, decided to send a telegram of congratulation to the King, Mr. Felix McKenna, a Nationalist member, dissented, and said that while the Nationalist area that he represented had no ill-feeling towards Their Majesties, they felt that the telegram from the Ministry of Home Affairs was more or less against their principles.

The Right Hon. J. H. Andrews said that the telegram was being sent by the County Council, and had nothing to do with the Ministry or any member of the Government.

Next week the Belfast school children will be presented with souvenir medals of the Silver Jubilee by the education authority, and the cinema proprietors are to entertain them to special matinée shows.

TWO HUNDRED KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Thursday.

Over 200 people were killed and 500 seriously injured in a severe earthquake in the Kars district, news of which has only just been received here. Fifteen villages were destroyed, and thousands of people are homeless.

COURT AND PERSONAL

The King and Queen have fulfilled several engagements since their return to London. They visited the Duke of Connaught at Clarence House on his birthday, when various members of the Royal family called to present their good wishes. The King was represented by Mr. Albert Gladstone at the funeral of Lord Gladstone of Hawarden, which took place at Hawarden Church, Flintshire, on Wednesday.

The Duke of Kent presided at a meeting of the Council of the Royal Agricultural Society of England on Wednesday morning, and last night His Royal Highness presided at the University College Hospital centenary celebration in the London Guildhall, where there was a large attendance.

The Duchess of Marlborough and the Countess of Pembroke and Montgomery will be joint hostesses at the dinner to meet Viscount Hailsham, who will speak on the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations.

The Duchess of Northumberland and her family are returning to London to-morrow from Albury Park for the season. The Marchioness of Zetland, Lady Viola, Lady Lavinia Dundas and the Earl of Ronaldshay have arrived in London for the season. The Earl and Countess of Midleton will arrive in London from Peper Harow, Guildford, to-morrow.

The Duke of Richmond and Gordon is still seriously ill, though yesterday a slight improvement in his condition was reported. Major the Hon. Edward Lascelles, brother of the Earl of Harewood, is laid up at his Yorkshire residence, Linton Springs, where he is suffering from cerebral toxæmia. He was reported to have had a good night, and his strength is fairly maintained.

SHOUTED DOWN

MR. THOMAS REFUSED A HEARING

So persistent were the interruptions of a small minority at a National Government meeting at Hanley, Stoke-on-Trent, last night, that Mr. J. H. Thomas, Dominions Secretary, was unable to deliver his speech.

As soon as he rose he was greeted with cries of "Traitor" from a section of the audience, which numbered about 1,000, and he was refused a hearing.

Mr. Thomas appealed for fair play and urged the right of free speech. He then offered to make a bargain with his interruptors, promising to answer questions for half-an-hour if they would then be quiet.

For the next thirty minutes he answered questions on various subjects, but when he started to deliver his speech the interruptions broke out again, and eventually Mr. Thomas sat down, after he had described some of his hecklers as "miserable cowards."

A vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Thomas, and the meeting terminated with the singing of the National Anthem.

LONDON LETTER

THE PRIME MINISTER'S SPEECH

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

THE debate on foreign affairs, initiated by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons this afternoon, was memorable. In the Dominions Gallery were Mr. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada; Mr. Stanley Bruce, Premier of Australia; Mr. G. Huggins, Premier of Southern Rhodesia; and Mr. J. W. Dulanty, High Commissioner of the Irish Free State. The Diplomats' Gallery was packed, and nearly every country in Europe was represented by members of Embassies or Legations. The Prime Minister's speech, delivered in quiet, grave tones, created a deep impression in the House. It soon became apparent that the British Government was determined to take all possible steps to safeguard the country, while deploring the attitude of Germany, which made such action necessary. The expansion of the Royal Air Force has already begun, in furtherance of Mr. Stanley Baldwin's declaration concerning equality with the strongest Power. Mr. Macdonald made it clear, however, that the British Government was still prepared to receive the German representatives for the contemplated preliminary naval conversations. The Prime Minister was warmly cheered when he sat down, after speaking for 35 minutes. The speech was warmly commended in the Lobby, where members of all parties agreed with its substance and the manner of its delivery—more particularly in its definite statement that in no circumstances would the Government accept any position of inferiority with regard to the Air Force, whatever forces might be raised by Germany in the future.

A General Election?

It is not without interest at the moment, in view of the rumours of a coming general election, that the Paris newspaper, L'Œuvre, stated to-day that the most important decision taken by the British Government at its Cabinet meeting yesterday was to resign during the first days of June. This event will be of capital importance, the newspaper declares, because neither Sir John Simon, the Foreign Secretary, nor Lord Londonderry, Secretary for Air, would be included in a reconstructed Cabinet. The principal accusation against Lord Londonderry is that he did not realise the aerial re-armament of Germany in time, and thus put England into her present position of inferiority to the Reich, from the point of view of armaments. The Echo de Paris writes in much the same vein, but remarks that at the moment nothing definite is known about the retirement of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, which, it is suggested, reasons of health will necessitate sooner or later. It is, however, regarded as inevitable that the Cabinet will be reconstructed under Mr. Baldwin, and that, in view of the general election next autumn or in the spring of 1936, a very vigorous policy will be prosecuted.

Pilots for the R.A.F.

A great demand for pilots for the Air Force is likely to cause a shortage in the number of commercial pilots. At present there are only 500 who hold the "B" licence, and few of these are unemployed. There are about 150 short service commissioned officers, who retire from the Royal Air Force every year at an age between 25 to 27, and of this number about half seek careers as pilots in civil aviation. Many of these young men will now return to the Air Force in response to the appeal which is being made. Imperial Airways has tried to solve the problem of pilots by establishing its own school at Croydon aerodrome, where there are about twenty-four pupils already. Pilots can earn £500 a year, and even more, and the fact that there is a shortage will tend to keep up the status and emoluments. Apart from entry into an air line after service in the R.A.F., it is possible for young men to learn to fly at the Air University, and to secure posts when they have put in 300 to 500 hours of flying in Great Britain.

Precautions for Monday

In central London to-day huge barriers of great strength were being erected at many points along the route that will be taken by the procession on Monday. Every main thoroughfare was thus sealed. The gates will be closed as soon as it has been found that there are sufficient people inside, and will remain closed until the procession has passed. In addition to these precautions, the London police authorities have despatched an appeal for reinforcements from other centres, and the services of eight hundred provincial police officers have been secured. Ex-policemen of the city force who have commenced their retirement within the last three or four years have been asked to resume duty, and quite a number of the men have responded to the call. In addition the whole strength of the city police reserve will be mustered for street duty during Jubilee Day, so that no part of the city may go unguarded.

St. Paul's

St. Paul's Cathedral has been visited by 16,000 people this week, many of whom came from distant places. Their object is to see where the King and Queen will be seated during the Thanksgiving Service, and the officials are overwhelmed with questions concerning what will take place. No attempt will be made to decorate the exterior of the cathedral. Canon Alexander stated to-day that it is not suited for the flying of flags. The east end will be adorned with flowers, and that will be the only attempt at decoration inside or out. On the afternoon of Jubilee Day there will be a Service for the public at four o'clock, when there will be accommodation for over 4,000 worshippers. The Service will be of a special character, with music, and a short address by the Dean of St. Paul's. There is no accommodation available to the general public at the Jubilee Service, so that it has been thought appropriate to make the Evensong another Thanksgiving Service, at which the public can be present.

Banned Books in Boston

The Evening Standard says that an exhibition of famous books which were banned by Governments has been opened in New York. They have been lent by collectors, including Dr. Rosenbach, and many are of great value. The most curious are "Alice in Wonderland" and Hans Andersen's "Fairy Tales." "Alice" was banned by the Chinese censor, who held that a talking rabbit reduced human beings to the same level as animals, and Hans Andersen by the Tsarist Government, who feared the effect of his book's liberal tendencies. English examples of censorial aberrations include Raleigh's "History of the World" and Holinshed's "Chronicles," both of which were banned by Queen Elizabeth. Ireland and Boston share first place among modern censors. Books banned in Ireland include Mr. Aldous Huxley's "Point Counterpoint," Miss Vicki Baum's "Grand Hotel," Mr. Somerset Maugham's "Cakes and Ale," and Mr. Sinclair Lewis's "Elmer Gantry." Prominent in Boston's list are Mr. H. G. Wells's "The World of William Clissold" and Mr. Michael Arlen's "Young Men in Love."

BRITAIN'S REPLY TO GERMANY

INCREASED ACCELERATION OF AIR FORCE

PREMIER'S REVIEW OF CONFERENCES

NO NEW COMMITMENTS IN CENTRAL EUROPE

THE Prime Minister, in the House of Commons yesterday, defined Great Britain's policy in view of the rapid growth of German armaments.

It was greatly to be deplored, he said, that at the moment, when Germany had accepted the London declaration as a basis for discussion, her Government announced its intention to impose conscription, to raise her peace strength to 550,000 men, and to create a military air force.

Herr Hitler's expression of his readiness to accept the spirit and the letter of the Locarno Pact, however, had given general satisfaction, and nothing had been done at Stresa to change that declaration.

The British Government would send no delegate to the meeting called by Italy to discuss a scheme for Central Europe. It was well understood that Britain was undertaking no new commitments in that regard.

His Majesty's Government did not consider that the peace structure which they sought to build up could be complete without German participation, and he appealed to Germany to help in restoring international confidence.

Turning to Britain herself, he said that the Government proposed to put her power of defence into a state which would enable her people to feel that they were protected.

They were still prepared, however, to receive the German delegates in London towards the middle of this month, for a preliminary discussion on naval matters.

The German declaration that parity had been reached with Great Britain in the air was a grave fact. In these circumstances, Mr. Baldwin's recent declaration stood. The Government already was taking steps "for further and accelerated expansion of the British Air Force."

Finally, Mr. Macdonald suggested that the Powers concerned in air armament should, after further negotiations, confine their air arms within well-defined limits.

MR. MACDONALD'S ANXIETY

The Prime Minister, in opening the debate on foreign affairs, mentioned that it would include some general consideration on armaments, but it would be left to a later debate some time during this month to deal with the question of national armaments in their relation to changes which had recently taken place, or had been announced, in continental forces.

When Germany accepted the London Declaration, at any rate as a basis for discussion, our hopes were reasonably strengthened. It was greatly to be deplored that at the moment the German Government announced its intention to impose conscription, and to take steps to raise its peace strength to 550,000 men, as well as to create a military air force. The Council of the League of Nations had dealt with those events, and there was no necessity to harp upon them.

In considering the future, however, it was well to note that Herr Hitler had said that he would sign nothing he could not carry out, but that if he gave an undertaking he would never break it. He had also publicly expressed the readiness and determination of the German Government to accept the spirit and the letter of the Locarno Pact. That declaration gave general satisfaction, and nothing that happened at Stresa changed that declaration. It was important that that should be emphasised.

CENTRAL EUROPE

With regard to Central Europe, the Italian Government proposed to call a meeting of the Governments concerned, including Germany, to discuss a scheme. His Majesty's Government would not be represented at that Conference by a delegate, because it was well understood that they were undertaking no new commitments—(cheers)—but they would be represented by an observer.

As regarded Eastern Europe, it was especially in the power of Germany to make a valuable contribution of assistance to the system of security in that region. There was no reason why a non-aggressive pact should not harmonise with the mutual guarantee pact which France and the Soviet Government were now negotiating. So far as His Majesty's Government were concerned, they did not consider that the security which it was intended to establish would be complete without the co-operation of Germany. The general attitude of the Government was to approach the problem with a flexible mind in order to obtain, as far as possible, a realisation of the idea that it was an effective check upon aggression.

It was manifest that when these efforts were being made to build up a system of co-operation and good-will in which Germany would take her proper part, such unilateral declarations as those just made in Berlin regarding land forces, air forces and naval forces must profoundly disturb the peace of mind of the whole of Europe.

APPEAL TO GERMANY

It would be a great calamity if there was any weakening in the confidence which existed between France, Italy and ourselves. Our aim was to increase the number of co-operators and try and prevent their being separated into different and rival camps. Would not Germany now come forward and show her readiness to help to restore international confidence so rudely shaken by her recent independent action in regard to armaments?

What we had done in this country in the matter of armaments had not aroused suspicion or jealousy in any other country.

With regard to the proposed naval talks with Germany, the prospects were that they would take place nearer the middle of May than in the earlier days of May, as was originally contemplated. He confessed to great surprise that this moment should have been chosen by Germany to announce a shipbuilding programme, including submarines, which it could never have been imagined would be of no concern to us.

The German decision to build submarines was a menace, and he did not intend to minimise its gravity, but we were still prepared, without in any way conceding the right to disregard treaty provisions, to receive the German representatives in London for the contemplated preliminary conversations.

AIR STRENGTH

In the debate last November, the Prime Minister continued, certain estimates were put forward as to the strength of the German Air Force. Mr. Baldwin then gave an assurance on behalf of the Government that in no circumstances would they accept any position of inferiority with regard to any air force Germany might raise in the future. It was now known that the German Air Force had been expanded to a point considerably in excess of the estimates which had been placed before the House. That was a grave fact, in regard to which both the Government and the Air Ministry had taken immediate notice.

This was not the occasion to go into details, but the Government took this, the earliest, opportunity of stating publicly that Mr. Baldwin's declaration still stood. The Government were already taking steps for a further and accelerated expansion of the British Air Force to implement that declaration. (Cheers.)

He hoped it would be possible to come to some international agreement as regarded air strengths. The possibilities of actual warfare were so appalling that surely every civilised nation should strive its utmost to reduce the use of this terrible weapon. The British Government urged that a halt should be called, and that the Powers should limit their air arms within well-defined bounds.

In conclusion, he said the British policy combined defence, collective security and international agreement for armaments and peace. It was not aimed at military alliances, but at the widest possible co-operation. The present good understanding between France and Italy and Britain they valued as a guarantee of peace. It threatened no one. Every other nation which contemplated peace would be welcomed into this free companionage.

OPPOSITION'S VIEW

Mr. George Lansbury (Leader of the Opposition) regretted that there had been so much said about increase in armaments instead of about other conditions which made for peace. As to aerial warfare, he would like to see it done away with for good and all, and he invited the Foreign Secretary to say whether, in conjunction with other Powers, the British Government would be willing to abolish this terrible menace.

Sir Herbert Samuel (Liberal) characterised the Prime Minister's statement as a reiteration of principles which had already been announced and which commanded the general assent of the country. He believed, however, that the country would not support a policy of co-operation with other Powers in opposition to Germany.

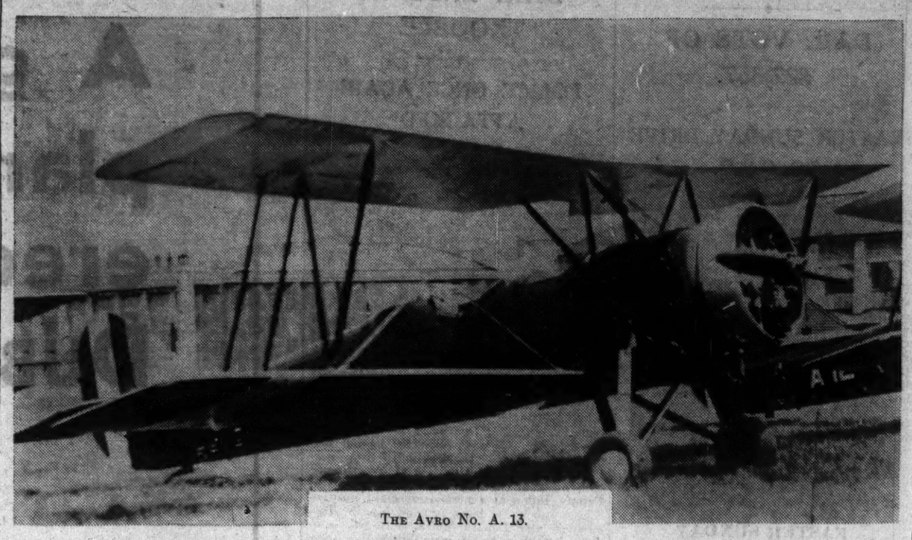

TWO CRITICAL NOTES

Mr. Churchill agreed with the measures recently taken to deal with the situation, but complained of their tardiness. The gravest matter of all was the state of the national defences. During the last three years Germany had worked increasingly upon a vast design of rearmament, upon a scale which would give her such predominance in Europe as would enable her, if she chose—and why should she not choose—to reverse the results of the Great War. German ascendancy in the air was already a fact. The military part was far advanced, and now the naval part was coming into view. There was no doubt whatever that the German Air Force was immensely superior to our own, and by the end of the year she would be three or four times stronger than we were. In such circumstances we were bound to act in concert with France and Italy and such other Powers, great and small, as were anxious to preserve the peace.

Sir Austen Chamberlain confessed that he shared Mr. Churchill's anxieties, and was puzzled by the ignorance of the Government as to what had been going on. He was gravely concerned about the situation which had been allowed to grow up and the future which confronted us. Public confidence had received a great shock when, after repeated declarations as to the relative strength of our Air Force

FREE STATE AIR OFFICER KILLED

FLEET BUILT OVERNIGHT

GERMANY'S AIR FORCE

"HOLD ITS OWN AGAINST ANY"

GERMANY has done something decisive for peace: she has re-armed. She demands an air force equal to any constellation of Powers which may arise at any moment for or against peace. The German Air Force is now prepared to hold its own against any in the world.

While Mr. Ramsay Macdonald was making his statement on British arms policy in the House of Commons yesterday General Goering, the German Air Minister, was making the announcement from which the foregoing is extracted to foreign Press representatives in Berlin.

General Goering's declaration that Germany demands an air force "equal to any constellation of Powers" is understood to mean that, in the event of any combination of European Powers which does not include Germany, the latter would demand an air force equal to the combined strength of the Allied Powers.

Reuter understands that the projected Franco-Soviet pact is not considered to imply that Germany must have an air force as large as those of France and Russia together, because Russia is not regarded in Berlin as primarily a European Power.

At present Germany's aim is to have an air force equal to that of France.

A STRONG FORCE

"Only a short while ago our 'planes were not hidden anywhere. They just were not there," said General Goering. "We had only experimental ones. All the rest was preparation for the time when we were to build our air fleet overnight.

"The German Air Fleet will always be as strong as that of other nations for or against peace. It is now so strong that whosoever attacks Germany will meet with a very strong resistance, indeed, in the air.

"We have no old machines. Our 'planes are the most up-to-date in existence. None the less, we shall not shrink from reducing this air force in accordance with any international treaty which may be concluded for all."

He went on: "If you ask about the numbers of the air force I can only reply, 'It is small, but it is all right.'

"It is idle to speak of Germany's demands for equality. She has now got equality. Germany has done something decisive for peace. She has re-armed.

"Germany needs support and will collaborate in peace, but other nations must not interfere with matters which do not concern them. We no longer go through Europe, hat in hand, like beggars. We keep our hats on now, and take them off only when someone else raises theirs."

BRITISH AIR EXPANSION

DEPENDS UPON GERMANY

The broad effect of the Prime Minister's announcement regarding the Air Force is that the five years' expansion programme adopted last July is to be carried through as rapidly as possible, and that thereafter the further expansion of the Royal Air Force is to be continued to such extent as may be deemed necessary, having regard to the size of the German Air Force.

Whether the limit of development set by the July programme—41½ squadrons—will eventually be exceeded, and to what extent, depend entirely on the future growth of the German Air Force.

As Ministers view the situation, Germany has reached parity in the air with Great Britain, and is still expanding her Air Force. So long as these conditions persist, and so long as there is no agreement for the limitation of air strengths, Great Britain will go on expanding her Air Force in the resolve to give full effect to Mr. Baldwin's pledge of November 28th last—"His Majesty's Government are determined in no conditions to accept any position of inferiority with regard to what Air Force may be raised in Germany in the future."

The total R.A.F. strength in first-line machines at home and overseas is 1,020. The home defence force consists at present of 500 first-line aircraft, and the effect of the completion of the July programme would be to raise that total to 875 machines. This would still be 145 aircraft short of a parity basis on the full strength of the R.A.F.

But Hitler made it clear in the Berlin talks with Sir John Simon that, while parity has already been reached with Great Britain, what Germany aims at is parity with France, which has 1,700 first-line machines.

with that of Germany, it was found that the Government had been misinformed throughout. The situation in Europe today was graver than at any time since 1914, and he was not at all sure that we had sufficient time to put our defences into a proper state.

Sir John Simon (Foreign Secretary) having spoken, the debate was adjourned.

BALDONNEL CRASH

Dive During Aerial Target Practice

REHEARSING FOR NATIONAL AVIATION DAY

DIVING into the ground at more than 200 miles an hour in a Free State Army aeroplane, Lieutenant Michael Kennedy, a twenty-six-year old Air Corps pilot, was killed at Baldonnel Aerodrome, County Dublin, shortly before 11 o'clock yesterday morning. He was the sole occupant of the aircraft.

With two other pilots, Lieutenant Johnston and Lieutenant E. Stapleton, of the 1st Co-Operation Squadron of the Army Air Corps, he was practising a feat to be demonstrated in the Phœnix Park at the National Aviation Day display on to-morrow week.

Lieutenant Stapleton, the senior Officer, who has been with the corps since its establishment, was leading the formation of three Avro 626 aircraft, which are fitted with "Lynx" 215 horse-power engines, in aerial gunnery practice against a ground target on the aerodrome. When nearing the target Lieutenant Stapleton dived first, followed by Lieutenant Johnston, with Lieutenant Kennedy, who had been flying on the left side of the formation in aircraft No. A 13, bringing up behind. The first two machines completed their dives and started to climb again, but the last aeroplane failed to rise, and crashed straight into the ground near the centre of the aerodrome.

BURST INTO FLAMES

Striking the earth it burst into flames, the petrol tank exploding and, flying through the air like a ball of fire, landing nearly 200 feet away. The whole machine bounced back, and fell again about 35 feet from where it first struck the ground. The aerodrome fire tender and ambulance immediately rushed to the spot, but it was impossible to extricate the young pilot. When the fire had been extinguished his badly-burned body was taken from the wreckage to St. Bricin's Military Hospital, where an inquest will be held. It is virtually certain, however, that the pilot was killed as soon as the machine hit the ground. The parachute which Lieutenant Kennedy carried was burnt away.

The pilots of the other machines, seeing the crash from the air, circled the aerodrome, and both landed safely.

Before the wreckage of Lieutenant Kennedy's machine was removed, it was inspected by engineers of the Army Air Corps, but it is understood that they were unable to ascertain the cause of the accident. The controls appeared to have been working perfectly. Apparently the engine must have been full on when the machine struck the ground, as some of its seven cylinders, which exploded, were picked up at a considerable distance from the aeroplane.

A COMPETENT PILOT

Lieutenant Michael Kennedy, whose home was at Ballymacreese, Ballyneety, County Limerick, joined the Free State Army in the 1st (Irish-Speaking) Battalion of the Infantry, and was detailed to the Air Corps for instruction as a pilot about fifteen months ago. Together with a number of other pupil-officers, including one of his companions in the formation—Lieutenant Johnston—he completed his course of training about ten weeks ago, and was considered a competent pilot. For this reason he was one of the officers selected to take part in the Air Corps demonstration on May 11th.

DESCRIPTION OF AN EYE-WITNESS

An eye-witness, describing the dive to an Irish Times representative, said: "The three aeroplanes had already dived towards the ground together and then climbed up. Afterwards the leader of the 'V' formation gave a signal and dived again. He was followed by the man on his right and then by the other aeroplane. All of them were going terribly fast, apparently towards a target on the middle of the aerodrome. The first two 'planes started to climb again, but the last one, with its engine roaring, went straight on into the ground and bounced up in flames before falling some distance away. The petrol tank exploded with a loud explosion and bits of the engine flew through the air. I saw the fire engine and ambulance rush out from between the hangars, but the pilot must have been dead as soon as the nose of his machine hit the ground."

The dead pilot was very popular with his brother-officers and with the men of the Army Air Corps. Mass will be celebrated for him at the aerodrome this morning.

MOCK AERIAL BATTLES

The display of the Army Air Corps planned for the National Aviation Day is the most ambitious they have ever attempted. Aeroplanes are to engage each other in mock aerial battles, and then attacks will be made on ground targets. It was this last operation which Lieutenant Kennedy and his companions were practising when he crashed. The pilots dive their aeroplanes in what is known as a "power dive," with the engine full on, and then pull out of the dive a few hundred feet above the ground and climb steeply again.

The Avro aeroplanes, which were being used in the rehearsal, were delivered to the Free State Air Corps about a year ago for advanced training in all branches of flying. They are of a two-seater type, but only one man was in each aircraft yesterday. The Co-operation Squadron, of which Lieutenant Kennedy was a member, was established to work in conjunction with ground forces of the Army.

PREVIOUS ACCIDENTS

It will be recalled that while rehearsing for a display in August, 1933, an Avro "Cadet" aeroplane, piloted by Lieutenant Twohig, crashed, and the officer was killed. At the display in the same month, in the Phœnix Park, a Vickers "Vespa," which was taking part in a mock aerial battle, spun into the ground before thousands of spectators, and the occupants, Captain Oscar Heron (pilot) and Private Richard Tobin, were killed. Last year Lieutenant Arthur Russell and one of his passengers, Private Twomey, were killed when a Fairey IIIF day bomber crashed into the garden of a house at Terenure. The third member of the crew, Sergeant Canavan, was severely injured.

Civil air crashes in Ireland in recent years included that of a "Moth" aeroplane, owned by Major Samuel Dunckley, into Dalkey Sound, in which he and his passenger were killed; and, at an air display in County Limerick in 1933, Mr. W. R. Elliott, chief instructor to the Irish Aero Club, lost his life as the result of a collision in the air.

ARMED RISING IN MANILA

TOWN HALL SEIZED AND RECAPTURED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MANILA (PHILIPPINE ISLANDS), Thursday.

Three thousand armed Radicals captured the municipal building at Santa Rosa, Laguna Province, to night. Three of them were killed, and four constabulary and soldiers, including one lieutenant, were wounded in a pitched battle when the constabulary drove out the Radicals.

Three hundred rebels are reported to be armed in the Cavite Province, where United States marines have been called out to guard the navy yard.

Telephone wires between North and South Manila have been cut, which leads to the fear that other uprisings have taken place in near-by provinces.

FRANCO-SOVIET PACT SIGNED

MINISTER'S SATISFACTION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Thursday.

The Franco-Soviet pact was signed at the Quai D'Orsay by M. Potemkin, the Soviet Ambassador, and M. Laval this evening.

After the pact was signed M. Laval, in a statement to the Press, said: "At the moment when we have just signed the pact consecrating the happy result of our negotiations, I wish to express my satisfaction. We had only one preoccupation—that of making our two countries share in the organisation of security in Europe.

"It is voluntarily that we remained within the framework of the League of Nations, just as from the outset of our conversations we have taken care to exclude no country from our diplomatic undertaking. It is for peace that we worked."

Lady Houston has sent the following message to the Marquess of Londonderry, the Air Minister:—

TRAM STRIKE HOPE

HOUSE OF A T.D. SET ON FIRE

ARMED RAID AT MITCHELSTOWN

GUARDS VISIT BLUE SHIRT SUPPORTERS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

MITCHELSTOWN, Thursday.

ABOUT one o'clock this morning an armed raid was made on the residence of Mr. Patrick S. Murphy, T.D., at Cloghleafin, near Mitchelstown, and the premises set on fire.

Mr. Murphy was not at home. One of the maids, on hearing a knock at the door, asked who was there. Told it was the sergeant of guards from Mitchelstown, she opened the door, and one raider entered and held up the inmates with a gun and ordered them out of the house, stating that it was intended to burn the place.

Mrs. Murphy protested and refused to leave. She was removed by the raiders, who also removed Mrs. Murphy's two months old baby, which was sleeping in its cot.

Hay was strewn on the sitting-room and breakfast-room furnishings, and sprinkled with petrol and set alight. The windows were broken. The contents of two rooms on the ground floor were completely burned out, and the damage will amount to several hundred pounds.

Mrs. Murphy, in an interview, said that when she protested the leader of the raiders told her that her husband showed little sympathy for the babes of those whose cattle were being seized.

ACTIVITY BY GUARDS

There has been extraordinary activity by guards in the Mitchelstown, Kildorrery and Glanworth districts to-day. Chief Superintendent McCarthy and Superintendent Brady directed operations. The houses of prominent Blue Shirt supporters were visited and the inmates questioned.

At Mitchelstown Mr. Sean Kean, M.C.C., has been detained at the Garda Station under the Constitution Amendment Act.

BUDGET DATE POSTPONED

When outlining the order of business, in the Dail yesterday, the Vice-President (Mr. S. T. O'Kelly) said that the Budget would be taken on the 15th May, and not on the 8th May as originally announced.

Mr. Dillon (U.I., Donegal)—The Minister for Finance is finding it a little more difficult to produce that surplus than he thought.

Mr. Donnelly (F.F., Leix-Offaly)—Wait till you see.

Mr. Dillon—It will require a little more grooming.

NO RELIEF FOR THE SPIRIT TRADE

MR. MacENTEE'S REPLY TO A DEPUTATION

Mr. MacEntee (Minister for Finance) informed a deputation from the Licensed Grocers' and Vintners' Protection Association at Leinster House yesterday that he would not be able, under his Budget on the 15th inst., to reduce beer or spirit duties, but he undertook in respect of the Budget to be introduced next year to consider the question of a revision of the licence duties.

The deputation, which was introduced by Mr. P. Hedigan, Chairman, urged the Minister to take a penny off the pint of beer, and also to reduce the duty on whiskey.

The Minister said that he thoroughly appreciated the difficulties of the trade, but that as matters stood he feared that the revenue could not endure the loss involved by a reduction of the duties. He stated that the country was passing through a transition period, and that things which may be done with comparative ease in normal times may prove embarrassing in a period such as this.

The deputation was composed of: Messrs. C. E. Reddin, Vice-Chairman; M. O'Byrne, Secretary; Patrick Conway, J. Ryan and W. J. O'Hara (Dublin), Alderman Dowd (Drogheda), J. Murphy and J. B. O'Brien (Limerick), — Lydon (Galway), J. Desmond (Cork), — Lysaght (Tipperary).

IRISH FREE STATE FLOUR

INCREASED DEMAND URGED

Mr. James V. Rank, Chairman of Ranks (Ireland), Ltd., considers that the Irish Free State is fast reaching the position of being able to mill more flour than is demanded at present. He expressed that opinion at the first meeting of the company in Limerick yesterday (fully reported in this issue). Millers, he said, should consider ways of increasing the demand for flour. Free State farmers were able to dispose of their wheat at prices in excess of those for foreign wheat as a result of the co-operation of the Government and the millers.

ISLE OF MAN CAR RACES

The Royal Automobile Club have issued a complete list of entries for the Isle of Man "Round the Houses" Races to be held on May 29th and 31st.

There are fifteen entries for the Mannin Moar (cars over 1,500 c.c.), including the Hon. Brian Lewis, last year's winner, who is to drive a Bugatti in place of the Alfa-Romeo he drove last year. C. S. P. Dodson, who was second, will again drive an Alfa. There are only three British cars in this race.

For the Mannin Beg (cars under 1,500 c.c.) there are twenty entries, including three of the new Austins, a Maserati and a Bugatti.

PROPOSALS TO-DAY?

GOVERNMENT INTERVENTION

'BUS WORKERS' DIFFICULTY

EXTRA £8,000 FOR THE MEN

DEFINITE advance towards a settlement of the Dublin tram and 'bus strike was made yesterday. Representatives of the trade unions involved in the dispute and of the Department of Industry and Commerce made considerable progress with the hammering out of proposals for a settlement.

These proposals may be completed to-day.

The nature of the proposals has not been revealed, but it is understood that they follow closely upon certain suggestions made by Mr. P. Fleming.

In some cases it is believed that the men would receive half their demands. This, in the case of the tram workers who were cut in 1928 and 1929, would cost the company about £12,500 per annum.

ADJOURNMENT

As far as can be gathered, the discussions on the 'bus grades had not come to an end when the conference adjourned last night.

As was expected, the 'bus workers' side of the problem presented the greatest difficulty, and were it not for this it is quite possible that a set of proposals, which, it is understood, have the approval of the company, would have been available last night.

Last night the position was decidedly hopeful, and it was gathered that the new proposals in terms of cash means about another £8,000 or £10,000 per annum to the men, over and above the £25,000 offered in the negotiations which took place before the strike.

As a result of the Department's move all other endeavours to bring about a settlement have been pushed into the background.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

BRITISH FOREIGN POLICY

The Times observes in an editorial article to-day:—The Prime Minister yesterday made a welcome statement in broad terms of British foreign policy, the lines of which may henceforth be regarded as clearly laid down. The Anglo-French declaration of February 3, to which he referred at the outset, was the programme of the two Governments; yesterday's speech expounded, specifically and comprehensively, the policy of the British Government. There is, of course, no discrepancy between them, and the speech should be followed, as speeches have not always been followed in the past, by a fresh effort to carry the programme through. Mr. Macdonald showed that the British Government mean to combine a close union with France and Italy, with a determined attempt to include Germany in the community of nations on terms of perfect equality. The great significance of the February declaration was the proposed substitution of an agreed settlement on armaments for Part V. of the Treaty of Versailles, and events have since really simplified the process, though the brusqueness of German action has made smooth collaboration much more difficult.

The Prime Minister referred in dignified terms, with disapprobation, but without useless recrimination, to the successive measures of rearmament by land, air and sea which the German Government have recently announced. The historian, he said in a notable phrase, will deal with the trends and the causes; the politician has to face the actual situation, practically and objectively. He did not minimise the gravity of the German action, and frankly expressed the natural annoyance of this country, in particular, at the announcement about submarines, made just at the moment when German experts had been invited to come to London to discuss naval strengths. In spite of this manifest discourtesy, the British Government are, rightly, still prepared to receive the German representatives, and the conversations, the Prime Minister said, will be carried on under precisely the same conditions as those recently held with the United States and Japan.

That statement in itself shows that the British Government at least have got out of the Versailles habit of mind. It may be that soon—as Mr. Sandys, who knows post-war Germany well, said last night—there will be a better chance of arms limitation than there has ever been before. Herr Hitler has, in any case, declared himself in favour of the limitation and the supervision of armaments. The Prime Minister ended on a hopeful note. He sees chances of appeasement, and he means to take them.

NEW UNION CASTLE SHIPS

ORDER PLACED IN BELFAST

Mr. Robertson Gibb, Chairman of the Union-Castle Mail Steamship Company, announced at the annual general meeting at Southern House, London, yesterday, that two new mail ships would displace the Armadale Castle and Kenilworth Castle.

He added that orders had been placed with Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd., of Belfast, for the construction of two new intermediate passenger and cargo motor ships, each of approximately 15,000 gross tons.

SEVEN MEN FOR TRIAL

FOUR ON CHARGE OF MURDER

THE LONGFORD SHOOTING

POLICE REPORTS OF SPEECHES

EVIDENCE AT YESTERDAY'S HEARING

STATEMENTS in regard to speeches alleged to have been made at Edgeworthstown were read at Longford yesterday, when the seven men again appeared before District Justice Kenny in connection with the fatal shooting of Mr. Richard More O'Ferrall on February 9th last and the wounding of his father, Mr. Gerald More O'Ferrall.

William Mulligan, Ward's terrace, Longford; John Shanley, Dromod, Leitrim; James Reynolds and John Reynolds, brothers, of Currycamp, Dromod; Hugh Devine, Edgeworthstown, and Michael Ferguson, Longford, are charged with the murder of Mr. Richard More O'Ferrall, and Michael Kelly, Dublin, is charged with conspiracy in connection with the affair.

The accused men were brought from Dublin under heavy escort for the resumed taking of the depositions.

The first witness was Chief Superintendent Brennan, who corroborated the evidence of Superintendent Glynn as to the identification parade in Mullingar.

Superintendent Finnegan, Granard, said that he received certain instructions from his authorities in regard to a meeting to be held in Edgeworthstown on Sunday, December 2. He detailed Detective Officers Challen and Carthy and Sergeant Jones to listen carefully to the speeches and report on them. On December 2 the meeting was held, and there were on the platform:—Richard Tuite, Hugh Devine, Joseph Moloney, Peter F. Mullally, of Edgeworthstown; Patrick Murphy, Michael Ferguson, shop assistant, Longford; Michael J. Kelly, and a man who was introduced as Peadar O'Rourke.

A PARADE

The so-called I.R.A. parade consisted of about 130 men and boys, and was preceded by the Longford Fife and Drum Band. They carried inscriptions in connection with the Edgeworthstown tenants, but witness did not remember the terms of them. Witness had no complaint to make about the speeches of either Tuite or Moloney. The next speaker was the man Peadar O'Rourke. He was introduced as having come from I.R.A. headquarters. He then explained why the I.R.A. was there at the request of the Town Tenants, and said that the I.R.A. would support any fight against landlordism, capitalism and imperialism. He advised the Edgeworthstown Town Tenants to resist, with all possible force, the bailiffs, and, if the bailiffs were accompanied by Guards or "Broy Harriers" they must be beaten. He said that he was sure there were plenty of pitchforks and boughs of trees around Edgeworthstown, if required, but he advised them to leave one strong bough convenient to Mr. More O'Ferrall's house, as it might be needed.

Mr. Maguire—Have you been able to trace or identify Mr. O'Rourke?—Mr. O'Rourke has not been located. The next speaker was Michael J. Kelly, the accused, who was also introduced as being from I.R.A. headquarters. He advised the town tenants, if they were evicted, to go back again into their homes, to break down the doors. If the Guards and "Broy Harriers" used sticks and batons, they must use sticks and batons; if they used more drastic weapons, they must use more drastic weapons. In plain words, he said, if the Guards used rifles and revolvers, they must use rifles and revolvers.

"THE BOUGH"

He told them not to forget the bough of the tree referred to by the previous speaker, as it might be useful with six feet of rope.

He went on to advise all of military age to join the I.R.A. and to become proficient in the use of firearms, as they were the only parties in Ireland entitled to carry firearms.

The Justice—When did you take these notes?—On the evening of the meeting. I made notes for my report to my authorities.

He also said, witness continued, that the Guards, "Broy Harriers," and Militia were in their path to freedom, and they must be removed. There was nothing that wakened up their men like the crack of a Lee-Enfield rifle, he said.

Michael Fergusson, prisoner, witness said, then addressed the meeting. He stated that he was not an orator, but that he would guarantee the support of the Longford Battalion, I.R.A., to the Edgeworthstown tenants in their fight. That ended the meeting.

Witness also gave evidence of finding a card (produced) near Lisard House, and a man's sock on the grounds and of finding traces of tar. He said that he saw a distinct cast of a motor tyre on the left-hand side of the road, some yards on the Whitehill (Ballinalee) side of the road. When arrested Mulligan said that he knew nothing about it. Shanley said, "This is all a frame-up against me." Neither of the Reynolds's made any statement.

IDENTIFICATION PARADE

At the identification parade in Mullingar witness said, "I took notes of remarks made by the prisoners. When Miss Marjory O'Ferrall said that she saw Shanley at Lisard on the night of February 9th, Shanley said, 'You never did.' James Joseph Reynolds remarked to Shanley, 'Pass no remarks, she's well squared.' When Miss Webster stated that she thought Number 8 on the parade was in Lisard also, James Joe Reynolds said to Shanley: 'That will take the harm out of it.' Later, when Mary Feely failed to identify anybody on the parade, James Joe Reynolds exclaimed: 'You can't buy the poor Irish. The imperialistic dirt can be bought.'"

Cross-examined by Kelly, the accused man, In the course of your investigations in connection with this case, did you discover any more evidence other than the meeting to connect me with this case?—No.

Kelly—I can take it, then, that the only evidence to connect me with the case is a meeting nine weeks before February 9?—That is so.

Detective Sergeant Carthy also gave evidence as to the Edgeworthstown meeting on December 2. He spoke of speeches made by the accused men, Devine, Kelly and Ferguson.

Sergeant Jones, Edgeworthstown, also gave an account of the meeting of December 2.

Mr. Kelly, witness said, apologised for the absence of Sean McBride, Dublin, son of Major McBride. The town tenants of Edgeworthstown, he said, should stand together and pay no rents. "If anybody pays behind your back make it hot for him, so that he will not pay again. De Valera is a Judas Iscariot. He has 35 Republicans in jail. Our object is the attainment of an Irish Republic for the 32 counties."

LOADED REVOLVER

On the night of February 9 witness was on sick leave, but returned to duty at 9.30 p.m., and instructed certain Guards to proceed to Lisard House. Guard Walsh subsequently handed him a Guard's cap and fully loaded revolver, and Guard McMorrow, at 11.30, handed in a galvanised padlock, a chain about two feet long, and a black and white muffler, and a snuff-tin containing about a quart of tar.

The sergeant said that the writing on the documents referred to by the handwriting expert was, he believed, the handwriting of Devine, whom he saw writing on a few occasions.

Superintendent O'Dowd, Longford, gave evidence of assisting at the investigation of the More O'Ferrall murder. Witness attended at Mrs. Nevin's, Ward's terrace, Longford, on March 31 and ordered the removal of William Mulligan, who stayed there, to the barracks. Mulligan made a statement in the barrack, which he refused to sign.

Mr. Maguire read the statement, which was in question and answer form. Mulligan was asked where he was between 6 o'clock and 10 o'clock, and he said he remembered giving up work at one o'clock, it being a "half-day." He had his dinner and was "knocking about the town" until about 6 o'clock, when he got a toothache, and went home to his lodging and went to bed. He could not remember whom he met in the town. Mrs. Nevin took him up supper about half-past eight or nine o'clock. He was speaking to Mick Nevin, who came in about half-past ten, and Nevin said that there was something wrong as the Guards were stopping cars in the town. The first he heard of the O'Ferrall murder was when he came out from Mass next day and saw it in the paper. Asked if he knew James Joe Reynolds, he said: "I will not answer any more questions."

Asked if he was a member of the I.R.A., he said that he would not answer.

Asked if the Longford Battalion was in the Leitrim Brigade area, he said: "I will not answer that question."

Mr. Fagan, Secretary, Ballymahon Town Tenants, said that he received the letter (produced) from Mr. Hugh Devine, and also a letter dated 10th May, 1924.

Thomas Watson, Longford, employed by Mr. Donlon, Longford, who hires out motor cars, said that on February 9 he drove Mr. Fallon, auctioneer, to the back-gate at Lisard House. He gave Hugh Devine a lift from Edgeworthstown to Longford, where he arrived about 2 o'clock. He did not drive Devine anywhere else that day.

Did you see whether M. Devine had any parcel?—I did not see any parcel. He could have one. He drove some of the Longford Band over to Edgeworthstown on 2nd December, the day of the meeting. There were two cars belonging to his employer engaged.

Detective Officer Sullivan said that he found a document headed "Battalion Council meeting" in clothes which Mulligan admitted were his; also a revolver holster on a loft in the house, and a bucket containing tar. Outside there was a dog house being tarred.

Guard Hugh Sweeney, Drumshambo, said that James Joseph Reynolds was employed with Mr. Lynch publican, Drumshambo, until May 24, 1935.

LOCKS

In Thomas J. McManus's shop in Drumshambo he found a box of locks similar to the lock produced. Some locks were missing out of the box. On a subsequent date—April 3—he counted the locks in the box; five remained. He examined Mr. McManus's stock book and ascertained that he had six on January 2. On April 9 he found four chains in McManus's store and he took possession of the one produced.

Mr. Maguire—It is a very peculiar chain.

The witness produced a padlock and two keys, and said that the former was similar to the one found at the gate at Lisard House.

John Donlon, brother of a Longford garage proprietor, gave evidence of driving the Longford Band to Edgeworthstown on December 2, at the request of Hugh Devine, and being paid in Edgeworthstown by Devine.

Superintendent Liddy, Longford, deposed that when he told Shanley that he was detaining him, he said "O.K."

Mr. Maguire—That is all the evidence.

William Mulligan, John Shanley, James Reynolds and John Reynolds were committed for trial at the Central Criminal Court, in Dublin, on a charge of murder.

Informations were refused against Devine and Ferguson on the charge of murder, but Devine, Ferguson and Michael Kelly were returned for trial on the charge of conspiracy.

UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLY CHARGE

SIX ACCUSED MEN REMANDED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONGFORD, Thursday.

At a special court, which was held in Longford, before District Justice Kenny this morning, six men from the Drumlish and Ballinalee area: Thomas Quinn, Frank McGlynn, Hugh Collum, Peter Heany, Patrick Morrow and Patrick Forde—were brought up in custody from Sligo Jail, charged with unlawful assembly at Edgeworthstown on April 3, with fifty or more persons, with intent to commit a crime — to wit, of making forcible entry and taking possession of certain tenements. They were further charged with conspiracy and obstructing the Guards.

Sergeant Jones, Edgeworthstown, in reply to Mr. T. W. Delany, said that inquiries were not complete in the case, and he asked for a remand in custody till May 13.

The Justice asked three of the accused men if they had any questions to ask.

The defendants did not answer.

Mr. Maguire, solicitor—I do not suppose there is much use in asking a remand on bail.

Mr. Delany—I have been asked to make application for a remand in custody. I do not wish for a moment to prejudice anything against the accused men, but they are charged with something that occurred when we were sitting here on Wednesday week, and the Guards are under the impression that a grave risk of the peace would arise.

The Justice—It is a serious offence, and, as you say, I have judicial knowledge of the existing state of affairs here.

The accused men were remanded in custody.

KERRY WAR CLAIMS

TWO MEN DEAD IN SHED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

TRALEE, Thursday.

At Tralee Circuit Court to-day, P. J. Mangan, chemist, Cahirciveen, claimed £318 8s. 6d. for goods supplied to the I.R.A. Included in the goods supplied were "war flour" and "Irish cheddar," two explosives, the materials for which were contraband, and had to be smuggled into Cahirciveen by ships' captains, to whom applicant paid cash. The Judge, having heard the evidence of witnesses who received supplies from Mangan, adjourned the case for expert evidence.

Winifred Lyne, Currahane, Ardfert, who claimed for hay, two heifers and a sow destroyed, said that on 13th February, 1923, she heard a machine-gun firing near the hayshed where Michael Sinnott and James O'Connor were sleeping in a dug-out. Later, witness's daughter went out and returned to tell witness that the two boys were dead in the shed. There were 20 to 24 tons of hay in the shed, and it was covered with blood. Half the hay had to be burned and the balance used as litter. Two heifers became blind a few days later and a sow died of hæmorrhage. The Judge reported for £16 for the hay.

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

EASTER SUNDAY DRIVE TO G.P.O.

THE MINISTER FOR JUSTICE (Mr. RUTTLEDGE) moved for a vote of £22,357 for the Department of Justice in the Dail last night.

Mr. MULCAHY (U.I., Dublin N.) said that in 1931 President de Valera, at Ennis, stated that the cost of the Army could be reduced by £500,000, and that of the police, which was work of a political character, could be reduced also. In spite of the President's declaration, there was an additional £32,000 spent on these services in the first year of the present Ministry's office, and the estimates had increased year by year until this year, when they were increased by £70,000 on the figures of 1931-32. This increase had been side by side with increased turmoil and untraced crime from end to end of the country. He asked the Minister to give more explicitly, and in more detail, some explanation of the manifestations of police failure that existed throughout the country.

EASTER SUNDAY

On Easter Sunday, when what the Government party considered a big national commemoration was arranged, the President attended in State at Portobello Barracks and arranged to travel from there, in State, to the General Post Office to unveil a memorial to the 1916 men. He travelled in State from the backgate of the barracks through an unannounced route, keeping off the main thoroughfares of the city. The people of the country were entitled to get from the Minister for Justice the reason that the President, on an official occasion, with all the entourage of State, from one of the principal barracks to a big national gathering, by an unannounced route through back streets.

Mr. KELLY (F.F., Dublin S.)—The back streets were duly announced in the Press days before he travelled.

Mr. MULCAHY—He was preceded by two armoured cars, his Ministers sandwiched between cars of detectives, and then the President himself followed.

Proceeding, Mr. MULCAHY asked what were the reasons for prohibiting the people from taking up positions near the General Post Office.

He believed that the police could have prevented the attack on the Savoy at the showing of a film of the Royal wedding. He wanted to know whether it was the police force, the higher officers, or the Minister's department that had failed on that occasion. On a recent Saturday night police officers had been shot at in Grafton street and at Burgh quay, within earshot of armed detectives, and on one had been charged in connection with those offences except people who were not there.

They knew that there were forces of disorder in the city and that the police had failed to deal with them. They knew that in some cases it was the fault of the police, but in others they could hardly blame the Civic Guards. There was a certain amount of demoralisation among the police. Within the last year or two the force had been diluted with people of a kind that ought not to be in it. The excuse had been taken by the Minister nearly two years ago that the Dail was to be attacked by Blueshirts, the idea being to enable the Government to dilute the force with a certain class which they thought would be useful. That had shaking the morale of the police in several areas.

A FLAG DAY

On Easter Sunday the Minister had allowed a collection to be made in the streets of Dublin and several parts of the country without the required police permit. The purpose of that collection, as announced in the Fianna Fail party organ, was largely the purchase of arms in an illegal way, to be kept illegally, and used against the State. Would the Minister explain why he asked the House to vote, year after year, money for the support of a police force, and why had they allowed money to be solicited for the purchase of those arms?

He continued that the Minister was failing in another way. Men had been charged before the Tribunal with not answering questions, and with sedition which had occurred four months ago. Yet charges dealing with the most important things that affected the peace and order of this country were being completely ignored; that was, charges levied against men that they were openly proclaiming their purchase of arms, and preparation and training for use of those arms against this country's Government. The deputy did not care to accuse the Attorney-General of levying those charges.

If the Attorney-General is the person responsible for not pursuing these charges, and for pursuing trivial charges, I blame the Minister for Justice for not sacking him," said Mr. Mulcahy.

Mr. MULCAHY said that he also had a complaint against the partiality of the police in certain districts in pursuing offenders of one kind or another. It had been possible in January last for a young fellow found in a Midleton fair-green with a revolver to be taken to the Guard barracks, and, because he was the son of a Fianna Fail supporter, the local superintendent passed over the charge, and took no notice of it. It had been possible, when a telegraph pole was cut in Ballylanders area, for Blue Shirts to be interrogated, and for the interrogations to be dropped when it was found that a Fianna Fail supporter was responsible. In the Kilfinnane area there had been over a period a vicious series of attacks made with arms on people and property, and when, in February, a question was asked in the House the Minister for Agriculture (answering for Mr. Ruttledge) glibly said the police were doing all they could; that they were very busy, and that they had arrested forty members of the League of Youth.

Would the Minister say whether it was the League of Youth, indignant farmers, the I.R.A. (including the Communists) that made it necessary to increase the vote for police activities in the country?

RECENT DUBLIN RAID

Mr. McGILLIGAN (U.I., Nat. Univ.) said that three or four weeks ago there was a series of arrests of members of a body which the President had described as "avowedly militaristic." In the course of making these arrests the house of an ordinary harmless citizen was visited at 2 o'clock in the morning, and, though they might have a warrant for the raid, that citizen, remembering that the guise of Civic Guards had been used for a criminal activity, asked that the warrant be read outside his house. His wife then came on the scene, and the husband went to a top window and blew an ordinary police whistle. The Guards, who had come to make the raids and arrests, broke and ran away. That was at 2 o'clock in the morning. They returned at 4 o'clock, got into the house, but late found they had arrested the wrong man. The Minister for Justice wrote an apology, but nothing was done to the people who had blundered. Was there a disciplinary inquiry or anybody sacked for that blunder? The house they were after was the house of a notorious irregular, who was miles away and in a different district of the city altogether. When a mistake like that could occur it was time for the Minister to say what disciplinary action, if any, had been taken against the people responsible.

At this stage progress was reported.

ROAD TRANSPORT BILL

Moving the second reading of the Road Transport Bill, 1935, the MINISTER FOR INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE (Mr. Lemass) said that the experience which the Department had had of the operations of the Road Transport Acts made it clear that the amendments in this new bill were necessary and desirable. Under the Acts as they at present stood, the carriage of merchandise which was not the actual property of the owner of the vehicle in which it was carried was not permissible outside the exempted areas. Cases had come under the notice of the Department, however, of companies under the same ownership and same management where the lorries of one company had been used to carry the merchandise of the other company in the same group. It was proposed in the new bill to enable such companies to carry such merchandise as in the past.

Another section was designed to facilitate the enforcement of the sections of the Acts of 1932 and 1933, dealing with the operation of unlicenced services by persons entering the

PIGS AND JUSTICE

DAIL ENDS IN TROUBLE

POLICE ONCE AGAIN ATTACKED

BY OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

BY the time the Dail adjourned on Wednesday evening the nineteenth amendment to the Pigs and Bacon Bill had been reached. At that moment the debate was in its opening stages. Yesterday it was continued on through the twentieth amendment—and on and on towards the ninetieth. The Opposition benches were swamped in documents of every colour and shape. At times, when one amendment was defeated, the Chair, with barely disguised enthusiasm, said that that should remove the need for discussion on amendments 23, 25, 45, 63, etc. The debate was conducted mainly by the Minister for Agriculture, and Deputies Dillon and Belton. Deputy Dillon, under adverse circumstances, managed to preserve a stimulatingly controversial note in his remarks, referring frequently to the ruin of the farmer. On amendment 59 he fell foul of Deputy Smith. Deputy Smith had something to say on the subject of "twisting," and, his final conclusion was that, if he had Deputy Dillon in a more convenient position "he'd knock the baby face off him." Two minutes later Deputy Smith, outraged, complained that deputies were addressing their remarks to each other instead of to the Chair. Deputy Smith was right. The bill eventually was disposed of at the 96th amendment. The final stage will be taken to-day.

But for the matter of "baby faces" the debate had been conducted in a friendly fashion; but now Mr. Hugo Flinn provoked Deputy Minch to anger. The occasion was a supplementary estimate for relief works. At a moment when the Parliamentary Secretary's help and co-operation were needed there was no sign of him. We waited for about five minutes. At last Mr. Flinn arrived. Deputy Minch immediately wanted to know if he would apologise for having kept the House waiting. Mr. Hugo Flinn rose to his feet. "No," said Mr. Hugo Flinn, with the utmost determination. That seemed to finish it.

Some time ago an estimate for the Garda Siochana had been the cause of a very stormy debate, and now it looked as if the estimate for the Department of the Minister for Justice would have the same effect. Deputy Mulcahy opened for the Opposition.

BY BACK STREETS

He explained how the Government had promised substantial reductions in regard to expenses incurred by the administration of justice, but here we had a £70,000 increase and not only had the expenses increased, but crime had increased also. On Easter Sunday the President, on a State occasion, had gone from Portobello Barracks to the G.P.O. by back streets. Was it because the police were unable to protect him? Secondly, the public was not allowed anywhere near the Post Office, though it was a day of national celebration. Were the Government frightened? Could nothing have been done to protect patrons of the Savoy Cinema during the showing of the Royal wedding film? Why had the offenders never been arrested? In Deputy Mulcahy's opinion the police had been diluted with an evil element, which the Government believed would be better able to protect them than the ordinary policeman. He referred at length to "police partiality."

Five minutes before the adjournment Deputy McGilligan rose to speak. He recounted an incident wherein an innocent man's house had been visited by the police in the early hours of the morning. They believed him to be a "wild Irregular." The man asked them to read the search warrant outside the hall-door. He believed them to be members of the I.R.A. in disguise. The police refused, and demanded admission. The man then blew several blasts on an ordinary police whistle. The Guards broke and ran. Was it for this, Deputy McGilligan wanted to know, that we must put up an extra £70,000 for the use of the Minister for Justice?

THE ELECTRICITY SUPPLY BOARD

POWERS UNDER NEW BILL

The new bill, introduced recently by Mr. Sean Lemass (Minister for Industry), to amend the Electricity (Supply) Act of 1927 extends the powers given in Sections 51, 52 and 53 of that Act.

Section 51, which empowers the Board to break up streets, etc., will be so amended as to include, and be deemed always to have included, power to erect in or on any street, road, railway, or tramway such posts, poles and other erections as the Board shall consider to be necessary or proper for carrying or supporting any line, and the power conferred on the Board by the said sub-section to break up any street, road, railway, or tramway shall include, and be deemed always to have included, power to break up any street, road, railway, or tramway for the purpose of erecting therein or thereon posts, poles and other erections.

The Board also will be empowered to confer such powers on any authorised undertaker. Also it is provided that where legal proceedings in respect of any post, pole or other erection which is declared lawful in this bill are pending, the present bill shall not operate if legal proceedings were instituted before 25th January, 1935.

In Section 52, which gives power to break up roads, etc., the word "road" is defined as including "street."

The amendment to Section 53 makes more specific the powers of the Board in respect of way-leaves.

LEINSTER SOCIETY OF ORGANISTS

The first of a series of three organ recitals by members of the Leinster Society of Organists and Choirmasters was given last night in St. Ann's Church, Dawson street, Dublin.

Mr. W. J. Watson, A.R.C.O., of St. Ann's, played a varied programme of organ music, which showed to full advantage his masterly technique.

From the opening item, Bach's well known "Prelude and Fugue in D Major," right through the programme, which included Chorale Preludes by Bach, Wood and Walker, Rheinberger's Sonata in F Major, and Widor's first movement, 6th Symphony, he held the attention of the congregation and their friends present.

The second of the series of recitals will be given by Mr. Harrison, and the final one by Mr. South, each in his own church.

Free State from Northern Ireland. The proposals under this section imposed restrictions on the importation of mechanically propelled vehicles for the carrying of passengers or merchandise. They were not, however, designed to prevent people carrying on business within the law in the Saorstat. They were clearly to secure that the law should be observed. The proposals arose from the difficulties experienced in the carrying of goods, and it had been found that the licensing requirements could not be enforced against carriers not resident in the Saorstat without subsequent delay or inconvenience to the passengers or persons concerned in the goods carried. Summary jurisdiction proceedings in such cases were not applicable as they were in the case of Saorstat citizens or companies—summonses could not be served outside the jurisdiction.

Persons carrying passengers or goods into the Saorstat would simply be required to obtain a form, which might be had on application from the Minister without question or charge. No effort would be made to restrict the operations under that form, so long as it was believed there was a reasonable endeavour to comply with the law.

The second reading stage was agreed to, and the Committee stage was fixed for next Wednesday.

The debate on relief schemes concluded, and the vote was agreed to.

A vote of £5,085 was agreed to for Haulbowline.

The House adjourned until 10.30 this morning.

BENZOLE BY IRELAND plus PETROL BY SHELL equals

THE NEW IRISH MOTOR SPIRIT

The finest and most modern plant has been erected by the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company specially for the manufacture of Benzole, which will be equal to the highest international standard. This will be blended with petrol in Dublin by the Irish Shell Company, so that it will be as Irish as a motor spirit can be.

Benzole is "petrol from coal"—in this case from coal treated by the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company. Benzole has been used in many countries, and has a deserved reputation as a powerful fuel, especially when blended with a suitable petrol.

The Irish Shell Company has this suitable petrol and the Irish Free State has the Benzole. The blend of the two gives a new Irish Motor Spirit which cannot fail to please, not only because it is Irish but also because it is good.

Try it in your car, to-day....

HARLAND AND WOLFF

MAY BUILD AEROPLANES

Harland and Wolff, Ltd., whose shipyards at Belfast have turned out some of the world's largest liners, may soon begin building aeroplanes.

This was revealed by the Chairman (Mr. F. E. Rebbeck) at the annual meeting of the company, held at Tothill street, London, yesterday.

One shareholder put to him the direct question whether there was any truth in the rumours that the company would build aeroplanes.

"I cannot answer the question by saying 'Yes,' but I am certainly not going to say 'No,'" Mr. Rebbeck replied. "It is not generally realised that during the War we built a thousand aeroplanes. That was a war measure, but we still have the factory and we still have the operatives who constructed the machines.

"In addition, we have an aerodrome right at the back door of the factory.

"If there is anything to be gained for the shareholders from the building of aeroplanes, we shall certainly do it."

Mr. Rebbeck pointed out that there had been articles in newspapers dealing with the necessity of having an air centre somewhere north-west of a line drawn from Newcastle to Cardiff, and, he added, "it seems to me that, having regard to the unrest all over Europe, it would be rather remarkable if, in the ordinary course of events, we should not be manufacturing something which we are fully qualified to manufacture."

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

RIVAL TO WINDSOR LAD

Fine Performance by Easton: To-day's Classic Race

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWMARKET, Thursday Night.

It seemed a little dull here to-day, though the weather was excellent, and the conditions all round good, for there has been no more rain.

Perhaps this feeling of ennui was after the excitements of the Two Thousand on the previous afternoon, but more probably it was that the spirited contest between Easton and Umidwar that was expected in the March Stakes did not materialise; for Easton made the Aga Khan's colt look like thirty cents instead of the bright silver dollar that he was thought to be.

What People Said

Here, people were saying to themselves, are two of the three best four-year-olds, the other being Windsor Lad (who, by the way, runs his first race of the season in the Burwell Plate at the next meeting here in a fortnight's time), and that being the case it must be a race.

Umidwar was said to have done a good deal of work, and to have made unusual improvement since last season. He raced with Guest of Honour to the bushes, where Easton shot past him and won as he pleased.

I wrote last season, after seeing him win here in October, that Easton was the best miler in the world. I will add now that he is that, and also the best ten-furlong horse in the world. If Windsor Lad does meet him in the Coronation Cup, then Easton will give the Derby winner a race, for the improvement he has made since he came from France and went to Fred Darling to be trained has been quite out of the common.

May Not Be Beaten

I shall be surprised if Easton is beaten this year, or any year, so long as too much is not asked of his stamina. He is a magnificent colt, and a powerful machine like Colombo was. Umidwar has done well in himself since last year. His hips have widened out, and he is stronger and heavier.

The Ring, however, treated him with little courtesy when they asked for 9 to 2 about the other. Umidwar may want the months of summer to bring him to his best, as was the case a year ago.

An owner running his first horse on a racecourse, Sir John Jarvis, who is a power in the City of London, saw the colt win in storming fashion. This winner was Golden Martlet, by Winalot out of that good mare Seradella, with whom Captain Boyd-Rochfort won the Newbury Cup for Lady Chesterfield before the mare was sold to the late Mrs. George Drummond. Odds were always asked for about him, and he was a sweeping winner, for he made all the running.

Judicious Purchase

Sir John Jarvis asked the trainer, who bears the same Christian name and surname as himself, to buy him some yearlings last year, and he laid out about £10,000, giving 2,100 guineas for to-day's winner, who has given him such a happy introduction to the Turf.

The Aga Khan ran two, Le Duc, who was the more fancied, but did not do as well as the other, Barra Sahib, who was second, although beaten five lengths by the winner.

There was another good two-year-old winner in the colours of Mr. Lionel Corbett, a son-in-law of the late Sir Richard Garton. This was Bold Maiden, a daughter of Bold Archer, from the dam of Grey Carey. She had two fancied ones to beat, New Radnor, from Frank Butters' stable, and Dent de Lion, and she slammed them, for, although she was drawn number 20 (on the extreme outside), she ran away from them and won by two lengths from Dent de Lion, the favourite being four lengths away, third.

Cho-Sen, a daughter of Prince Galahad and Chaucer's Choice, trained by Higgs, was a clever winner of the opening selling plate, and then cost 700 guineas to retain.

Under Top-weight

The last two races were won by the top-weights. Lord Derby's Fairway colt, Bunker, gave a fine performance in the Botesdale Handicap for three-year-olds under 9st. 6lb., for he gave away two lengths in the Dip and then worried on and got up on the post to beat Smoke Screen a short head.

Bellacose, favourite for the Ely Plate, did not leave the gate with the others, or did he run on. He finished last, Sandra II., a French-bred filly by Tetratema, winning cleverly by three parts of a length from Highland Tan, who did not appear until the last furlong.

The Fillies' Guineas

I do not find the One Thousand Guineas run here to-morrow as interesting to write about as the colts race. The best of the fillies, Caretta, was a stone behind Bahram in the Free Handicap, and she was only fifth or sixth in the race in Craven week. She did, however, give 13lb. to Ankaret and finish well in front of her, while Ankaret won the Esher Cup last Saturday.

As I did not think Caretta stayed on long enough in her race, I doubt whether she will beat the Blandford filly, Annabel, who was only a pound behind her in the Free Handicap. Annabel is a peculiar filly, and she has not had an orthodox preparation, but she showed a good deal of racing merit last year.

Annabel May Score

On the French "book" she has not a great deal in hand of Mesa, who has arrived from Paris to run. Mesa is by Kircubbin and the other by Coronach, so of the two I give Mesa the preference. Neither may be good enough to beat ANNABEL, to whom the danger may be the other Blandford filly Ankaret.

The Culford Stakes may be won by GANTRY, the May Stakes by MYSTERY MAN, to whom Red Hot Poker may not give the weight, and the Mildenhall Stakes by CAPAIN COURAGEOUS.

GALTEE MORE.

ONE THOUSAND GUINEAS

Caretta Gets Confident Vote for To-day's Big Race

The King's Fairlead appears to have a good outside chance of gaining the Royal stable's first success of the season in the One Thousand Guineas at Newmarket to-day. With only a few days until the Silver Jubilee celebrations, there certainly could not be a more popular victory. Although Fairlead has yet to win a race, she has had only three outings in public. On her last appearance she finished third to Bekorah and Jonker in a big field over seven furlongs at the Craven meeting.

It is believed that that race has brought her to something approaching perfection in point of condition, and it is in her favour that there are no outstanding fillies this year. Indeed, the race is one of the most open of post-War years. If all those left in—twenty-two—go to the post the field will equal the largest for over thirty years.

There will be two French challengers in M. Boussac's Corrida and M. Wertheimer's Mesa. There was very little to choose between this pair last season. Both proved their ability to stay. I think Corrida is to be preferred, for the reason that she has been given plenty of time to become acclimatised. Since joining Lambton's team several months ago she has done some extremely good gallops. She finished in front of Mesa at Longchamp last summer.

According to the Free Handicap, which proved such a good guide in the Two Thousand Guineas, Caretta was the best of her age and sex last season. She won three very good races, and might have succeeded in at least two more had she been favoured by a little more luck. She was far from disgraced in the Free Handicap here a few weeks ago, considering that she was not fully wound up.

The Aga Khan will again have two strings to his bow in Hilla and the backward Fal Ma. Hilla had a comparatively poor record last year. She is on the small side and I cannot fancy her. There is a lot to like about Annabel, who is a great grand-daughter of the peerless Pretty Polly. She found her best form at the back-end of last season, when she won the Champion Breeders' Plate at Derby and the Bretby Stakes, over six furlongs, at Newmarket. In the latter race she floored the odds laid on Hilla at level weights. The way she won that race suggested that she might develop into a stayer.

Mannerism, the representative of Lord Astor, who has bred so many high-class fillies, was so backward last year that she had only two races. In the Cheveley Park Stakes she finished two lengths behind Caretta, who was conceding 1st. Ankaret is in good form, for she won the Esher Cup over a mile at Sandown last week. Obviously she will have to be seriously considered. Foxlair and Hyndford Bridge appear to be the most fancied of the others. To sum up I take sides with

ANNABEL 2
FAIRLEAD 3

Caretta must stand as the best bet on the card, because Beckhampton advices are particularly encouraging.

F. Fox rides the King's Bonnie Dundee in the Culford Stakes. I doubt if he will account for

There are plenty of intriguing problems at Thirsk. The Thirsk Handicap may be won by LEGIS.

JUMPERS IN DEMAND

'Chasers and Hunters Make Good Prices at Goff's Sales

The annual Punchestown week sale of hunters and point-to-point horses, held by Messrs. R. J. Goff and Co., at Lower Mount street, Dublin, yesterday, was the most satisfactory one during recent years. There was a large attendance of prospective buyers, including a number from England and Scotland, and of the 200 lots offered the majority changed ownership at good figures.

Top price of the day was 310 guineas, paid by Mr. G. L. Clay for Captain E. T. Boylan's six years old gelding, Crockathubba. The well-known point-to-point performer, Loughan Hill, sent up by Mr. J. C. Ferrall, made 235 guineas, the purchaser being Captain Weaver, and the same buyer secured Miss G. M. E. Ferrall's Bright Flower, another point-to-point winner, at 155 guineas.

Mr. Robert Gore, the Findon trainer, paid 270 guineas for Mr. R. G. Cleary's five years old chestnut gelding, Bachelor's Hill, and he also secured Thomond II.'s half brother, Thelmond, for 120 guineas. Thelmond is only six years old, and is likely to win good class steeplechases. Lord Milton and Mr. H. Dixon were extensive buyers.

The aggregate of 9,500 guineas is an increase of approximately 2,000 guineas on last year's total. Prices:—

SPORTING GOSSIP

Derby Betting

As a result of his convincing victory in the Two Thousand Guineas the Aga Khan's Bahram is now a hot favourite for the Derby, and at Newmarket yesterday the general offer about his chance did not exceed 7 to 4. Lord Derby's Bobsleigh, despite his disappointing "Guineas" running, is a firm 5 to 1 chance.

Hairan's Next Race

The Aga Khan's Hairan, who was placed only 1lb. below Bahram in the Free Handicap, will have his next race in the Newmarket Stakes. This is the event in which the disappointing Two Thousand Guineas favourite, Bobsleigh, is expected to make his next appearance.

Chester Cup Mount

R. Jones has been engaged to ride the Prince Aly Khan's Antar II. in the Chester Cup.

Owner Fined

The Racing Calendar contains the following:—Mr. D. S. Kennedy lodged a complaint concerning the start for the Great Metropolitan Stakes, stating that his horse, Mallin, failed to start owing to the gross carelessness of the white flag-man. The Stewards, after interviewing P. Thrale, the trainer, T. Barber, the jockey, and the starter, came to the decision that the complaint was unfounded and fined Mr. Kennedy ten sovs. for making a frivolous complaint.

PUNCHESTOWN CUP BETS

Many inquiries have been made as to the destination of bets on the Punchestown Cup at the Kildare and National Hunt Meeting on last Tuesday, when, after That's Him had been disqualified by the local Stewards, the horse was reinstated as the winner twenty-four hours later by the Stewards of the Irish National Hunt Steeplechase Committee.

The rule of betting which governs the case reads:—"When the signal has been hoisted over the number board as provided for in Rule 153 of the Rules of Racing and Rule 150 of the Irish National Hunt Steeplechase Committee, the bets go to the horses as officially shown on the board, and no objection or disqualification made subsequent to the hoisting of such signal shall disturb the destination of the bets."

Thus, all bets on That's Him are lost.

The above rule was passed by the Conyngham Club Committee, the body governing betting in Ireland, at a time when a change in the rules was made necessary by the introduction of Pari-Mutuel betting on Irish Free State racecourses.

ST. LEGER ACCEPTORS

Seventy-eight horses were left in the St. Leger when the second acceptances were declared this week, and there will be a final acceptance on Tuesday, September 3.

His Majesty's four entries—Fairlead, Marconi, Bonnie Dundee and Chant—have been taken out, but Lord Harewood can be represented by Piccadilly. H.H. Aga Khan has accepted with Bahram, Hairan, Hindoo Holiday and Shahali, but not with Vermeil II. and Firouse Bibi. Theft was not engaged.

Lord Derby can choose from Bobsleigh, Plassy and Coronal, and he has declared forfeit for Trade Wind, Fairhaven, Aquitania and Homespun. Mr. C. W. Gordon's Sea Bequest, who finished third in the Two Thousand Guineas, is an acceptor, while Lord Glanely has left in Buckleigh in preference to Peter the Great, Perseverance and Emborough.

NEWMARKET NOTES

Progress of the Victoria Cup Horses : Hints for To-day

NEWMARKET, Thursday.

THE French One Thousand Guineas candidate, Mesa, was out on the Heath this morning, and her trainer, S. Swann, gave her a nice spin over six furlongs.

N. Cannon gave Donoghue the leg up on Blackmail, who moved well in a smart five furlongs spin, in which she was accompanied by Whitaker's Uncle Oojah (Humphrey Foster). I doubt if we saw the best of Blackmail in the Lincolnshire Handicap, as she got kicked at the post, and, apart from that, she was backward at the time. She has done well since the warmer weather arrived, and I expect her to run prominently in the Victoria Cup at Hurst Park on Saturday.

Another who has done well for the same event is Bondsman. Ridden by Beary, and in company with Alcazar (P. Beasley), he moved well in a good seven furlongs spin. Captain Boyd-Rochfort has got him well forward in condition, and I am prepared to see him give a good display.

B. Jarvis stripped his Victoria Cup candidate, Pegasus (Donoghue), and he moved well when sent seven furlongs with Spanner (Lowrey), Hot Water and The Jesuit. He appears to be leniently treated with 7st. 4lb., and will be difficult to beat.

J. Jarvis was busy with Flamenco, whom he sent seven furlongs at a striding pace with Ayr. Flamenco has made good progress since his victory at Lincoln.

The Hon. G. Lambton gave Corrida and Pepino (H. Beasley) a nice six furlong spin. Pepino has settled down nicely since he ran at Lincoln.

Captain Hogg gave Winastep a good mile and a quarter gallop with Cresset. Winastep ran moderately here for the Babraham Welter, but that race has done him good, and when he is next seen in public he will be found in much better condition.

The Culford Stakes will start proceedings on the final day of our fixture. Gantry is expected to improve on his running in Craven Week, and Marmion has benefited by his Liverpool race; but my vote goes to

FRESH FOX.

Our fillies running for the One Thousand Guineas have done well in their preparations. Frank Butters will be doubly represented by Mal Ma and Hills, but I have not much fancy for either. I expect Fairlead to run well, and Corrida has given satisfaction in her preparation, but for the winner I shall rely on

ANNABEL.

She was a very useful youngster and she is now at the top of her form. I recommend her each way.

Red Hot Poker put up a good performance when he won at Kempton Park, and he will have plenty of supporters for the May Stakes, but I doubt if he will give 13lb. to the well-galloped

BLUSHING BRIDE

Quy is nicely weighted in the Brinkley Handicap, and I have a liking for the chance of Gay Venture, who may prove the danger to PEPINO.

Banquo, Captain Courageous and

WORCESTER COLLAPSE

South Africans on Top in their Opening Match

A day of intensely interesting cricket followed Wednesday's blank day at Worcester, and the South Africans began their tour by gaining a commanding position over Worcestershire. Effective bowling by the fastish-medium men, Crisp and Bell, brought about a Worcestershire breakdown before lunch, and the tourists, after an indifferent start, took the lead, thanks to a stand between Nourse and Rowan, with seven wickets in hand. The pitch favoured run-getting, and the failure of the county batsmen was due more to lack of practice than anything else. Nevertheless, Bell, to begin with, and Crisp later, bowled an excellent length. Crisp's analysis in his second spell was the remarkable one of 4 overs, 2 maidens, 7 runs, 6 wickets, while he took his last five wickets without cost.

The visitors lost three men for 19, Wade, the captain, being out to the first ball he received, but Nourse and Rowan put on 113 in ninety-five minutes. Nourse played a beautiful innings, cutting and driving with grace and power during an hour and three-quarters at the crease, and giving not the slightest chance. Cameron enlivened the game by driving Howorth for three successive 6's, and at tea the South Africans stood 72 ahead with half their wickets intact.

Dalton gave a catch at the wicket when within sight of three figures. He obtained his 91 in one hundred minutes, the total meantime rising by 159, and he hit eleven boundaries. Crisp forced the game, and when the innings, having lasted just short of four hours and a half, ended, the South Africans held a lead of 261, so Worcestershire to-day will have to struggle against defeat.

MOTOR CYCLING

WOODS AND GUTHRIE TO COMPETE

FINAL PRACTICE FOR THE LEINSTER "200"

Practice for the Leinster "200" concluded yesterday morning, when thirty-four riders turned out in agreeable weather. Some notable speeds were attained, particularly by H. Pinnington, the winner of the race of 1933, who, on G. E. Rowley's 350 c.c. A.J.S., did a lap at 76.33 m.p.h., the fastest speed of the morning and the fastest speed attained in the two days practising.

Another driver who considerably improved on his speed of the previous morning was W. Corfield, a cross-Channel entrant. Riding a 250 c.c. Excelsior, he lapped in 67.33 m.p.h., almost seven miles per hour faster than he did on the previous day.

Amongst the 500 c.c. drivers, the distinction for the fastest time was shared by H. L. Daniel, London, A.J.S., S. Wood, Birmingham, New Imperial, and T. G. Byrne, Dublin, Rudge, each of whom did a lap in 10 minutes 18 seconds—75.70 m.p.h.

J. H. Guthrie, the winner of last year's race, was at the start yesterday, but did not arrive in time to take part in the practising. He has been granted an exemption from three laps of the course before the race, and the rule requiring each entrant to complete a similar exemption has been granted to Stanley Woods. Woods's machine was injured in the Spanish race on Sunday last, and he took it to Italy to have the necessary repairs effected. A telegram received from him yesterday states that he will arrive in Dublin to-morrow morning.

FASTEST LAPS.

250 c.c. W. Corfield, Wales (Excelsior), 11 mins. 30 secs.—67.33 m.p.h.

350 c.c. H. Pinnington, Wrexham (A.J.S.), 10 mins. 13 secs.—76.33 m.p.h.

ROWING

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY B.C. TRIALS

To-day the following remaining heats in the first round will be decided:—

W. I. McCutcheon (60 secs.) v. W. J. Kavanagh (50 secs.) or T. J. R. Atkinson (60 secs.); S. D. Millar (50 secs.) v. W. R. N. Millar (60 secs.); J. Richards-Orpen (2 secs.) v. W. B. Welply (30 secs.); as well as the second round.

The semi-final and final rounds will be decided to-morrow, as well as the trial eights, for which five crews are entered. Details:—

Heat D—T. Shillington (45 secs.) beat A. B. K. Tyndall (45 secs.). Tyndall fell into the river fifty yards from the start, and Shillington finished alone. Time—9 mins. 13 secs.

Heat B—J. R. Hayden (60 secs.) beat J. C. McConnell (60 secs.). Hayden led all the way, and won by a distance. Time—10 mins. 40 secs.

Heat H—J. A. Montgomery (scr.) beat T. Shier (20 secs.). Montgomery passed Shier at the minute mark bend. They were level at half-way down the enclosure, when Montgomery spurted to win by a length. Time—7 mins. 46 1-5 secs.

Heat E—G. Pitt (45 secs.) beat C. E. M. Leggett (50 secs.). Pitt took an early lead, and won by a distance. Time—9 mins. 8 secs.

Heat F—R. M. Halahan (30 secs.) beat W. E. Healy (30 secs.). After a level start, Halahan went out and kept the lead, to win by three lengths. Time—8 mins. 1 sec.

CYCLING

POSITION EXPLAINED BY MR. W. J. FINN

Mr. W. J. Finn, hon. general secretary of the Southern Centre of the Irish Road Club, writes as follows in reference to the relations existing between that body and the N.A.C.A. (I.) arising out of the latter's decision to refuse to accept the ruling of the International Athletic Federation and the I.R.C.'s request to the N.A.C.A. (I.) to suspend temporarily its affiliation:—

"The title N.A. and C.A. implies the government of athletics and cycling (on the track). When the N.A.C.A. was founded it did not seek to govern or control unpaced racing on the public highway, nor did it adopt laws or rules to be observed by affiliated clubs which might desire to promote cycle races on the road. The Association, in fact and in policy, was opposed to the promotion of road racing.

"As a result of insistent importunities by the committee of the Southern Centre of the Irish Road Club, the Association, in the year 1924, endowed a fifty miles club handicap with the status of championship, thus inaugurating the series of County Dublin road championships. Subsequently, and before the Cycling Sub-committee (N.A. and C.A.) was formed, the club was informed that the road championship was too costly (?), and that the I.R.C. committee would have to provide the medals or forfeit the championship. The club was already providing a medal for the third man to finish in the even, and, I think, it did, in fact, provide all the medals on at least one occasion.

ON SUFFERANCE

"Meanwhile, when harmony reigned in the N.A. and C.A.—North and South—the Southern Centre was permitted, on sufferance, to hold its annual fifty miles race with the Belfast Branch in 1923 and 1924, over County Dublin and County Antrim courses respectively. Then came the rift, and intercourse in competition on the road with the Northern Centre was denied to the Dublin Branch. The Southern Centre was then told that the existing 'constitution of the I.R.C. would have to be scrapped.' That threat came from the President of the N.A. and C.A. in 1924.

"In 1932 the series of inter-centre races was resumed, but the Southern Centre is obliged to get a permit to compete with the Northern Branch annually. Furthermore, and contrary to the statement of your correspondent, the members of the I.R.C. Southern Centre are also obliged to obtain the permission of the governing body to compete in cross-Channel road races.

"The members of the I.R.C. are mainly interested in road racing, and are not concerned with the N.C.U. track meetings. Consequently the question of licence or permission does not arise. If the Central Cycling Council has, since Easter week, conferred a new type of freedom on its adherent clubs my committee is unaware of the fact. Nevertheless, both centres have received their annual invitation to nominate riders for the Anfield 100, to be run over a Shropshire course on Whit Monday.

NOT SATISFIED WITH POLICY

"The club was always on the invitation list of the leading cross-Channel road-racing clubs, irrespective of whether it was or was not affiliated (for domestic purposes) to any governing body, and there is no sound reason to suggest that non-affiliation will alter the position so far as cross-Channel road racing is concerned, or that the club will be black-listed by cross-Channel road clubs simply because it now seeks to avoid being indefinitely embroiled in a dispute concerning international athletic policy.

For more than four months my committee has anxiously awaited the advice of the Central Cycling Council as a result of the decision of the N.A. and C.A. Congress to ignore the ruling of the International Federation. The Southern Centre is not satisfied with the policy of laissez faire, and while desiring to disentangle itself from the meshes of international athletic disputes by disaffiliation, will welcome the formation of a separate governing body for cycling, in which the specialised sport of unpaced racing on the public highway will have definite and special legislation acceptable to the pioneers of the sport who have fostered it under very discouraging circumstances since 1890.

"If the adherent cycling clubs of the N.A. and C.A. really desire full national and international freedom they should, through the Central Cycling Council, state so definitely. It is no use sending a rider to compete at Herne Hill under N.C.U. rules merely to see what will happen. The fact that a Free State rider has competed in the Charlotteville '50' proves nothing, because the promoting club is, in common with hundreds of similar road racing organisations, neither controlled nor affiliated, but simply promotes unpaced road racing on the basis of agreed recommendation. In other words, efficiency without bureaucracy."

DECISION ON THE I.R.C. REQUEST

"A MATTER FOR THE CLUB IN QUESTION"

The request of the Cumann na mBothair no h-Eireann (Irish Road Club) to the N.A.C.A. (I.) for permission to terminate its affiliation to that body until such time as agreement has been reached between the N.A.C.A. (I.) and the International Federation was referred to the Central Cycling Council, which met at Shamrock Chambers, Dublin, last night, Mr. J. J. Sweeney presiding.

The Central Cycling Council decided that the question whether the I.R.C. would continue its affiliation to the N.A.C.A. (I.) through the Central Cycling Council was a matter for the club in question.

Arising out of a request from the Tipperary County Board as to whether a definite decision had been taken by the Central Cycling Council to agree to the recent vote of the N.A.C.A. (I.) Congress re the international question, a motion was tabled that a special congress of cyclists should be called to consider the matter. The motion was defeated by five votes to two. It was decided to inform the Tipperary County Board that a decision on the question had not been made.

LEINSTER CUP (SENIOR).

10.15—Miss Blake (Hermitage) v. Miss Moore (Milltown).

10.18—Miss Sherlock (Hermitage) v. Mrs. Todd (Kilkenny) (holder).

DUGGAN CUP (JUNIOR).

10.33—Mrs. McCarthy (Hermitage) v. Mrs. O'Grady (Milltown).

Miss Moore at the end of the first eighteen holes in the Leinster Cup led with a score of 80, followed by Mrs. Hall, of Foxrock, with 81. The latter faded out in the afternoon, as, meeting with constant trouble, she could do no better than 91. Miss Moore, however, assured herself of a leading position by returning 84. As in the forenoon, her putting was erratic, and she took three on several greens.

Miss Blake, an International player, after taking 86 for the first eighteen, made a great effort on the second round, but her 80 was not good enough, and she finished two strokes behind Miss Moore.

THE HOLDER QUALIFIES

Mrs. Todd, the Kilkenny player, who has won the trophy in four consecutive years, again qualified for the match play stage with rounds of 86 and 83, while Miss Sherlock, Miss Gildea and Mrs. Hall tied with an aggregate of 172 for fourth place. Miss Sherlock, having the best score (85) for the second round, was nominated to enter the semi-final round.

Five players tied for third and fourth places also in the Duggan Cup, for players whose handicaps are 10 or over, and there was also a tie for first place. Miss Smith (Cavan) and Miss Perry (Lucan) headed the returns with 90 each for the eighteen holes. Mrs. McCarthy (Hermitage) and Mrs. O'Grady (Milltown), with three others, returned 92 and qualified on their scores, the last nine holes being taken into consideration for the match play.

A handicap competition against bogey, over 18 holes, will be played to-day, and is open to all players who competed in either event yesterday. Arrange opponents. Draws 11 o'clock and 3 o'clock for those wanting opponents.

SKYE and the Western Highlands

Do you know that the Coolins in the Isle of Skye are the wildest, most rugged range of mountains anywhere in our islands, and that Alpine climbers come year after year to scramble up their jagged peaks? Not that you have to be a mountaineer to enjoy the western coast of Scotland. You can, from many a country railway station in the Highlands, get a better view than people do who go half way round the world for their holidays. Go to the Western Highlands this Summer, go whilst the Summer is young and enjoy the delights of this romantic country.

There are plenty of fast trains and steamers, and it costs only a little more than a penny a mile each way. With an L M S Monthly Return Ticket you are at liberty to break your journey on the route going or coming back. In many parts of Scotland "Weekly Holiday Season Tickets" are issued. They cost very little—from 7/6—and with them you can travel by any train in a wide area for a week.

Ask at any L M S Station or Office for the "Scottish Apartments Guide" (3d post free). The folder "Scotland for Holidays" and the booklet "L M S Cheap Fares" are both free.

MISS NOEL'S HARD HITTING

AUSTIN TOO GOOD FOR FARQUHARSON

Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall went out of the singles in the British hard courts championships at the West Hants Club, Bournemouth, yesterday. She was beaten by Miss Susan Noel, the former squash rackets champion, in the fourth round by 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. Miss Noel slashed the ball from corner to corner. She lost the first set to the superior and at times brilliant placings of a better stroke player, but thereafter the bludgeon beat aside the rapier and administered the decisive blow. Miss Noel played just the right type of game to qualify to meet Miss P. Scriven in the semi-final.

The other semi-finalists in the women's singles are Miss Dorothy Round, the holder, and Miss Kathleen Stammers. Miss Round beat Miss Mary Hardwick by 7-5, 2-6, 6-3. Miss Round began, as usual, on a low note, but rose to a crescendo of brilliance. The Wimbledon champion was not herself yesterday, but she stated afterwards that she intends to go through with the tournament. Miss Round is to oppose Miss Kay Stammers, and Miss Noel will meet Miss Scriven.

Fred J. Perry, who had asked for a postponement owing to the fact that he is suffering from a blistered racket hand, and Daniel Prenn have arranged to play their singles semi-final to-day. In the other semi-final H. W. Austin gave yet another wonderful display of all-court tennis to dispose of N. G. Farquharson, the South African champion, for the loss of five games. Results:—

MEN'S SINGLES—SEMI-FINAL.

H. W. Austin beat N. G. Farquharson (South Africa)—6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

WOMEN'S SINGLES—FOURTH ROUND.

Miss M. C. Scriven beat Miss N. M. Lyle—6-0, 9-7.

THE IRISH HARD COURT CHAMPIONSHIPS

E. H. Porter and A. E. Fannin joined R. J. Sandys and H. F. Cronin in the semi-final of the Men's Singles in the Irish Hard Court Championships at Fitzwilliam yesterday, beating E. Maynard and B. R. Towers respectively. Last year Maynard beat Porter in this event, but the latter was in excellent form yesterday, and while taking the ball very early off the ground made very few mistakes, and generally put away his volleys when he came in to the net. Against Towers, Fannin kept an immaculate length, and forced his opponent to defeat right from the start. Towers was very active, and retrieved everything possible, but after losing a good first set never looked like winning the second.

There were only eight entries for the Women's Singles, and the first round was completed yesterday. The favourite, Miss Mahony, received a walk-over, and only one of the other three matches produced a fight, Mrs. Gamble losing to Miss Poole, after leading 5-2 and 40-love, in the final set. The brothers Mansergh did well to take a set from Sandys and Porter in the Doubles, and the latter will meet Fannin and Cronin in the semi-final. Results:—

MEN'S SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP.
Third Round.

E. H. Porter beat E. H. Maynard—6-2, 6-3.

A. E. Fannin beat B. R. Towers—6-4, 6-1.

First Round.

Miss O. Poole beat Mrs. Gamble—2-6, 6-4, 7-5.

First Round.

R. J. Sandys and E. H. Porter beat C. O. and N. Mansergh—6-4, 2-6, 6-0.

A. E. Fannin and H. F. Cronin beat R. F. and B. X. Egan—6-2, 6-1.

MIXED DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP.

H. F. Cronin and Miss S. Moore beat C. A. and Mrs. Gamble—7-5, 6-3.

HIBERNIAN WIN THE BANKERS' CUP

HIBERNIAN BANK	2
BANK OF IRELAND	0

At Tolka Park last evening, Hibernian won the Bankers' Cup by beating Bank of Ireland in the final after a decidedly tame match. Hibernian started off well, and were given the lead when Smith sent in a strong shot which Felton had little chance to save. The second goal, which came before half-time, followed a corner kick by Quinn, which was turned into the net by Ashe.

Bank of Ireland were lacking in dash, or they might have troubled Hibernians' defence in the second half. Their forwards were slow to make use of the chances given them by their half-backs, and the Hibernian defence had little difficulty in warding off the infrequent raids by their opponents.

Hibernian Bank—C. Egan; F. O'Reilly, J. Murphy; G. French, M. Burns, J. Hylton; C. Quinn, S. Morrison, F. A. Ashe, E. Smith, J. Darcy.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN HARDER

GUINNESS BETTER

DUBLIN TRAMS LOWER

There was a small but welcome improvement in the volume of trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and big Industrials were the turn harder, but local securities showed no decided trend.

The Free State Funds were well maintained, apart from the Second, which lost 5s., but Land Bonds tended higher. British Funds remained dull, and War Loan gave way, while 2½ per cent. Consols relapsed to 87⅛.

Banks held quietly steady, but, in Breweries, Guinness Ord. hardened to 141s. 10½d., and were still buyers at the close. Power Deb. drooped to 17s.

Home Rails were buyers for choice. Great Northern Gtd. advanced to 45, and the Deb. jumped 1½ points. Great Southern Pref. gained 10s.

There was renewed selling of Dublin Tram Ord., which resulted in a further fall of 2s., and Alliance Gas Ord. shaded off. Ranks (Ireland) issues were fractionally easier.

Irish Cinema Ord., May Roberts Ord. and Ever Ready (Ireland) Ord. all declined, but Carroll's Pref. and Irish Dunlop Pref. were harder.

B.A.T. Ord., Imperial Chemicals, Unilever Ord., Vickers Ord and Coats Ord. all showed small gains, but Dunlop Rubbers and Courtaulds shed fractions.

LONDON UNDECIDED

AVIATION SHARES IN DEMAND

The final day of the account interfered to some degree with business on the London Stock Markets, and while Aircraft shares continued to attract speculators, in view of the imminent statement regarding British air policy, and Oil shares were more active, conditions generally were again quiet and the tone undecided. The gilt edged market was to some degree overshadowed by the uncertain political position in Europe, and business was on a small scale. Early in the day a dull tendency was apparent, but towards the close prices recovered, and final rates were, in a few instances, fractionally better. Irish Free State Land Bonds were a good feature, and gained a point to 110½. Little interest was taken in Foreign Bonds, but the tendency was quite firm. Germans, after opening dull, staged a small recovery and finished better, while among Brazilians, the Funding issues met a small inquiry and gained ½.

British Rails opened quiet, but on further consideration of the traffics took a turn for the better during the afternoon, and several issues made headway. Profit-taking predominated in the Foreign Rail group, and several Argentine stocks dropped ½, while Cordoba Central First Debs. at 32½ were a point lower. American Rails were inactive and unchanged.

Trading in the Industrial Market showed further contraction, but, in anticipation of the statement in the House of Commons regarding Britain's air programme, there was again considerable activity in Aviation shares. Rolls Royce were the outstanding feature, and closed appreciably higher, while several others made good headway. There was a fair amount of activity in British Aluminium, in view of the fact that the company would benefit from any increased output of aeroplanes. In other directions, shares of companies connected with the building trades remained in good demand owing to optimistic views regarding the outlook, and Breweries were favourably influenced by the satisfactory production figures for March.

In the Mining groups, Kaffirs were lower owing to the fall in the price of gold and lower profits announced for last month, and West Africans, apart from Ashanti, which improved following the interim announcement, also eased. Oil shares attracted support, largely owing to a growing belief that the outlook for the industry is now much brighter. The rise in the price of petrol also encouraged a demand for shares. The better tendency was, however, offset to some extent by profit-taking.

THE MONEY MARKET

SILVER FALLING

Silver fell 2¼d. per oz. for spot and 2 3/16d. for forward delivery to 32⅜d. and 32½d. per oz., respectively, yesterday. Speculators sold heavily, especially from China on rumours of an impending change in American policy. At the close there were buyers at the lower figure.

There was a lower premium over the dollar and franc in the price of gold, which was fixed 8d. lower at 144s. 4d. per fine oz. The premium over the dollar at 4.83⅜d. was 7d., and that over the franc was 6d. on a rate of 73 9/16. About £304,000 was disposed of in the market.

In spite of Wednesday's heavy disbursements, money remained usable at ½ per cent. Discount rates were steady, fine three months' bills being quoted at 9/16 per cent., while the New Treasuries continued to be dealt in around ½ per cent.

Fairly active conditions were again experienced in the London Foreign Exchange Market yesterday. The selling pressure on the gold bloc, which was resumed after a fortnight's interval with the beginning of this month, led to a steady depreciation in the value of all the gold currencies. Throughout the morning and early afternoon, when the movement was held up by official operations on behalf of Continental authorities. Even at the close, however, there was no sign of recovery, and closing quotations for sterling on all the principal centres usually represented the high levels for the day. Simultaneously, bearing operations on nearly all the currencies of the European gold group were in progress in the forward market, and further substantial jumps occurred in rates of discount. The devaluation of the Danzig gulden caused no excitement in the London market, rates being immediately adjusted according to the new parity.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

AIRCRAFTS LIVELY: ROLLS-ROYCE FEATURING

Although trading in the Industrial market yesterday was on a somewhat smaller scale, the tone continued cheerful, and several bright spots were again in evidence. There was not a great deal doing among the trans-Atlantic issues on this side, and values showed no decided trend. "Emmies" opened around 27s. 9d., but the price sagged later to around 27s. 3d.

Cable and Wireless stocks were rather easier.

Among Cinema issues, Unions were inquired for and improved to around 31s. 9d.

An active business was again transacted in Aircraft and kindred descriptions. Rolls-Royce continued prominent, and, following a large turnover, left off with an advance of 3s. 6d. at 130s., after touching the record price of 130s. 6d. The demand was in anticipation of a good statement at to-day's meeting.

HANDLEY PAGE UP

Reports that the company has secured an important contract led to buying of Handley Page Participating Prefs., which advanced 1s. 7½d. to 18s. 7½d. Hawker Aircraft were a good market, and 1s. 1½d. up at 31s. 6d. Napiers continued in request, and put on another 7½d. at 12s. 3d., and Fairey Aviation rose 6d. to 28s.

*Close in New York, 4.84½.

A renewed inquiry was received for Breweries, the favourite being South African Ordinary, which finished 2s. higher at 93s. Modest gains were also recorded by Guinness, Watney Deferred and one or two others.

Tobacco seemed rather uncertain. Tobacco Securities Trust Ord. and Defd. continued on offer at first, but were steadier towards the close and finished around 4 5/16 and 4¼ respectively. Gallahers lost the run at 5¼, while "Bats" Carreras and "Imps" closed unchanged on balance.

Among Drapery and Departmental Stores issues, Marks and Spencers held steady around 5 1/16, while Woolworths were slightly lower at 109s.

UNILEVERS BETTER.

In the Provision and Catering section, J. Lyons came into favour and closed higher at 7¼, and the two Unilevers were better. Tate and Lyle were, however, again subject to a little profit-taking and eased to 109s. 7½d. Textile issues were on the quiet side, the tendency being firm.

There was not much activity in the Rayon group. Courtaulds were unchanged at 52s., while American Celanese were easier at 4¼.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Business in the Miscellaneous section was on a reduced scale, but the majority of movements were still in favour of holders. Murex provided the feature, changing hands up to 6¼ and closing finally at 6 5/16, with a gain of 5/16 on the day. British Oxygens also remained in favour, finishing 1s. further to the good at 84s. Imperial Chemicals, however, were a dull market, following the acceptance of the proposals in connection with changes in the capital structure. Further rises were seen in Cement issues. Pinchin Johnsons continued in request up to 43s. British Aluminium met with further buyers and left off 1s. higher at 35s. Elsewhere moderate advances were seen in James Finlays, Lever Bros. 8 per cent. Pref. and Triplex Glass.

OILS FIRM

At the start yesterday a cautious attitude was adopted by dealers in the Oil Share Market, in view of the possibility of further profit-taking sales. When it was found that there was no inclination on the part of either genuine holders or professional operators to realise confidence was regained. Continental operators continued to buy international counters, which helped the market in Shel's, Royal Dutch, and, to a smaller extent, the Eagle issues. The benefit which should accrue to Trinidad Leaseholds from the advance in the price of petrol in the United Kingdom led to strong buying of the shares, which, following a good turnover, finished with a gain of 1/16 at 3½.

RUBBERS DULL

Business continued on a small scale in the Rubber Share Market, and in sympathy with an easier tendency in the commodity section, where spot rubber weakened and sold down to 5 9/16d. per lb., movements generally were against holders. A rise of 6d. to 32s. in Kuala Lumpur was exceptional, and adverse changes included falls of 1s. 3d. to 20s. in Java Amalgamated, and 6d. to 27s. in F.M.S.

COMPANY MEETING.

RANKS (IRELAND)

FIRST GENERAL MEETING

PROGRESS OF THE COMPANY

STRONG FINANCIAL POSITION

The first annual general meeting of Ranks (Ireland), Limited, was held yesterday in the George Hotel, Limerick, Mr. James V. Rank, Chairman, presiding.

The other directors present were:—Messrs. James P. Goodbody, J. Harold Goodbody, Gerald E. Goodbody, Craymer, London, and G. Morris Goodbody.

Several shareholders were present.

Mr. R. W. Hewson, Secretary, read the notice convening the meeting.

Mr. W. F. Harris (Messrs. Hodgson, Harris and Co., Auditors, Dame street, Dublin) presented the auditors' report.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

The Chairman, addressing the meeting, said:—

The next business is that I, as Chairman, should move the adoption of the accounts and reports, and in doing so I should like to deal with a few matters in relation to the formation and progress of the company.

The floating of this company enabled the Irish Free State public to take a holding in the old-established businesses of Messrs. James Bannatyne and Sons, Limited; J. N. Russell and Sons, Limited, and M. J. and L. Goodbody, Limited.

As you are aware, an issue was made to the public of all the Preference Shares and 175,000 of the Ordinary Shares, which issue was restricted to nationals of Saorstat Eireann. It is gratifying to relate that the shares were fully subscribed. You will remember that the shares were issued at a premium, and as you will see by the balance sheet, all the premiums came into the coffers of the company and stand for the benefit of the shareholders.

You may be interested to know that the company has shareholders residing in each of the 26 counties, which shows that the confidence in your company is widespread.

WHEAT PRICES

Turning now to matters affecting trading and progress since the formation of the company. The prices ruling to-day for foreign grain make it impossible for the home grower to compete in an open market, but by cooperation between the Government and the millers it has been made possible for the farmers to dispose of their wheat at prices in excess of those for foreign wheat.

The farmers have received the standard price for their wheat; the Government has provided the excess of that payment over a figure of approximately 17s. 6d. a barrel, so that this subsidy to the farmers has not directly increased the price of flour to a material extent.

For the cereal year 1934-35, ten per cent. of the milling quota allotted to your mills must be native wheat, and it is expected that the next year there will be considerably more native wheat available, and, accordingly, it is quite likely that the quantity to be milled by your mills will be considerably increased. I am told that the millers in the 1935-36 cereal year will be called upon to pay the full guaranteed prices to the farmers.

In order to deal with the conditioning of the native grain we have installed special machinery, which is doing its work satisfactorily.

As we have to take in our proportion of the season's crop in the space of about three months, we have found it necessary to build an additional grain silo at Limerick, and to instal further additional plant; this work is proceeding, and it is expected that the new silo and plant will be available for the 1935 crop. We are also building an additional silo and installing additional plant at Clara for a similar purpose.

MILLS WORKING TO CAPACITY

The trade done during the year has been satisfactory; your flour mills have worked up to their full milling quota. The standard quality has been kept up, and the output has been disposed of at a reasonable margin of profit.

In addition to the flour-milling businesses, we have extensive plant for the manufacture of maize meal, etc., but, unfortunately, the demand for these products is not sufficient to keep our plants working at anything like full time. The fall in demand is general all over the country, and is, no doubt, caused by the difficult times the farmers are having at present, and to some extent by the substitution of cheaper feeding stuffs.

As I mentioned, the company has taken the profits of the businesses as from the 30th December, 1933, but the agreements for purchase were only completed on the 9th March, 1934, so that the profits between these two dates are not available for distribution as dividend, and have been transferred to a capital reserve account.

THE DIVIDEND

From the directors' report you will see that the preference dividends have been paid, and that an interim dividend on the Ordinary shares was paid at the rate of 3d. per share, less income tax. The directors now recommend that a further dividend be paid on the Ordinary shares at the rate of 7d. per share, less income tax.

It is proposed out of the balance of profit to apply the sum of £11,000 against the preliminary expenses and to carry forward the remaining sum.

STRONG FINANCIAL POSITION

Turning to the balance sheet, it will be seen that this shows a strong liquid position, and it seems to me very necessary in the interests of your company that this should be the case.

The financing of our proportion of the home-grown crops for the coming cereals year will call for more cash, as it is anticipated that the quantity will be greater and, as I have already mentioned, we shall have to take in a year's requirements in about three months. Also at the present time foreign wheat is at a very low price, and any marked increase in price would straight away call for more finance.

From a perusal of the balance sheet you will see that it shows a very strong position, and I would like to emphasise that the net assets (less liabilities) of Bannatynes, Russells and Goodbodys were acquired by this company at the same written down figures—no more and no less—at which they stood in the respective balance sheets of these three companies on the 30th December, 1933.

THE OUTLOOK

It is, of course, impossible to give any idea of the future, but so far in this current year our flour sales have been maintained and our first quarter's results are satisfactory. The Saorstat is fast reaching the stage of being able to mill more flour than the present demand, and it is up to us millers to consider any ways of increasing the demand for flour, which I hold to be the best food in the world.

I am pleased to be able to tell you that since the company was formed Mr. Craymer (London) has joined the Board as a managing director, and that Mr. G. M. Goodbody has been co-opted to the Board.

I might just add that, as our old offices were too small for our present requirements, we moved in November last into new offices in Henry street, which are sufficient to house our staff under satisfactory working conditions.

Before moving that the balance sheet, profit and loss account, report of the auditors and directors' report be received, I should like to express a word of thanks to our staff for their work during the year.

It is now my duty to move that the balance sheet, profit and loss account, reports of the auditors and of the directors be received, approved and adopted, and that a final dividend be declared on the Ordinary shares of 7d. per share, less income tax, payable on the 9th May, 1935. I accordingly move that resolution, and call upon Mr.

GOLD SHARES GENERALLY WEAKER

Interest in the Mining market failed to expand yesterday. Kaffirs were, in fact, dull, and, the open bull account being small, there was little incentive for professionals here to go on the bear tack. Indeed, it was generally thought that with next week's festivities out of the way it is quite probable that the market will take a turn for the better. With only two or three exceptions, quotations were lowered, and the tone at the close was dull. Exceptionally weak spots were provided by Venterspost and Randfontein. These and East Geduld and Grootvlei failed to put up any resistance to a little offering.

Rhodesians were dull, but among West Africans Ashanti Goldfields were in demand on the increased dividend. There was a fair turnover among Australians.

With the set-back in the price of the metal, Silver shares suffered an all-round reaction. Tins were neglected, and movements proved of little importance.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

C.P.R. President Optimistic

A keynote of guarded optimism was sounded by Mr. Beatty in his presidential address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway, says Reuter, from Montreal. "The statistics," said Mr. Beatty, "indicate that this year may mark a change for the better in wheat prices and Canada's wheat position. The revival movement in durable goods is particularly encouraging, as it reveals that constructive headway is being made in an important section of an industry which has been seriously depressed. There are many indications that the nation's productive organisation has been strengthened." Replying to criticisms that a Preference dividend had not been declared, Mr. Beatty said that, while it was hoped the worst of the unsettled conditions were past, it was considered that the interest of all classes of shareholders would best be served through continued conservation of the company's cash resources until dividend disbursements could be resumed without endangering the financial stability of the company. Mr. Beatty concluded his address with a further advocacy of the principle of unified operations on the railway systems of Canada.

Anchor Line

The Union Bank of Scotland has filed a creditor's petition for the compulsory liquidation of the Anchor Line (Henderson Bros.). The petition will be heard on 13th May. As announced already, following upon the defeat of the directors' proposal to put the company into voluntary liquidation, the management of the Anchor Line (Henderson Bros.), of Glasgow, decided that application should be made to the English Courts for the appointment of a provisional liquidator pending the appointment of the official liquidator. It was added that there was no reason to expect that the contemplated sale of the business would not be effected, and the only difference would appear to be that what could have been an easy transfer with the minimum of trouble now became liable to certain inevitable delays.

Swiss Bank Rate Raised

The National Bank of Switzerland has decided to raise the discount rate from 2 to 2½ per cent., the rate for advances on securities being increased to 3½ per cent., both changes to be effective from to-day.

Bright Operative Figures of Chrysler Motors

Shipments during the first quarter by the Chrysler Corporation totalled 248,000 units, compared with 167,000 units for the first quarter of 1934. Sales to consumers amounted to 159,000 units, against 106,000 units. Export sales were 62 per cent. above those for the corresponding quarter of the previous year.

One Million Pounds of New Security Issues

The value of new securities issued during April in the American Financial Market was 5,000,000 dollars, compared with 870,000 dollars in February. No new securities were issued during March. Bond offerings in April amounted in value to 460,410,000 dollars, of which industrial offerings totalled 7,000,000 dollars, public utilities 73,000,000 dollars, railroad offerings 27,400,000 dollars, State and municipal 157,510,000 dollars, and the Federal Land Bank 162,000,000 dollars, while miscellaneous offerings aggregated 33,500,000 dollars.

Fox Films First Quarter Income

Fox Films report for the first quarter a net operating profit amounting to 617,000 dollars—equal to 25 cents on both classes A and B stocks—compared with a net profit of 805,000 for the first quarter of 1934.

Danzig Devalues Gulden

Devaluation of the Danzig currency decided on by the Senate of the Free City at a midnight session on Wednesday has been fixed at 42.37 per cent., according to an announcement made yesterday, says Reuter. The value of the new gulden is equivalent to that of the Polish zloty, which is quoted in London round 25½ to the £. Roughly 170 gulden at the new rates will be equal to only 100 gulden of the old currency. The rate in relationship to German currency will be 212 gulden for 100 reichsmarks. The devaluation measure has been taken, it is declared, following a threatened run on the banks attributed to political intriguers.

James P. Goodbody to second the same; but before I put the resolution to the meeting I will ask if any shareholder wishes to make any remarks.

There were no questions.

Mr. J. P. Goodbody seconded the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, which were passed, nem. con.

On the motion of Mr. C. E. Glynn, seconded by Mr. J. H. Roche, Mr. G. Maurice Goodbody was re-elected a director.

Mr. J. H. Roche proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman and directors. He said the balance sheet was highly satisfactory, and proved conclusively that the business was in skilful hands. He hoped the chairman and directors would be spared to them for many years to carry on the good work.

Mr. James O'Connor seconded, and endorsed everything Mr. Roche had said.

The motion was passed unanimously, and the Chairman said they might be perfectly certain that the directors would do their best in the interest of the shareholders to make this concern a success. He thanked them very much for the vote. (Applause.)

The proceedings then terminated.

FIRM CLOSE IN STOCKS

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

Absolutely no feature of interest was shown to-day by the Stock Exchange, which, however, contrived to close firm. A considerable number of small gains, with, however, several declines, was registered after a turnover of 880,000 shares.

Narrow irregularity was shown at the opening, and prices moved lower during the morning, with the decline in London silver acting as a disturbing influence. Then the trend of the market turned largely upward in the afternoon, under the leadership of Rails and Utilities. Apart from Chrysler, Motor issues were restrained by the labour troubles in that field.

The slump in the world prices of silver did not surprise Wall street, and its influence where the Stock Market is concerned—apart from Mining shares—is believed to be of a sentimental nature, and probably of short duration.

Call money remained at ¼ per cent., and the outside rate was unchanged at ½ per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered at 3/16 per cent. bid and ⅛ per cent. asked for 90-day bank bills, and ⅜ per cent. bid and 5/16 per cent. asked for six months' bills.

Sterling exchange opened 1c. higher at 4.84. The rate touched 4.84¼ in the morning, but dropped to 4.84⅛ in the afternoon, and finally closed 1½c. higher compared with the previous close at 4.84⅛.

Silver was 3⅞ lower at 71¼.

BANK OF ENGLAND RETURN

Heavy changes are shown in the Bank of England return this week. Bankers' deposits show a rise of no less than £17,387,028 at £115,522,833, which is still, nevertheless, £687,924 lower than at the corresponding date last year. Public deposits also have been increased by £383,162, the authorities apparently having borrowed extensively from the bank to meet first-of-month commitments. In consequence, Government securities in the banking department have been increased by £17,140,000 to £104,871,044. Other security items are also slightly higher on the week. The active note circulation shows a fall of £603,465 on the week, but is still £14,069,710 higher than at the corresponding date last year. The bank's reserve has been increased accordingly by £647,060 to £60,531,849. The big rise in the public deposits is mainly responsible for the decline in the proportion of reserve to liabilities, which now stands at 37.0 per cent., against 41.1 per cent. a week ago, and 45.9 per cent. last year.

Week ending Wednesday, May 1, 1935.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS

Dublin—Cattle dearer on short supplies, Sheep and Lambs cheaper, Dairy Cattle neglected, only medium-weight Pigs wanted. Bristol—Stores easier all round. York—Large show Irish Stores, and trade same as last week. London—Rubber quiet, Tin easier, Copper firm, and Wheat dull.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (METROPOLITAN).

	Numbers on sale this week as compared with last.	Corresponding weeks of 1933.	1934.
Beasts	2,125—decrease 259	1,828	2,145
Sheep and lambs	7,455—increase 806	6,977	9,745
Veal calves	19—increase 8	2	7

Market this week opened with a freer and firmer tone for suitable selections of home and shipping cattle, with values the turn dearer for choice grades. Not that there was any particular revival in energy or competitive opposition of market to warrant a general improvement; only just the firm attitude of sellers in dealing with the nicer quality and meated exhibits, which formed a very small percentage of the smaller supplies to deal with. Sales opened early and strong, with local and export buyers in keen competition, in which prices advanced on the outstanding article, after which business partook of a quieter routine. Nevertheless, owners showed little disposition to surrender in their earlier firm pretensions for stock of equal merit or values, and only at a late hour were owners of the rougher classes willing to accept near late rates in an endeavour to clear, which proved successful, and market closed a good selling one at firm to dearer rates. There was also a decidedly healthier trade for beef cows, buying being strong for Germany and Belfast, and, with more inquiry for local wants, prices were well maintained and a good clearance effected. Bulls continue in demand for export, all suitable young beasts being readily placed at firm rates. Best bullocks and heifers, 21s. to 22s. 6d., extra 23s. to 24s. 6d. per cwt.; secondary and rougher, 17s. to 20s.; beef cows, young, 12s. to 15s.; secondary, 9s. to 11s.; aged and lean, 6s. to 8s., and bulls, 13s. to 17s.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

In this branch of market both lambs and shearling sheep were much more freely marketed, without any improvement in quality. Sheep market, on the whole, dull and dragging, with previous money scarcely tenable for even choice small-weight mutton; but heavy and coarse sheep proved distinctly harder to cash even at less money, especially hoggets, many pens being still without buyers' marks at a late hour. Choice wethers were scarce and fairly well bid for, as things went; but lambs, on the whole, proved a slower and cheaper trade, especially small and poor-meated pens, which failed to attract buyers even at bargain prices. Prime mutton, 7d. to 8d., occasionally 8½d. per lb.; useful quality around 6½d., and rough, 5½d. to 6d.; best lambs, 28s. to 30s.; extra, 32s. to 37s., and smalls, etc., 17s. to 27s. per head.

DAIRY CATTLE.

Entrants here totalled 209, being practically the same number as previously. There was a fair attendance of buyers in home and shipping interests, but few, if any, were in business-like mood for even choice cows and heifers, as milk appears to be very plentiful everywhere. In the circumstances, biddings were few, and market presented an idle appearance up to mid-stages, when owners were obliged to accept less money in an effort to clear, which failed, and market closed with comparatively few beasts changing ownership around the following prices. Best cows, £11 to £13, extra £13 10s. to £14 10s. per head; heifers, £11 to £13, occasionally £13 10s.; others practically unsaleable.

PIGS.

The gathering of swine here totalled 1,060, being just 45 head less than last Thursday. The attendance of buyers was fair, but there was a quieter tone dominating trade all round, and values experienced a drop. In fact, choice medium-weight bacon hogs were the only class to find favour around previous values. Otherwise there was little want, and market failed to clear, especially light-weight porkers. Sows not so numerous, and prices barely maintained; but slips and bonhams again neglected even at lower terms. Light-weights, 44s. to 46s. per cwt.; medium, 52s. to 56s.; heavier, 44s. to 48s.; sows, 28s. to 30s.; slips and bonhams, 10s. to 18s.; extra, around 20s. per head.

BRISTOL.—There were 150 fresh Irish cattle and 50 English. Short supply of beef, for which trade was a turn better at 6d. to 6½d. per lb. Very limited inquiry for store cattle, and prices easier all round. Best three-year-olds up to £15, two-year-olds to £13. No. yearlings shown. Very few milch cattle and prices extremely low, £15 to £17 for best.

YORK.—Large supply of Irish store cattle and some useful English beasts. Trade was much the same as last week, and the highest price was £17 for strong horned bullocks; the best price for English cattle was £13 10/-. Smaller offer of calving and milch cows, and trade was still depressed, best animals making to about £19.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—Supplies not so plentiful, but ample, and the large consignments of scheme pigs earlier in the week now about cleared at schedule rates. Trade fair all round. Cutters steady at 11/6 and sows dearer at 8/- per score, dead-weight.

DONNELLY, DUBLIN, LTD.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—This market will be closed on Monday next, the Silver Jubilee of His Majesty King George V. Overnight cables were disappointing, and, with heavy selling during early trading tenders more than expected, forward deliveries of wheat here gave way to a considerable extent, then improved, with slight fluctuations, again receded, but in the end were over the worst point, though marking a substantial loss on the day. Late afternoon cables discouraging; c.i.f. parcels neglected and nominally unchanged; c.i.f. parcels of River Plate MAIZE, April, sold at 16/3 per quarter. Wheat on the spot dull and lower. Maize—Spot parcels scarce at 4/11 to 4/11½ per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet at late rates. Graded wheat futures opened ⅛d. to ½d. per cental lower, further gave way, until ½d. to 1⅛d. decline had been accepted, recovered ⅛d. to ⅜d., but closed steady at ⅛d. to 1d. decline on the day. Values—May 5/3½, July 5/6⅞, October 5/8⅞, May 5/9⅞ per cental. Sales—550 bales.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—Continental still difficult to find, and London having raised prices of Danish and Swedish 3/- per cwt. lends additional strength to the market, so that anything available would be a matter of arrangement. LARD on the spot steady and unchanged for both prime steam and American refined, but the demand again of only a moderate character. CARDIFF.—There has been some improvement from the quiet conditions prevailing in most sections, but some irregularity in prices has been noticeable. Supplies of bacon and eggs are on the short side and consequently firm. Butter closes firmer after an easier tone, while Danish declined sharply on larger arrivals. Wholesale quotations delivered in Cardiff district:—BACON firm, with Irish 3/- dearer at 85/- to 90/-, and Danish 4/- to 3/- higher at 87/- to 95/- per cwt. HAMS—American steady at 87/- to 95/- per cwt. English grades were 2/- to 3/-, Irish 1/- to 3/-, Canadian, Latvian, Lithuanian and Polish 2/-, and Danish, Dutch and Swedish 3/- per cwt. higher. HAMS—Short cut sold well at steady prices. LARD was in quieter request, and American moved in buyers' favour. CHEESE—Colonial descriptions attracted a fair demand, and prices generally ruled steady. BUTTER—The feature was the advance in Colonial descriptions, with unsalted steady, while Continental sorts were in very quiet demand.

CATERING BY MRS. LAWLOR, NAAS

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Charles Morton, 5 Dunville avenue, Ranelagh, Dublin, was summoned by the Dublin Board of Fishery Conservators for having exposed fresh salmon for sale without a licence on the 19th March.

Mr. Gerald Byrne, solicitor, appeared for the Board of Conservators, and Mr. G. Nightingale (instructed by Mr. Ernest Keegan, solicitor) appeared for the defence.

Michael McNamara, head water bailiff, said that he saw the head and shoulders of a salmon in the window of 5 Dunville avenue. Defendant's wife told him the salmon was 1s. 9d. a lb. He then told her he was the head water bailiff, and asked her if she had a licence to sell salmon. She said that her husband had no licence, but was sure he would obtain one. She removed the salmon from the window.

Charles Morton, defendant, said that there was no fresh salmon in the shop, and he never sold any. He sold chilled salmon, and thought he did not need a licence for that trade.

Henry Joseph Nolan, Corporation Fish Market, was summoned on five counts for having sold salmon without being licensed.

Mr. E. Burne, solicitor, prosecuted, and Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Mr. S. G. Rutherford) defended.

Mr. Hannan imposed a fine of 10s. in each case, with costs.

MINIMUM WAGES

Fanny Cohen, trading as the Abbey Wholesale Hat and Cap Manufacturers, 54 Middle Abbey street, was summoned for failing to pay the minimum rate of wages to six of her employés.

Charles Henry Shannon, Inspector under the Trade Boards Act, 1909, said that the prescribed table of wages was posted up in the workshop, setting out the wages which should have been paid. Miss Cohen told him that she could not afford to pay any higher wages, as the factory had only recently started and trade was not good. She also said that the employés were there of their own free will, had been previously unemployed, and were glad to get work.

Cross-examined by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, solicitor, for the defence, witness admitted that the factory was "only finding its feet, with the assistance of tariffs. The amounts due per week ranged from 8d. to 5s. 6d. Whether there was work for the entire week or not, workers were entitled to full pay while they were on the premises.

Mr. D. O'Donovan (Chief State Solicitor's Office), prosecuting, said that the employés knew what they were doing, but they preferred it to unemployment.

The case was adjourned until May 16th.

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFIT

William Campbell (junior), St. Teresa's place, Glasnevin, was fined £2 for having falsely represented that he was unemployed, and obtained unemployment benefit thereby.

Defendant said that he had only occasional employment, and he thought he was committing no offence in drawing benefit.

IRISH FAIRS

Many leading buyers were in attendance, and good quality cattle, of which there was a limited supply, were in demand. Beef cattle were scarce. Sheep and lambs were a moderate supply, and found a ready market at increased rates. There was a good demand for working horses, of which there was a small supply.

MUSIC IN A LOW STATE

JUDGE'S REMARKS AT DUBLIN FEIS

THE musical competitions for the Father Mathew Feis came to an end last night. For a fortnight there has been a succession of competitions, marked by unusual enthusiasm and value to an extent that must constitute this Feis the most successful yet held under the auspices of the Franciscan Capuchin Fathers. The Committee of the Feis is to be congratulated on having achieved this record, despite a number of adverse circumstances.

One of these disabilities was remarked on yesterday morning by Mr. Joseph Schofield, who adjudicated on the violin performances, which occupied his attention for nearly twelve hours. He said that music, at the present time, was in a very low state, and the competitors who had turned up at the Father Mathew Hall for these competitions had done so under very difficult conditions. They deserved the greatest encouragement, because they were doing their bit to keep the very great art of music alive.

THE COMPETITIONS

The following competitions were decided:—

Violin (Junior) Competition. Nine entries. —1 (silver medal), Marie Condron, 56 Dawson street (101 marks); 2, Doris Lawlor, 7 Eccles street, Dublin.

The adjudicator said that the general standard was so good that he would ask the President of the Feis, the Rev. Father Michael, to award special certificates to— Michael Butler, 29 Mountjoy square (95 marks), and Michael Tobin, 17 Fontenoy street, Dublin (94 marks).

Mr. Schofield said that during the years he had been adjudicating he did not think so high a standard had been reached in the Junior Violin competition. It showed that there was good teaching in the city. The sight-reading, which was the real test of music, had pleased him very much, notwithstanding the fact that he had given the competitors a pretty stiff sight test.

Violin (Preparatory) Competition. Thirteen entries—1, Sean Woods, 6 Walter terrace, Richmond road, Dublin; 2, Harry Kearns, 7 Millmount place, Drumcondra. Special certificate, Michael McKenna, 28 Fleming road, Drumcondra.

Mr. Schofield said that the standard of teaching in the City of Dublin must be excellent to have turned out such good young performers.

Violin (Senior) Competition. Seven entries —1, Edward J. Byrne, 27 North Clarence street, North Strand, Dublin; 2, Violet G. Carr, 67 Vernon avenue, Clontarf.

Song (with violin obligato) Competition. Five entries. Mr. Harold R. White was adjudicator—1, Maire Schofield (singer), Dundrum, Co. Dublin, and Kathleen Simpson (violin), ditto.

Mr. White said that he would like to say that his experience of the Father Mathew Feis this year had been the most gratifying during his long association with that function. He had seen very definite progress, not particularly in the numbers, but the general level of the playing had been sensibly greater, not merely from the technical point, but from the points of temperament and artistic feeling. They were all out to do the best they could for music in difficult times, to work instead of to listen. That was the great object of this Feis, and it was going a long way to achieve it.

The Rev. Father Michael, president, thanked the adjudicators, the Committee, the steward and helpers, and the Press, without whom they could not reach the outside world. He had started the Feis in Cork eight years ago, and this was his first year in Dublin. Having seen the Dublin Father Mathew Feis right through, he was convinced that it could really fulfil a great purpose.

OUTDOOR GARDENING.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

There is, perhaps, no month in the year during which the flower garden possesses so many and such varied attractions as the "merrie month of May." The most brilliant of all our bulbous flowers, the tulips, are beginning to unfold their vivid petals; the wallflowers, German iris, and hosts of other spring flowers are in full bloom. Flowering trees and shrubs are everywhere effecting the most wonderful transformations on the landscape, and all the beautiful denizens of our gardens are vieing with each other in adding to the splendour of the scene. Arrangements will now be in full swing, and most practical gardeners have already formed their designs regarding the summer decoration of their flower beds and borders. Geraniums and bedding plants of all kinds will require plenty of air on all suitable occasions to render them hardy by the time they are to be planted out, and the hints we have already given on this matter should be carefully followed by our readers. Many of the earlier sown and transplanted half-hardy annuals will now be sufficiently strong to commence their process of hardening off, but great care must be exercised to protect them from the cutting east winds which come during the earlier portion of this month. Continue the propagation of any item of which there may be a shortage, as it is better to have more than is actually required than to be obliged to unduly thin the lines or masses of plants when bedding out. Sow hardy annuals over patches of crocus, scillas and snowdrops that are to be kept in the ground; by the time the annuals are a few inches high the foliage of the bulbs will have died down sufficiently to be removed by the hand. For a continuance of bloom it is wise to make a sowing of some of the half-hardy annuals, such as zinnias, nemesias, phlox Drummondi, French and African marigolds, etc. These will germinate freely now, and plants so raised will give a good account of themselves next August and September. If dry weather sets in, it may be necessary to put a mulching of manure around the base of recently planted roses.

SHELTER.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

In exposed places shelter is necessary, and may be provided in one of two ways. The first and the more expensive would be by having the house unusually large, so that in wet or stormy weather the birds might be kept indoors; the area of such a house should permit an allowance of 4 sq. feet of floor space per bird. A simpler and more economical plan would be to have the ordinary utility house, and to provide the required additional shelter by planting a dense evergreen hedge all round the enclosure. Cupressus Macrocarpa is the quickest growing shrub in cultivation for use in places away from the sea and not too windswept. Good plants not more than 18 inches in height should produce a 6ft. hedge in two years. Broad-leaved privet is also suitable for hedging purposes. When planted the young trees may be cut down to within six inches of the ground to ensure thickness at the base. For seaside runs, where it may be found difficult to grow either of the above, Escallonia makes a suitable hedge.

MONT BLANC TUNNEL IN PROJECT

SUBJECT OF FRANCO-ITALIAN TALKS

Negotiations with Italy regarding the proposed Mont Blanc Tunnel will soon be started by the French Government, if the recommendations of the Commission of Public Works are put into effect.

Both the probable advantages and possible disadvantages of such a tunnel underneath Mont Blanc were carefully studied by this Commission. It found no disadvantages, but many advantages from both the economic and international viewpoints. They may be summarised as follows:—

Such a tunnel under the Mont Blanc will stimulate the friendship existing between the two Latin countries—Italy and France.

It will give work to several thousands for a period of five years, and so decrease the number of unemployed.

It will create a new means of communication between Italy and France, cutting about 200 miles off the shortest route at present in existence.

Finally, it will facilitate the exchange of tourists—French, Italian and foreign—between the two countries, and so increase the prosperity of the Mont Blanc region.

If the negotiations with Italy are successful, as is anticipated, and if the French Parliament approves, work could be started in 1936. It is explained that the proposed tunnel will not be used by the railways, but exclusively by road traffic—in fact, it will be an "autostrade" carved out of the rock of Mont Blanc.

A GREAT CULTURAL WORK

ARCHIVES OF CLASSICAL MUSIC

There is a cultural work going on at present at Vienna, which is unique in the world. In the year 1927 the Dutch art collector, Mr. A. van Hoboken, founded an institute as a branch of the musical collection at the National Library for the exclusive purpose of collecting and reproducing works of the classical masters.

During the few years that have passed since its foundation an enormous quantity of material has been amassed. Many original manuscripts of Bach, Beethoven, Haydn, Chopin, Mozart and Schubert which were scattered about in the world have been discovered in different museums, archives and private collections, both at home and abroad, and negotiations were opened with the owners. Hereupon the manuscripts were photographed (for works existing at Vienna and in Austria, there is a particularly sensitive camera, in the rooms of the institute), and negatives of them, the "photogrammes," made. The institute is at present in possession of about 50,000 of such photogrammes, which are kept in iron cases specially made for the purpose, and which constitute the sacred stock of the collection.

MEDICAL FESTIVALS AT VIENNA

MANY INTERESTING EXHIBITS

During the days between the 13th and the 25th May the Medical Festival Weeks will be held at Vienna, in celebration of the 150th year of the existence of the General Hospital. The programme festive receptions and social entertainments will contain the unveiling of a statue to the memory of the Viennese doctor, Johann Peter Frank, one of the first managers of the Vienna General Hospital, a number of scientific lectures, international progressive courses for medical men, the most interesting of which promises to be the Medico-Historical Exhibition at the Natural History Museum.

The exhibition will be opened by the Federal President on the 18th May, at 12.30 p.m., and is to be a brilliant display of the world-renowned Viennese Medical School. The Municipal collections of the City of Vienna, the Natural History Museum, the National Library, the Imperial House, Court and State archives, the Institute for the History of Medicine at the Josefinum, the Board of Managers of the General Hospital, various clinics, the rectorship and deanery of the Medical Faculty, etc., have united in the service of this undertaking.

There will be seen portraits of the most famous doctors of Vienna, their handwriting, and also pictures of their studios; the National Library shows rare volumes, the oldest works on medicine, valuable manuscripts from the Middle Ages; and, indeed, not only European, but also Oriental. The Imperial House, Court and State archives supply the oldest documents and deeds concerning the Vienna University. There will be on view, in a vitrine, the most valuable specimens out of the unique collection of Brettauer, which passed as a present into the possession of the Vienna University, and medals, plaques and memorial coins—all referring exclusively to the science of medicine in all civilised countries—extending from the days of the Renaissance till the twentieth century, and of incalculable value. As a numismatic - medical collection, this collection, which has been brought together during the course of thirty years of hard work by the Triest oculist, Brettauer, enjoys a reputation which extends far beyond the frontiers of Austria.

Very great interest will probably be aroused by the old instruments which have been put at the disposal of the exhibition for the period of its duration by the various clinics of the General Hospital and by the University Institute for the History of Medicine, which possesses enormous wealth of very rare literature and devices and instruments which have become a matter of history. Here we shall find old anatomic tabular forms from the Josefine days laid out on linen; the oldest throat mirror, a microscope, which was used by the famous Viennese, Professor Rokotansky; the oldest device for measuring blood pressure, out of the property of the family physician of Emperor Max of Mexico, Ritter von Basch; a skull, covered with descriptive notes in his own hand, in the year 1797, by the founder of the Doctrine of Phrenology, Franz Josef Gall; ancient doctors' and midwives' diplomas, dating from the times of Emperor Karl VI. and Maria Theresia; indentures of surgeons, a trepan of the 17th century, the great work on the plaque by the famous Dutch doctor, Serbait, who practised at Vienna; and a quantity of other cultural-historical and medical-scientific objects of great value, each one of which recounts a chapter out of the important book of the history of Viennese medicine. Since foreign visitors are granted great privileges in travelling, a particularly satisfactory attendance at the Medical Festival Weeks is expected which, as a scientific social event, will act as an incentive to the June fectival weeks.

ROTARY IN FRANCE

BRITISH ROTARIANS TO ATTEND CONGRESS

Some 300 British Rotarians will take part in the annual national Congress of French Rotary Clubs, to be held in Saint Malo from May 26th to June 1st. An attractive programme has been drawn up, and the Rotarians from Britain will have a wonderful opportunity of getting to know what French hospitality is really like.

Where, centuries ago, English knights fought with French, the Rotarian descendants of both will make friendly visits to Cancale, St. Servan, Dinard, Dinan, and other coastal resorts. There will also be a trip to Jersey, where the sovereign is still called "The King of England, our Duke." Senator Gasnier Duparc, Mayor of Saint Malo, himself a Rotarian, will serve as "guide, philosopher and friend" to his visiting comrades, both French and British. There will be visits to the birthplaces of Jacques Cartier, to the tomb of Chateaubriand, and to the famous ramparts, which withstood many an English siege.

The climax of this Rotarian Congress will be a banquet in the fortress monastery of Mont Saint Michel, at which 1,000 guests will be present, and the menu will include the famous omelette of Madame Poulard. Every person participating will "earn" his luncheon, for he will be compelled to climb the giant staircase of 800 steps under his own motive power, for there are no lifts in Mont Saint Michel. The meal is to be served in the grandiose "Salle des Chevaliers," where knights of old used to feast after their hunting parties or their conflicts with English, Breton and other enemies. How food for 1,000 persons will be carried up the famous staircase is a problem which a Rotarian restaurant-keeper will have to solve.

"For a while," declares Senator Duparc, "we shall be the succesors of the Norman knights, as the descendants of one-time enemies gather in peace and fraternity. A banquet among friends is the entertainment we shall offer our Rotarian comrades from both sides of the Channel. For a few hours Mont Saint Michel will recover its soul."

Rotary clubs have existed in France for almost two decades, and the weekly luncheon in Paris, held on Wednesdays "Chez" Langer in the Champs Elysées, is generally attended by several British Rotarians. French Rotary clubs exist in the following cities:—Angers, Annonay, Antibes, Juan-les-Pins, Avignon, Bastia, Bayonne-Biarritz, Aix-les-Bains, Cherbourg, Clermont, Cognac, Saint Malo, Dijon, Brasse, Grenoble, Le Havre, Le Mans, Lille, Lyons, Marseilles, Mulhouse, Nancy, Nantes, Nice, Nimes, Oran, Paris Perpignan, Rennes, Saint Brieuc, Saint Etienne, Saint Raphael, Sete, Strasbourg, Toulouse, Tours and Vichy.

HORSE SENSE ON HORSE POWER

The Terraplane has a twenty-one horse power 6 cylinder engine—but it has a sixteen pound tax. It has exactly twice the acceleration of the average of 71 other cars ("Autocar" test), but it does 20 miles to the gallon. A chrome alloy cylinder block wipes out the necessity for rebore—that saves you money and worry. Its more than generous margin of power means smaller repair bills. Irish assembled, it costs less in Dublin than London. Your money is spent on good motoring value, not importation duty. It pays to buy a Terraplane.

FRUIT TREES IN RUNS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—
Large runs may also be used to great advantage in another way. Since the fowl manure enriches the soil and makes it of excellent quality, it is particularly suitable for the growing of fruit trees, such as apples and pears. Only the standard varieties of trees should be used, so that they will not occupy much ground space, and so that their branches may be well above the reach of the birds. Those who have orchards of standard or half-standard trees could not do the fruit a greater service than by allowing the poultry to run in them. Without actually dividing the orchard or enclosing it by netting, a portable house could be moved in, or even a permanent house erected there, where free range could be given. In order, however, to derive the maximum benefit to the orchard from the keeping of the poultry in it, the latter should be evenly distributed by dividing into sections, according to the number of birds, and placing so many birds in each section. This ensures that the soil will be evenly manured, and where it has been impoverished by years of cropping and lack of manure, the deficiency will quickly be made good, and great crops of fruit may be the reward.
